Suburbanites' mood—they believe...

A Herald Staff Report

The people are optimistic. They believe things may not be exactly right but they also believe deeply there is good sense in the way we live. They believe the nation and the things that make America strong will endure.

The people believe in themselves. They believe in God, in the hope that rests with little children and in the worth of their work. They believe hard work pays off and they believe nothing can keep them down. Some feel they must work too hard to get along.

The people don't believe they live in a perfect world or a perfect country. They are worried about money and some fear the future. Sometimes some of them are on the brink of despair. Yet even in moments of depression they remain self-confident.

The people who live in the Northwest suburbs are not angry at anybody or anything. They place their families above almost all else. Many of them include their country when they talk of the things most dear to them. They are quiet rather than loud, thankful rather than jealous.

The people seem to be waiting for what comes next. Some are apprehensive but most are resolute. Many are dissatisfied — but not all. They are generally kind to one another.

Most of all, people have a lot on their minds.

During the past few days, Herald staff writers talked to a lot of people who live in the suburbs. We asked them to speak openly about the way they live and the way they feel about things.

This is what they had to say. Their words are as they said them, the people who said them are real:

The sales manager

"I consider myself a religious man. I'm 58 years old, I have four children — two of them married, one in college and one mentally retarded. I go to the county jail once a week for discussions with the convicts there. I think they need to find a commitment in life like the one I've found in my religion.

"I always wanted to be married and have a family. The driving motive was to get a job and have economic security first. I felt that if I could make $5,000 a year I would have it made. The Depression had a terrific impact on my whole life. I married at 28 when I knew I had economic security.

"We are definitely going through a recession now. It worries me but it doesn't scare me. People will adjust.

"I like this area the best of any place I have lived. The people here are great. I enjoy all those I've met and the friends I've made. There is opportunity here for community service."

Any dreams? "Well. I wish I was 48 instead of 58. I would go back and get my law degree and defend these guys that don't have any money."

How do you feel about getting old? "Here's my definition of a young man: a man one year older than I am. I try to enjoy life and I am enjoying life more today than I have ever enjoyed life. I just thank the Lord I have another day to live.

"I like my job, too. I don't plan to move up or move on . . . I'd like to retire

Petition to add part of corridor

Long Grove moves to defeat annex bid

Long Grove village officials hope to head off plans for a Miller Builders development in Buffalo Grove by annexing part of a corridor of land before Buffalo Grove gets to it.

Attorneys for Long Grove have filed a petition in Lake County Circuit Court seeking annexation of 100 acres that is part of the corridor Buffalo Grove had hoped to annex to bring its boundaries up to the Miller site.

Miller plans to build 415 units on the 149-acre site and Long Grove is opposing the density of the development.

Village Pres. Robert Coffin of Long Grove said Monday the village filed its petition because "we're unhappy with the proposed type of annexation."

RICHARD WEXLER, a Miller attorney, said the Long Grove action was "malicious abuse of process." He indicated that he may file suit against Long Grove and charge it with trying to "confiscate" the land.

Wexler said a suit may be filed in the next two weeks to disconnect a portion of the property from Long Grove that was annexed several years ago but never serviced by the village.

The Miller site borders Long Grove east of Old Hicks Road between Old Checker Road and the Lake-Cook county line.

A court decision still is pending on the annexation method because Miller attorneys had to withdraw and resubmit their petition following Long Grove objections to discrepancies in the legal description of the land and to annexation petitions signed by property owners.

Coffin said the Long Grove annexation will "take precedence" over Miller's annexation petition because it was filed after the Miller request was withdrawn in court.

"They (Miller) withdrew their petition and filed a new one and in the meantime we (Long Grove) filed a request for annexation in the same general area," Coffin said.

Wexler said both sides will appear again in Lake County Circuit Court, Dec. 16.

For now, the front yard. Tomorrow — who knows? — the Big Ten.

Village agrees to rental of golf course apartments

The Buffalo Grove Village Board, in a 4-3 vote, agreed Monday night to permit the rental of 283 apartment units around the Buffalo Grove Golf Course if the developer proves an economic hardship.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong cast the deciding vote to allow Phoenix Construction Co. to rent a third of the 849 units planned on three tracts adjacent to the course if the firm is unable to sell them. The other 566 units would remain for sale.

Trustees Clarice Rech, Edward Osmon and Randall Rathjen opposed permitting Phoenix to rent units and cast the dissenting votes.

Phoenix officials have said that economic conditions may make it difficult to obtain financing to build all ownership units. The trustees agreed to permit the firm to rent some of the units as long as it demonstrates an economic need.

The new agreement also calls for a 4.3-acre donation by the developer to the village for the public works garage. Originally, a 4.8-acre donation was agreed upon, but it was later determined the village won't need that much land.

The board deferred action on authorizing Raymond Knoeppel, an Arlington Heights architect, to draw plans for the garage until it accepts title to the land.

Monthly low water bills go up Sunday

Monthly minimum water bills in Buffalo Grove will rise from $3 to $7.50, effective Sunday.

The village board Monday night raised the rates to make up a projected $140,000 deficit in the water system's emergency repair fund.

The new rate schedule is $7.50 for the first 5,000 gallons of water used; $1.20 per 1,000 gallons up to 30,000; and 90 cents per 1,000 gallons over 30,000.

For a typical monthly household use of 6,000 gallons, the new rates will mean an increase of $3.15.

Parks may schedule meet

Buffalo Grove Park District officials say they may schedule a special meeting date Dec. 5 to make up for a canceled meeting originally scheduled for Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28.

The park district's next regularly scheduled meeting is Thursday Dec. 12 in the park district administration center, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Park District Director Stanley Crosland also asked residents who have not responded to the park district attitudes survey to send the form in as soon as possible so the data can be compiled.

Park officials hope to use the survey to determine residents likes and dislikes about the Buffalo Grove park system.

Contributions fall off

Local United Fund drive may not reach $20,000 goal

Contributions to the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund have fallen off in the last few weeks and officials are concerned the campaign may not reach its $20,000 goal.

United Fund Pres. James Bauer Monday said $16,800, or 84 per cent of the goal, has been collected. The drive ends next week.

"Things have really started to slack off and I'm a little worried we aren't going to reach our goal," he said. "Our residential campaign is pretty much over, so we'll have to count more heavily on business and industry."

THE UNITED FUND has asked for contributions from every home, business and industry in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Bauer said. Starting this week, officials will contact by telephone all businesses and industries that have not yet donated. He said he would like to contact all the households that have not contributed as well, but there is not enough manpower.

"We feel if we get some response from our telephone calls, we can still make our goal," he said. "But it's going to be a little tougher than last year."

This year's goal is $8,000 higher than last year's. In addition to the local goal, Bauer said $65,000 will be given to the local drive by the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

Money raised by the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund will help support Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Northwest Mental Health Center and the Salvation Army Family Counseling Service.

Contributions may be sent to the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund, P.O. Box 56, Wheeling.

Hilton to take over Arlington Towers

Hilton Hotels Corp. will take over operation of the Arlington Park Towers and the O'Hare International Tower hotels effective Dec. 16. The two hotels will be renamed the Arlington Park Hilton and the O'Hare Hilton. Madison Square Garden Corp. will retain ownership of the two properties. Alan N. Cohen, president of Madison Square Garden, called Hilton "the best professional management available," and predicted that the two hotels would benefit from Hilton's computerized reservation system.

Petitions to support Whipple

Backers of John Whipple, former Dwyer School psychologist, are circulating petitions asking State Schools Supt. Michael Bakalis to reject a state certification board recommendation and let Whipple keep his state psychologist's certificate. The board found that Whipple had acted as an administrator without an administrator's certificate when he headed the controversial school.

Driveway dispute goes on

Stanley Twardzik and the county highway department can't even agree on how much they disagree. Twardzik and his wife, Marian, have been locked in a dispute with county highway officials, who want the width of the driveway at the Twardzik home, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, reduced to 16 feet from its present 30 feet to conform with county standards.

Mrs. Twardzik said Monday the county has now offered to accept a 24-foot driveway width. But Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, said he is unaware of any such compromise and the county still plans to reduce the driveway width to 16 feet.

Parks want to cut fees

The Elk Grove Park District is looking for ways to cut fees for recreation programs to give residents a break from inflation and rising prices. Park officials held a brainstorming session Monday to come up with ways to reduce costs. "We're concerned especially right now with keeping the cost down and maintaining the quality of programming we've always had," said Richard Ludovissy, superintendent of recreation. "It's a case of how to give people the most for the least amount of dollars."

Law to end attorney's dual roles?

Ald. Alan Abrams of Des Plaines said Monday night he will introduce an ordinance prohibiting City Atty. Charles Hug from doing outside legal work in an effort to end Hug's role as attorney for both the city and the Des Plaines Park District. Abrams announced his recommendations after a city code and judiciary committee meeting which heard from several other city officials who expressed differing views on the matter.

Library vote urged

More than 63 per cent of the 636 persons responding to a survey on the need for a new Mount Prospect Public Library said the issue should be put to the voters in a referendum. Results of a Herald survey showed that those responding were also split in the need for the new library: 37 per cent said it is needed and 59 per cent said it isn't. The village board has authorized a $4 million library bond issue, which does not require a referendum.

Mikva wins by slim margin

The Illinois Board of Elections made it official Monday: Democrat Abner J. Mikva won by a slim 2,860-vote margin out of more than 160,000 ballots cast in his successful challenge of U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10.

County officials getting hefty raises

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Cook County's recently elected officials will receive pay increases of $5,000 to $12,200 each when sworn into office Dec. 2.

The County Board unanimously approved the raises Monday at the board's final meeting of the fiscal year.

Largest increases went to two Democratic incumbents who were elected to new four-year terms Nov. 5. County Board Pres. George Dunne and Sheriff Richard Elrod will receive $42,200 a year, an increase from $30,000 a year.

County Clerk Stanley Kusper and assessor-elect Tom Tully will receive $40,000 a year, up from $30,000, and Seymour Zaban and Harry Semrow of the Board of (Tax) Appeals won raises to $27,500 from $22,500.

BOARD MEMBERS who approved the raises also increased their salaries from $20,000 to $25,000 a year.

The board's finance committee chairman, Chicago Democrat Jerome Hppert, will receive $27,500, a $5,000 a year increase.

Salaries of the officials were frozen in 1970 by state law, which prohibits elected officials from voting pay increases during a term in office. County officials are elected for four-year terms.

Two years before election of State's Atty. Bernard Carey, the board approved a salary increase to $42,200 for the position.

Suburban Republicans Monday said that the state's attorney, board president and sheriff are the three top officials in county government and should receive equal salaries.

"I'M DELIGHTED to see the board president's salary increased to put him at a par with other elected officials in the state," Comr. Carl Hansen said. Hansen was the GOP candidate for board president in the Nov. 5 election.

Dunne's $42,200 will be less than Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's 1975 wage of $60,000 a year and Gov. Daniel Walker's $50,000 a year.

"The cost of living between September 1970 and 1974 has gone up more than 26 per cent," Comr. Floyd Fulle said. "The salaries of county employes have increased 25 per cent in the last four years."

The commissioners' increases will keep salaries above the level of state legislators who now receive $17,500 a year. Legislation to increase legislative salaries $5,000 a year to $22,500 is expected to pass in the Illinois General Assembly before adjournment in December.

DESPITE OUTSIDE business interests, both Fulle and Hansen said that they are "full-time" commissioners. "There is no elected job that's defined (as full or part-time) that I know of," Fulle said. "There is no job description for elected officials."

"I don't sit in this office 40 hours a week, but I consider this a full-time job," said Fulle, who publishes a suburban newspaper. "When I'm at home, I get calls every 15 minutes. When tax bills go out, I can't explain how much time I put in. When I get a complaint on zoning, I meet with the people."

Hansen, who owns a management consulting firm, said "the amount of time spent on county business varies with the time of year. I may spend time at home, analyzing county reports. On an average it's 40, 45 or 50 hours a week."

Hansen said that the county should examine the "constitutionality" of cost of living increases for elected officials. Atty. Gen. William Scott has said that the hikes would be constitutional, but the proposal has not been tested in court.

FULLE, HANSEN AND the three other suburban board members voted against a contract for repairing and converting about 1,400 voting machines for the Nov. 5 election. Two Democrats — John Stroger and Frank Chesrow — "passed."

Kusper did not bid the $180,000 contract with International Election Systems Corp. of New Jersey that was approved by the board.

"The county clerk must learn to follow board procedure," Hansen said. "These were necessary, good changes, but we don't know if there was another qualified bidder. This was never before the board until today."

Kakuei Tanaka, Japan's prime minister resigns

Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka resigned Tuesday, assuming responsibility for political confusion in Japan, triggered by charges against him of corruption. There have been calls for Tanaka's resignation since last month when a magazine article accused him of amassing a vast fortune during the 28 years he has been a politician.

Three men, Masayoshi Ohira, finance minister; Takeo Fukuda, former finance minister, and Takeo Miki, former deputy prime minister are widely considered potential successors to Tanaka.

British outlaw IRA; 3 bombs injure 20

The British government announced Monday it is outlawing the Irish Republican Army, and three bombs exploded soon afterwards in different areas of a London braced for reprisals. Police said 20 persons were injured. All bombs exploded in mail boxes. One at Piccadilly Circus, another near the Victoria railroad terminal, and a third in Caledonian Road, a north London working class district.

Rocky's nomination hits opposition

Nelson Rockefeller's nomination as vice president was opposed Monday by a variety of public witnesses who criticized him on counts ranging from his wealth to his attitude toward abortion. Arthur Eve of Buffalo, a state legislator, said Rockefeller's nomination should be rejected because of his handling of the Attica prison riot where 43 inmates and guards died. The hearings move into the fourth day today before the House Judiciary Committee.

Court rules on Mexican farmworker case

The Supreme Court ruled Monday that Mexican farmworkers can be admitted to the United States on a daily or seasonal basis without violating immigration laws. The decision was a blow to the United Farm Workers Union, which had brought suit seeking to bar temporary admission of Mexicans to compete with union members.

U.S. aircraft carrier in Persian Gulf

For the first time in a quarter century, a U. S. aircraft carrier is sailing the Persian Gulf just off the world's richest oil fields, the Pentagon announced Monday. The sailing of the Constellation was officially labelled a "routine deployment" by the Pentagon.

Armed Services unit to question Haig

The Senate Armed Services committee voted Monday to summon Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., White House chief of staff in the last months of the Nixon presidency, for questioning about his suitability to be commander of NATO forces in Europe. Haig critics feel he may be too closely identified with the Nixon White House for him to be effective.

Siragusa: Mental Health Dept. lax

Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission, said Monday the State Department of Mental Health was "woefully lax" in monitoring mentally ill patients it transferred to a private facility in Rockford. Seven of the 50 patients transferred from the Dixon State Hospital to the Illinois Extended Care Center at Rockford died between October, 1973, and March of 1974.

Dan Ryan back to normal soon

Illinois Transportation Secretary Langhorne Bond said Monday repair work on the Dan Ryan Expressway on Chicago's South Side will be completed Wednesday. The 5½ month project, which cost $27.7 million caused massive traffic backups on the expressway almost daily. Bond told a news conference resurfacing is designed to last 10 years.

Lesser charges are dismissed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica Monday threw out part of the Watergate cover-up indictment against John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman, but ordered the trial to go forward on the main charge against all five defendants — conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Sirica's rulings, shortly after the government rested its case at the eight-week-old trial, cleared the way for the defendants to present their cases to the sequestered jury.

Ruling the government had failed to present sufficient evidence to justify the charges, Sirica ordered that Mitchell and Ehrlichman be acquitted of counts charging that they lied to the FBI in unsworn statements in the early days of the bugging investigation.

He said the jury, which had been excused from the courtroom, would be informed that the two counts had been dropped "at the proper time."

But at the same time, Sirica denied routine motions from four of the defendants — Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian, and Kenneth W. Parkinson — that all charges against them be dismissed for insufficient evidence. Only H.R. Haldeman did not ask for a directed judgment of acquittal.

Mitchell was expected to take the stand as the first defense witness today following an opening statement on behalf of Haldeman.

U Thant, former U.N. chief, dead at 65

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—U Thant, the quiet devout Buddhist schoolmaster from Burma who for a decade served as the third Secretary General of the United Nations, died Monday in New York at the age of 65.

Thant, who had cancer of the cheek, died at New York's Columbia Presbyterian Hospital after contracting pneumonia, a U. N. spokesman said. His death came not quite three years after his retirement. Funeral arrangements were pending.

The General Assembly scheduled a special commemorative session when Thant's successor Kurt Waldheim returns from the Middle East.

Since his retirement as secretary general on Dec. 31, 1971, Thant lived in suburban Harrison, N. Y. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and son-in-law and four grandchildren.

Thant assumed the top U. N. post as acting secretary general after Dag Hammarskjold's death in 1961. A year later he was unanimously named secretary general in his own right and he insisted that his five-year term be dated back to the time he first went into office. Re-elected to a second term, he served longer than anyone as U. N. chief executive.

His U. N. accomplishments included bringing the Congo crisis to an end without the secession of Katanga province, persuading the Africans not to force South Africa out of the world organization and bringing Pope Paul VI to the General Assembly for his dramatic "War-never-again" appeal.

Thant was head of the Afro-Asian committee which aided Algeria's fight for independence from France, and he engineered its entry into the United Nations.

The son of a Burmese landowner, Thant was born at Pantanaw, Burma, on Jan. 22, 1909, and was educated at Rangoon's University College before launching a schoolteaching career.

Typical food basket cost up 9.8%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The annual retail cost of feeding a theoretical family of 3.2 persons rose $4 in October to a record $1,779 due mostly to rising farm prices, the Agriculture Department reported Monday.

The report said the increase in farm prices more than offset a slight dip in middlemen's margins during the month.

But the figures also showed that increased marketing charges were the main factor in pushing the typical food basket cost to 9.8 per cent above the level a year ago.

In September, for example, the retail cost of the market basket had risen 1.4 per cent above August because marketing margins rose 2.3 per cent while farm prices were falling 1 per cent.

The $1,779 rate consumers paid for the market basket in October — 0.2 per cent above September — was divided into $734 for farmers and an estimated $1,045 for middlemen.

The market basket represents a selection of U.S. farm-produced foods needed to feed a theoretical household of 3.2 persons for a year. It is not intended to represent the actual grocery spending of any average family, but is regarded as a barometer of up and down trends in consumer food bills, marketing costs and the farm share of the consumer food dollar.

For 1974 as a whole, economists estimate food marketing costs will average about 20 per cent above 1973, the biggest one-year increase on record.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability opened hearings Monday to trace the roots of a situation which has prompted sugar prices to jump 400 per cent during the past year.

THE ANNUAL retail cost of feeding a family of 3.2 persons rose $4 in October to a record $1,779, due mostly to rising farm prices. Figures also showed increased marketing charges were the main factor in pushing the typical food basket cost to 9.8 per cent above a year ago.

William A. Quinlan, general counsel for the Associated Retail Bakers of America, warned the council that as many as 15,000 neighborhood retail bakeries may go out of business if sugar prices keep going up. He said the industry "faces disaster" unless the government steps in to subsidize the price that both consumer and commercial buyers pay for sugar.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican leaders accused Democrats Monday of delaying President Ford's economic program, but 12 Democrats announced they would seek swift approval of a tax overhaul going beyond Ford's program.

In other economic developments Monday:

• United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller summoned his rebellious bargaining council back to Washington to rule on a revised coal contract worked out under the gaze of Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

• The four U.S. automakers reported mid-November sales were down almost 35 per cent from last year's already depressed levels, and Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II said the bottom of the auto slump has not yet been reached. Up to 200,000 U.S. and Canadian auto workers will be off for parts or all of December as automakers try to bring their huge inventory of unsold cars into line with slumping sales.

• With investors apparently preoccupied by concern over the nation's recession, the New York Stock Exchange had only light trading with falling prices. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 3.36 points to 611.94. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.07 to 68.83.

Official cites reasons for arms curb

From United Press International

The Russians accepted the Vladivostok strategic arms limitations agreement in part because they wanted to get off to a good start with President Ford, a high American official said Monday.

Ford and Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev reached a tentative agreement in Vladivostok for a 10-year curb on the number of offensive nuclear weapons.

The official, who talked to newsmen aboard the plane carrying Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Peking, said Ford will brief congressional leaders next week on the exact number of missiles, bombers, and other strategic nuclear offensive weapons limited by the accord.

Other reasons why the official felt the Russians signed the agreement were: the Soviets felt they had enough nuclear might to afford the agreement; and a Soviety fear that if an agreement was not reached at Vladivostok, there might not be another chance.

At a state banquet Monday night in Peking, Kissinger assured Chinese leaders the three-year-old diplomatic thaw between the United States and China is firmly part of Ford's foreign policy and will continue.

Kissinger is briefing Chinese officials on the Vladivostok summit and discussing the general scope of Sino-U. S. relations in view of changes in Chinese and American leadership.

Meanwhile, in the United Nations, North Korea denounced President Ford Monday as a "war monger" and asked for the immediate withdrawal of some 38,000 American troops from South Korea.

Addressing the U. N. General Assembly's 138-member main political committee, North Korean Vice Foreign Minister Li Jong Mok said the U. S. troops were no longer needed since South Korea had an army of 700,000 and another 2.5 million men in the reserves.

Ford's journey to South Korea, he said, was "a trip for war expansion and a trip for aggression, which revealed without reservation his true colors as a war monger."

In Washington, the President shifted to domestic matters after his Far East summit and concentrated Monday on ways to trim federal spending in a bid to ease inflationary pressures without adding to the recession.

His press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Ford was spending most of his time making final decisions on a series of proposed budget cuts that he will outline today in a message to Congress.

Nessen also indicated that Ford was working at a less rigorous pace than usual after getting back Sunday night from his eight-day, 16,500-mile journey to Asia. He said the President showed up "a little late" at his desk and kept his schedule free of formal appointments throughout the day so he could confer easily with top aides.

Happy undergoes surgery, she's OK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Margaretta "Happy" Rockefeller underwent her second breast removal operation for cancer Monday and her doctor said she has a 90 per cent chance of full recovery over 10 years.

Dr. Jerome A. Urban, head of a four surgeon team which removed Mrs. Rockefeller's right breast less than six weeks after her left breast was similarly removed, said, "It's out and that's the end of it."

Urban, acting chief of breast services at Sloan-Kettering Memorial Hospital where the surgery was performed, said the second operation for the wife of Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller was simpler than the first and preliminary lab reports were that the cancer had not spread to lymph glands under her arms.

"She's O.K. It's all over," Rockefeller said minutes after visiting his wife in her room. "I'm so relieved. I'm so grateful. I'm thanking God and especially the doctors and the nurses."

President Ford called Rockefeller Monday to express his concern over Mrs. Rockefeller. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford and his wife Betty, who recently underwent similar surgery, called about 11 a.m. as Mrs. Rockefeller was being wheeled from the operating room.

Nessen said the Fords wanted "to wish Happy the best" and quoted the President as saying: "Give her our love. Our prayers are with her. When you get a little clearer picture, call us back."

Urban, who also performed the first operation Oct. 17, said Monday's operation was a "simple mastectomy," in which only the breast tissue itself was removed, as opposed to last month's "modified radical" mastectomy in which much of the major pectorial muscle and lymph nodes were removed.

Barnard patient has two hearts

CAPE TOWN (UPI) — Heart transplant pioneeer Dr. Christian Barnard announced another medical first Monday — the transplanting of a second heart in a patient to beat alongside the existing one.

Barnard said his unidentified 58-year-old male patient is in "excellent condition" and already walking after the surgery performed Sunday night. But he cautioned that "these are early days and it is dangerous to speculate."

He said there is less of a problem with rejection in this operation as a second, rejected heart still could be removed and the original one left working.

The donor was an unidentified 10-year-old girl who died in a traffic accident Sunday.

Barnard pioneered heart transplants seven years ago and two of his 11 transplant patients still are alive. One has had a new heart for more than five years.

Ford names Frank Zarb to head energy office

• President Ford Monday nominated Frank G. Zarb, 39, currently associate director of the Office of Management and Budget as well as executive director of the Energy Resources Council, to head the Federal Energy Administration. Zarb replaces Andrew Gibson, who withdrew his nomination to run the FEA following a controversy over potential conflict of interest.

• Early start: Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona has become the first Democrat to announce officially that he will seek the White House and enter New Hampshire's first-in-the-national 1976 presidential primary. Udall, 52, is a one-time pro basketball player, member of Congress since 1961 and brother of former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

• Israel's Minister of Justice, Haim J. Zadok, has presented one of his nation's highest honors, the prime minister's medal, to Nathan Shapell of Beverly Hills, Calif., a former Nazi concentration camp inmate who arrived in the U.S. in 1951 to become an American businessman and author of a recent book on Nazi atrocities, "Witness to the Truth."

• At a Los Angeles auction of memorabilia, collectors paid prime prices for household goods belonging to Adolf Hitler. A silver handled grape-sheer sold for $275 and a silver matchbox engraved with a German eagle clutching a swastika and the initials "A.H." went for $475. Also auctioned for $750 was a document written by Abraham Lincoln in 1865, and a 32-page manuscript of D. H. Lawrence's short story, "The Lovely Lady," brought the highest price of all — $4,500.

• The new Monopoly king is Alvin "Big Al" Aldridge, a 23-year-old accounting student from Dayton, O., who wound up with every piece of property on the game board to win the second annual World Monopoly Championship in New York.

• A London lawyer and former mayor of the city's borough of Chelsea Monday won a libel suit against a newspaper that called him "a menace to young girls" because he liked to slap their bottoms. The court then awarded John Brooks, 64, one-half pence — about two cents — in damages, leaving each side to bear its own court costs. But Brooks was not dismayed by the financial burden. "Of course it was worth it," he said after the court's decision. "I won, that's all that matters. In order to prove the truth, I would have spent my last penny."

• Deaths: Cornelius Ryan, author of such popular World War II histories as "The Longest Day" and "The Last Battle," of cancer at age 54 in New York City ... Ralph "Bottles" Capone, the brother of Chicago's famed prohibition gangster Al Capone, at age 81 in a nursing home at Hurley, Wis.

Suburbanites' mood—they believe...

American strength, personal optimism will carry nation through hard times, they say in a few years if I can. The thrust of my job now is to make it possible for the younger guys to move up, to advance. I like doing that very much."

The teacher

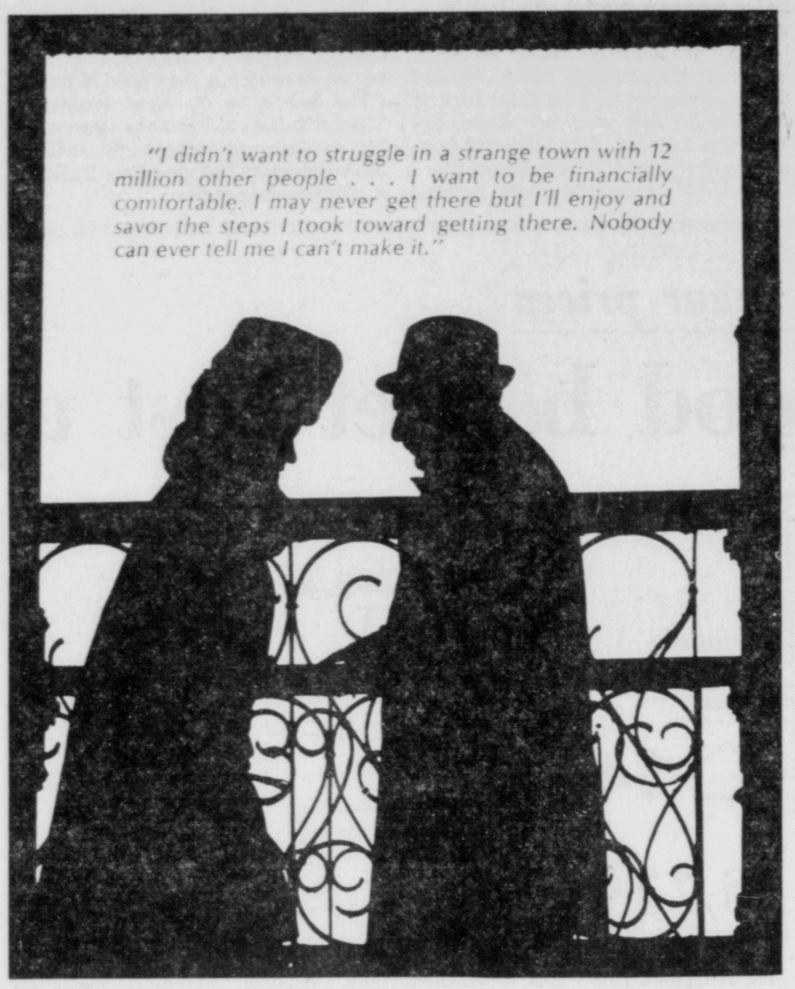
"I'm 25 years old. I'm satisfied with my life. I like teaching. It's fun and not like a job. But teaching isn't a profession to me. It's a way to make money and have free time to go out and have fun. My parents want me to get married.

"I used to teach in Peoria but I didn't like the small town. I like living here. The suburbs are very materialistic, fast-moving, fast-paced; there is an excitement about them. I play tennis, toboggan, ice skate and love to shop. What more could you ask for with Woodfield right in your backyard?"

Would you change your life if you could? "I think I would change my life completely. I would go to a bigger school and would have picked a more demanding, challenging field."

Do you like the way you live? "Some days, yes, some days, no. I think there are a lot of things wrong with this country, but I've been to Europe twice and I wouldn't live anywhere else than here. I'm proud to live here. I admit the U.S. is not like anything I learned in civics class but I've learned to live with it, the good and the bad. It's a nice place to come home to.

"All I can remember is a quote I heard once that happiness isn't a place, it's a direction."



The prep football coach

"When I wake up in the morning I look forward to going to work. I never think of work as a drag. People want to know why I go to work so early. I get there an hour early and generally they have to throw me out at night. I knew as early as elementary school that I wanted to be in sports. I think I have a fine record and a good rapport with the players. I have no remiss or frustrations about what I am doing."

Any complaints? "Everybody's got complaints, but I'm down on people who think this is a terrible place to live. People who don't like this country shouldn't stay here. They should go to other countries and see how it is there.

"If it comes to defending this country I will go and I am 38 years old. If Uncle Sam says, 'Hey, it's time for you to go,' if it's right or wrong I'll go.

"Things don't come to you. You have to get what you want through hard work. I've got a nice home in Palatine, a great marriage of 18 years and two fine daughters. To have a son would have been nice."

What about inflation? "I'm baffled by the cost of food. Raises aren't bigger than the increased costs of living. But things will change for the better, I know. I think something should be done about fiendish crimes and the drug and pornography overload that seems like it's swallowing us up. Sometimes I get awfully depressed about it.

"But things are good, generally, I'm sitting here in beautiful Palatine, my wife has chicken in the oven and my kids have nice shoes."

The career woman

"I had an out-of-the-ordinary family with out-of-the-ordinary values. My father retired to do what he wanted at age 35 — I'm one year younger than that now. My father was interested in ecology long before anyone knew what the word meant. He was an all-around naturalist. It did cause problems; my Dad was hard to compete with.

"I always expected to be married and have children until I graduated from college. I was engaged then and realized I didn't want to marry the guy. So I went to Europe and lived in Rome for awhile, just bumming. And there were times when I would envy those who were pretty happily married. But I would rather be single than be involved in a bad marriage like the ones I've seen. I do miss having children, though."

Are you satisfied with your life? "No. I consider it one day-to-day hassle. For the last two or three years everything has been a hassle. I'm tired of challenges. I would like to do something that is not a challenge. I'm tired of waking up in the middle of the night and thinking about business details, like 'Did I really understand that memo?'

"I feel more comfortable with myself than when I was younger. I used to be the perfect ad agency type with my hair perfectly lacquered in place, my make-up perfect, my Saks Fifth Avenue outfit, even if I could only afford one. Now I feel more casual. I have my own style and I'm comfortable with it. You go to a party and you don't feel like you have to be dressed like everyone else."

How about the country? "Since I have been eligible to vote I never felt I could back anyone in an election. It was always choosing the better of two evils. I had been an idealist for a long time.

I think money rules this country. But if you put every country on a scale, this one may still be the best place to live. Whether it will straighten itself out, who knows? That's part of my fear of the future."

The businessman

"I am 37 years old and it took me a little while to get straightened around but I think I did it. I've got a wife, two teenage daughters, a 9-year-old son and three dogs. It used to be difficult getting through the day. Everything that happened to me, I thought, was someone else's fault. If my eggs were burned in the morning, and my day was lousy, I blamed my wife. If business was off one day, I used to pound my hands on the desk and get mad. But it did nothing for my business.

"Then I took some sensitivity-type training, sort of a self-awareness thing and now I don't get bad feelings or get dejected about things that happen to me. As a result, things don't look so bad.

"It used to be an effort for me to get up and put my pants on. I still drag out of the sack but now it's beautiful to be among people, to be alive.

"I always thought I'd be a millionaire one way or another. I want to be financially comfortable. I may never get to be a millionaire but I'll enjoy and savor the steps I took toward getting there. Nobody can ever tell be I can't make it. I haven't had a down day in six weeks."

The priest

"I am glad I'm a priest. I'm optimistic about our future and I find satisfaction in my work.

"I'm worried about the parishioners. Many of the young families are going to be bitter and end up cynical. They are going to blame society for the economy and they may not know enough to turn to each other for help.

"People are really in a state of uncertainty. Especially those people who have moved here during the past five years, many of them with husbands in middle management jobs.

"The old farm families seem more stable in times of stress. They are very much family oriented and they aren't wealthy, they've worked hard for what they have.

"It's the young people I'm worried about. You wonder if their backgrounds and training have prepared them well enough for setbacks. So many of the young adults are so involved in their own lives, in their own interests that it will require a lot for them to adjust to hard times.

"Even those young families who think they are community-minded through involvement in the Little League are really in it because of their own children, not for the community as a whole.

"I think there are hard times ahead, but one thing to remember, we'll come out of it."

The elderly woman

"I came to the nursing home two years ago — I'm 72 now. I help out with the secretarial work here at the home and I can still play the piano, which I enjoy.

"I think you make your own life. If you take the attitude that things are always bad, you will go through life a very unhappy person. I always try to look up and see what's bright in the world. I am very fortunate in being very active in my life. I am agile for my age. I'm happy. I'm satisfied. Life's too short to be bitter."

Would you do anything different with your life? "I don't know. I'm satisfied with my life and I'm happy. I have often thought that maybe I would not have gotten married. But now I am glad to have my family. I will never be lonesome."

Isn't there anything you would have liked to have done? "Well, I always wanted to be a dancer. A tap dancer. When I was younger I loved the stage. But I had a straight-laced family and they looked down upon that.

"But I didn't do it, so I didn't do it — it's nothing to regret. I made the best of my life. I won't say it was a bad bargain."

What do you do when you get up in the morning? "I hop out of bed and get cutting."

The housewife

"My husband works for Ford and we are apprehensive about what will happen to the economy and to the company. I'm 35 years old and I have three children. We moved here from a suburb of Detroit on a job transfer. We live in suburbs because of the children.

"I'd really prefer to live in a major city. I hate suburban life, really. But with children, you're trapped into it.

"This year we are really going to cut back on the holidays. There will be things for the children but we aren't religious and the economy makes a good excuse to cut back on spending. My husband is in a managerial position but he is in the middle of having his division merged with another and we will be affected by cutbacks if they happen.

"We have moved three times in the past five years and it has taken the kids a full year to adjust to this move. We preferred our last home in Michigan to this one.

"I'm concerned that my kids seem to be very conscious to economic groupings. Our kids know which subdivisions cost more."

EPA complaint

Permit lack cited in landfill charge

by JOE FRANZ

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has filed a complaint against a sanitary landfill near Wheeling, charging it has been operating without an EPA permit.

The complaint was filed with the Illinois Pollution Control Board against Landfill Engineering Co., Milwaukee Avenue and Deerfield Road, and its owner, William Freeding. The case will be handled by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office.

Richard H. Briceland, EPA director, said Monday this and similar cases are designed to protect citizens from problems that accompany improperly operated landfills and illegal garbage dumps. The case is part of a statewide effort to ensure proper operation of solid-waste disposal areas, he said.

Freeding said Monday he has not applied for an EPA permit because the landfill was supposed to close about the time the state law took effect. "It took us a little longer than we thought to complete the landfill, but we're almost through now," he said.

THE LAKE COUNTY Circuit Court, he said, issued an order allowing him to finish the landfill. He said he expects to close the landfill by the end of the year.

"We haven't taken any garbage there for about a month and a half," he said. "All we've been taking there lately is dirt to cover the site."

After the landfill is closed, Freeding said he will attempt to sell the site for some kind of development.

"Garbage dumps can cause both air and water pollution and can serve as breeding areas for rats, mice and insects," Briceland said. "Health and safety hazards and visual blight at garbage dumps are quickly becoming a thing of the past in Illinois.

"We intend to take legal action against all sites operating without permits in violation of the law."

KURT ADAMSON, an attorney for the EPA Division of Land Pollution Control, said Monday that Landfill Engineering has been in violation of Illinois law since last July. The Illinois General Assembly, he said, passed a law July 27, 1973, giving operators of garbage dumps and sanitary landfills one year to obtain EPA permits.

The case has been filed because we have no record of them applying for a permit," Adamson said.

The attorney said there is no evidence the landfill is a threat to the public safety, but without a permit, the EPA cannot be sure it is being operated properly.

"The case has been filed strictly on the issue of them not having a permit," Adamson said. "It does not take into consideration whether they are complying with our standards."

On the requirement of EPA permits, Briceland said, "These permits are more than mere pieces of paper. They provide the best means to achieve compliance with state pollution control regulations. They also provide assurance that each site is developed and operated in the most environmentally sound manner."

ADAMSON SAID 45 cases charging landfills and garbage dumps with operating without EPA permits have been forwarded to the attorney general's office for hearings before the pollution control board. He said no date has been set for the hearing on the site near Wheeling.

The EPA and the attorney general's office are asking the pollution control board to fine landfill operators up to $10,000 for each permit violation and up to $1,000 for each day the alleged violation exists.

La Grange official describes project

Tunnel blasts to 'sound like thunder'

Mount Prospect residents can expect a noise comparable to thunder when the Metropolitan Sanitary District begins blasting for its tunnel sewage system in a year to two years, the superintendent of a similar project in LaGrange says.

Glen Rorison, project superintendent for the LaGrange-Brookfield tunnel, another MSD tunnel system, said residents' fears of excessive noise when shafts are dug may be unfounded.

The blasts "sound like thunder," he said, adding that residents probably wouldn't know what caused the sound unless they were aware of the blasting.

Rorison also discounted the likelihood of damage caused by the blasting. He said about a dozen complaints of damage were filed in LaGrange, but the blasting firm was only held responsible for two broken windows.

THE SANITARY district announced plans Thursday to dig seven 160-foot deep shafts in Mount Prospect, connecting to its tunnel system carrying sewage from the Northwest suburbs to the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant in Des Plaines.

Residents of the areas where the shafts will be dropped have expressed concern that the blasting may damage their property.

Rorison, however, says the similar project in LaGrange, where five shafts were blasted in 1970, caused only two broken windows. He said the damage occurred on an overcast day when air coming out of the shafts bounded off the clouds, cuasing a "concussion." The problem did not recur because the shaft openings were then covered, Rorison said.

His company, Jay Dee Contractors Inc., used some dynamite and another explosive called "water jell" that he said is similar to nitroglycerin for the LaGrange-Brookfield tunnel. The tunnel stores sewage 250 feet underground until it can be pumped for treatment at the MSD's West Southwest Sewage Treatment Plant in Stickney.

THE TUNNERL SYSTEM under Mount Prospect will collect storm and sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows, Wheeling and a portion of Des Plaines, as well as Mount Prospect.

The sanitary district said the only permanent environmental impact in Mount Prospect would be the possible compaction of soils around the shaft sites.

It acknowledged there may be other problems, such as exhaust fumes and dust, but said they would be temporary.

Rorison said that in LaGrange, Jay Dee hired a blasting consultant to advise on blasting in residential areas and used a seismograph to measure the blasts' impact. The firm also took a door-to-door survey before beginning the blasting to record and photograph existing damage to protect itself against unfounded claims.

THE MOUNT PROSPECT blasting is expected to last about a month at each shaft, with one blast every two to three days. The starting date has not been set, but it is expected to begin in a year to two years.

Shafts are planned for the following Mount Prospect sites: Weller Creek and Central Road, Weller Creek and Lincoln Street, Weller Creek and Wa-Pella Avenue, Weller Creek and Elmhurst Road, Weller Creek and Mount Prospect Road, Williams Street and Lonnquist Boulevard, Isabella Street and Rand Road. An eighth shaft will be at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

Fire district annex referendum delayed

A referendum to add the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District was put off again Monday following a court order extending the matter to Feb. 10.

The ruling, handed down by Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford of Cook County precludes any possibility that the vote can be this year, Buffalo Grove Village Atty. Richard Raysa said.

Comerford's order will give Buffalo Grove fire officials a chance to study Long Grove fire district financial records, to see if disannexation would seriously harm the Long Grove district. Long Grove officials have said one reason they want to keep the territory is because the loss of tax money would be a great burden.

RAYSA SAID he asked for the extension to examine the records and reply to the Long Grove claim.

Paul Chervin, an attorney for the Long Grove department said disannexation would take away about one-third of the district's tax base.

Before continuing the issue, Comerford denied a request by Long Grove that the referendum be disallowed because laws governing the change of fire districts are unconstitutional.

Chervin said earlier this month he would challenge the statute, charging that inadequate notice was given to district officials that disannexation was being sought.

Buffalo Grove officials were hoping to have a referendum sometime this year.

COURT DETERMINATION of the referendum date was put off last October when Long Grove objected to lsoing such a large amount of its tax base and questioned the constitutionality of laws governing the disannexation.

Officials estimate that Long Grove could receive an extra $60,000 in tax money if the referendum is conducted after April 1.

If that happens, the Wheeling district would not receive any tax revenue from the Lake County section of the village until February 1977 even if the territory is transferred.

Disannexation of the territory would be an important first step in the formation of a municipal fire department, Buffalo Grove officials have said.

Currently, Buffalo Grove is served primarily by Long Grove firemen in the Lake County section and Buffalo Grove firemen in the Cook County section. The Vernon Township Fire District covers a small area of the village, but are not fighting disannexation.

Petitions with 250 names lend support to Whipple

Petitions containing more than 250 signatures will be sent to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis this week in support of school psychologist John Whipple, former director of the Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children in Arlington Heights.

The petitions are being gathered by parents who have children in Dwyer, staff members at the school and another facility for troubled children, and residents of the community who support Whipple. They call on Bakalis to reject a recommendation from the State Teacher Certification Board that Whipple's school psychologist certificate be revoked.

Frieda Krueger, a secretary for the Center for Child and Family Studies where Whipple now works and informal coordinator of the petition drive, said petitions with about 250 signatures were given to her Monday morning.

UNTIL LAST summer Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer, located in Arlington Heights. At that time he was transferred to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems, after charges of child abuse were made against him by County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick and former teachers from Dwyer.

The Teacher Certification Board last week cleared Whipple of the child-abuse charges but recommended to Bakalis that Whipple's school psychologist certificate be revoked because he had worked as an administrator at Dwyer without the administrative certificate required by law. If the certificate is revoked, Whipple will not be able to work for public schools in the state.

Michael Stramaglia, associate superintendent for Bakalis, said Monday he will turn the certification board's recommendation to Bakalis early next week. He also said members of Bakalis' staff are researching the implications of the board's recommendation and will present a separate recommendation to Bakalis.

Stramaglia said the recommendation from the staff "may be the same as the certification board or it may be different." He said he does not know how soon Bakalis will rule on the case, but said a ruling will come before Bakalis leaves office Jan. 13.

Attorneys for Whipple have said they will take the case to court if his certificate is revoked.

Compromise over driveway feud?

Stanley Twardzik and the county highway department can't even agree on how much they disagree.

Twardzik and his wife, Marian, have been locked in a dispute with county highway officials, who want the width of the driveway at the Twardzik home, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, reduced to 16 feet from its present 30 feet to conform with county standards.

Mrs. Twardzik said Monday that the county has now offered to accept a 24-foot driveway width. But Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, said he is unaware of any compromise and the county still plans to reduce the driveway width to 16 feet.

The Twardziks said they are unsure whether they will accept the compromise, if actually offered, since they want to keep the driveway which was installed six years ago. Mrs. Twardzik said she was told the county's contractor would come to remove six feet of black top Thursday.

Last week, the Twardzik's parked their vehicles in the driveway to prevent workmen from ripping it out. Mrs. Twardzik said she is still keeping a close watch over the driveway.

Mt. Prospect woman loses eviction fight

by BARRY SIGALE

The Mount Prospect woman who was fighting eviction from her apartment at the federally-subsidized Huntington Commons complex has lost her battle and will move out by Sunday.

The decision is a blow to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which made a public issue of the plight of Patricia Orr. She was characterized by SCLC as a woman alone, having to care for five children without a husband to lend support.

The 37-year-old divorcee has decided not to pursue her eviction in court and has found a new place to live. Originally scheduled to be out of her apartment by Oct. 31, Mrs. Orr had additional time to look for a new home because of the behind-the-scenes negotiations between her attorney and the attorney for The Littlestone Co., managers of the complex.

"This is a normal way to end" an eviction controversy, said Bill McNally, SCLC attorney representing Mrs. Orr, in explaining why a courtroom confrontation did not take place. "Usually," he said, "a tenant says, 'to heck with it,' " and drops attempts to challenge the order.

THE MAIN REASON Mrs. Orr didn't continue the battle, according to SCLC officials, is that the burden of proof was upon her to refute the charges made against her and her family that led to the eviction notice. The odds, said the officials, were against her.

The legal action was threatened by SCLC at a press conference Oct. 24. It was an immediate reaction after Mrs. Orr, a black woman and SCLC member, came to them for assistance.

Mrs. Orr was ordered to vacate, said Sue Cate, general manager of Littlestone, because she was habitually tardy with her rent payments and her children were causing damage to the building at 1220 S. Elmhurst Rd. Mrs. Orr claimed she was ill and unable to make prompt payments and offered a guarantee that she would pay on time if allowed to stay. She also defended her children, saying the vandalism charges were untrue.

Now, Mrs. Orr is making arrangements to live at the Rand-Grove Apartment complex in Palatine Township under a six-month trial period. She has promised to make her payments by the first of every month and SCLC has agreed to help her fulfill the obligation.

GRETCHEN LEWIS, SCLC board member, said she doesn't consider the turn of events a defeat for the organization. "I don't have that view," she said. "What we wanted was for Pat to stay in the area. We would have liked her to stay at Huntington Commons but she was lucky enough to have found other housing."

Patricia Orr

Mrs. Lewis said the issues brought up in the case have led SCLC to challenge several examples of "insensitivity" it has found toward persons living in similar federally funded projects. A series of hearings are scheduled to bring the problem into the open for discussion and solution, she said.

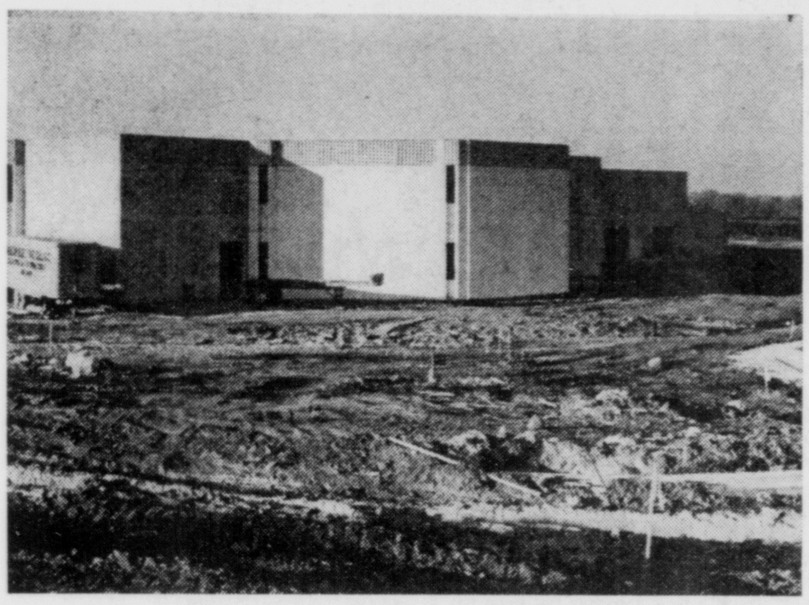
Arrogant state board must learn to serve

A state agency that is supposed to solve construction problems for Illinois' public school districts has instead become a nightmare of red tape and arrogance, and we urge the legislature to yank it back to its original purpose.

The culprit is the Illinois Capital Development Board, created in 1973 to administer a program which would allow the state to pay up to 70 per cent of the cost of local school construction.

What was envisioned by those who supported the legislation which created it was a board that would provide the cash for construction, but wouldn't meddle in the construction process. But that's not the way it's worked out.

Instead, the Capital Development Board has become a red-tape agency which has unnecessarily delayed the construction of school buildings; for example, Schaumburg Twp. Dist. 54, one of the fastest growing districts in Illinois, has been in a perpetual, time-consuming struggle with the agency for approval of needed new buildings.



In addition to delaying construction, school officials have reported nit-picking and arrogance on the part of the Board's leadership. It's part of the all-too-familiar pattern of a state agency declaring it always knows best for local school districts, even though those local districts have been satisfactorily building school buildings for years.

Finally, the Capital Development Board's top officials have complained publicly about the "inequality" of district boundaries in Illinois. Critics of the Board have accused it of attempting "social engineering" by making such pronouncements, thus going far beyond its original mandate of aiding public school construction.

State Rep. Arthur Berman, D-Chicago, has threatened to introduce corrective legislation in Springfield, and for the sake of all school districts, we support the idea of such legislation.

The state should play a role in school construction, but that role is primarily to supply funds. In the past, school districts have proved themselves quite capable of building weatherproof school buildings on their own, without excessive state interference.

The lesson ignored by the Capital Development Board is one that is too frequently missed by state and federal officials; that is, state and federal government is designed to serve its constituents, not to dictate policy to them. Unless the Board begins to learn this lesson, that its role is financial and advisory, then it should be abolished and the legislature should develop a more responsive, and responsible, board.

'Wallpaper not for me'

At the risk of sounding as though I'm against the Equal Rights Amendment, I must state that I think there are certain things, aside from the obvious ones, that women were not designed to do.

I have wallpapering in mind, and bathrooms, especially. Even more especially if you have never wallpapered anything before.

Since last weekend I can understand how come Hitler went nuts and I don't think that old time slapstick comedy routines about wallpapering are funny any more.

Old time slapstick on the subject has Laurel and Hardy papering over windows, doors and transoms, and the Marx Brothers pasting everybody in sight, and Abbott and Costello falling off ladders and getting rolled up in the paper.

But they all had nice big walls and great big rooms to cut their capers and spill their paste buckets in, and if you think I have just finished papering my little 5x7 bathroom you're right. Almost. There is still one post-card sized spot behind the door that isn't done and probably never will be.

Being a beginner I got lots of advice from veterans and the only thing they agreed on was leaving any patchwork for behind the door where nobody will notice.

The "behind the door" theory may work in every other room in the house, but not in the bathroom where well-brought up people close the door while using the facilities. Behind the door when the door is closed is the most likely spot people will notice as they sit in there and meditate upon the beautiful wallpaper I have just installed. And they will surely wonder why all the tan tweed flowers are minus one petal and another one is so sadly disjointed in that strip that was behind the door until they closed it.

Dorothy Meyer

Now that I, too, am a veteran it is my right and duty to give advice and my first words of wisdom are, "Hire a paperhanger."

If, however, you are determined to be a do-it-yourselfer, start anywhere but in the bathroom. Learn to handle a 97-inch strip of sticky paper in a room where there's space for a second person to help you without falling into the bathtub. Learn to match a mod flower pattern on a wall where you do not have to cut around a light fixture, a medicine cabinet, the soap dish holder and three water pipes.

Of course, you will use the new kind of paste that "absolutely does not lump," and therefore you should allow for an extra half hour spent with your hand in the paste bucket, working out the lumps.

In retrospect, I think that the only thing that went right was the cat. He disappeared, apparently figuring that it's time to leave home when the lady of the house stands for half an hour with her hand in a bucket.

He's back now and spends a great deal of time facing the wall in the bathroom meowing something that sounds more like, "Wow," than "Meow."

I think it's the place behind the door that's getting to him.

'Driving not an inalienable right'

by GARRISON TERHUNE

For Americans, to whom owning "a set of wheels" is something taken for granted, knowing how to drive comes as naturally as knowing how to tune a color TV. It's a toss-up as to which is considered more difficult.

Getting a driver's license is one of our teen-age rites of passage. So all too many of us also consider it an inalienable — and unassailable — right. Calling somebody a "bad driver" is one of the more personal insults one could ever utter.

The simple truth is, declining highway fatality statistics notwithstanding, the typical American is not a good driver. More than likely, he or she is a lousy driver.

There are three ingredients in the highway safety recipe: the road, the vehicle and the driver. For nearly a decade, the greatest attention has been lavished on the vehicle, via federally mandated safety standards.

Most recently, however, there are signs that there will soon be a new target of concentration, the driver. Safety is, of course, a quite legitimate goal for automakers, an obligatory one, in fact. But safety is a relative quality.

There can be no such thing as an absolutely safe car, no matter how many safety standards it meets. A car is either more or less safe. Further, if you agree that there is always the potential for an accident in a traffic situation, the decision to drive on a public roadway is, in effect, a decision to court danger.

The hundreds of thousands who have been killed and the millions who have been injured on America's streets and highways are testimony to that.

The growing interest in the driver as the key culprit in our continuing saga of death and destruction — and we're not talking about "the nut behind the wheel," but the average American man and woman, responsible, right-minded and an incompetent driver — is showing up in subtle and widespread ways.

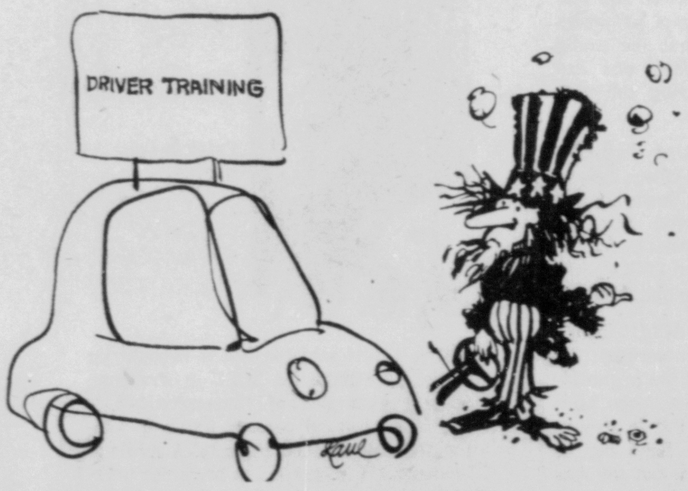
At a recent seminar on auto safety sponsored by Mercedes-Benz, a panel of journalists examined the legal and engineering aspects of the problem. Next, the journalists zeroed in on the driver as the area where the most good can be done in improving safety.

They talked about better driver education programs, tougher licensing tests and even two levels of driver's license — one which would authorize the holder to operate vehicles only on surface streets, another for people qualified to drive on all public roads. This system would hopefully allow only good drivers on the freeways, parkways and interstate highways.

Out of the question? It's not very different from the system of licensing pilots, which is based on various levels of proficiency, experience and physical health.

This proposed scrutiny of one's "right to drive" is gaining currency in many places. In North Carolina, for example, 128 acres have been secured and $2 million appropriated by the state for the establishment of a National Driving Center. The Center's purpose is to examine the medical aspects of driving, including the driver's physical, mental and emotional behavior.

The first objective of the National Driving Center will be defining the driving task in medical terms.



Eventually, the Center hopes to be able to identify the behavioral, social and medical characteristics of drivers who have accumulated a lengthy record of accidents and traffic violations, and from there develop appropriate rehabilitation programs. The concept was worked out in cooperation with medical, legal and insurance associations in North Carolina — hardly wild-eyed radicals.

In virtually every other part of the country there has been talk of requiring senior drivers, those 65 and older, to take an annual driving test to maintain their licenses.

What is it that's wrong with America's drivers? It starts with the way we sit, scrunched up against the steering wheel, hands draped from the top of the wheel rim like praying mantises. If you think about it, one cannot possibly make an evasive maneuver — steer out of an emergency — when so contorted. What's more, we seldom use our mirrors to look when changing lanes or merging.

Thrust into a "panic" situation, the first — and usually only — action we take is to stand on the brake pedal, when what really may be needed is a nudging of the gas pedal and a quick turn of the wheel. The complete list of errors is too long to include here.

It's an education problem. It's an attitude problem. Perhaps, it was best put by one of the participants at the safety seminar, "You don't have a natural right to take 400 horses out on the road. You have to earn it, and you have to be trained for it. You have to be equipped and prepared for it. Then you'd have a different sociological outlook on the license and the removal of it. Maybe there'd be fewer of them."

School district backed

I would like to say a word in defense of School Dist. 21. I moved to Buffalo Grove from Maine Township Dist. 63, which is a very progressive school district. I was concerned about my children's education in the new school. At first I was disappointed that they were not moving at their own rate, as Dist. 63 schools did. But in the past two years our school has come a long way toward helping the individual child achieve his personal best. The children now do move at their own rate.

At the recent parent-teacher conferences I was made aware of the material used in the sixth grade reading class. It was very difficult material, and had I been asked to give definitions for some of the words contained in it, words that my sixth grader knows, I would have been hard pressed to do so, as I was an A/B student and had once planned to teach math and English.

My fourth grade daughter's Iowa tests were in the 80 and 90 percentile, with her reading in the 70 percentile. This, granted, is not her best. But as Dr. Gill said, part of these grades are lack of motivation, and I feel that we parents are just as responsible for this as the school district. We cannot blame our schools for everything. Hopefully, with some help from home, the reading grade will improve next year when she takes the test.

My sixth grade son's grades were all in the 90th percentile. If our school was not doing something right, there would be no students in the 90th percentile. Credit must be given to Dist. 21 for continuing to improve our children's education. Those of us who have children in the lower grades, or not yet in school, can look forward to having some of the best educated children in the country.

They want sidewalks

You recently published an article about a Hawthorne Lane resident who was injured because she was "walking in the street." No charges were placed against the driver who struck the pedestrian.

You failed to mention that Hawthorne Lane is a street without sidewalks. The elderly, the infirm, children walking to and from school, mothers with baby strollers and other pedestrians must either walk in the street, shuffle through the gravel and wade through puddles or walk on lawns.

It seems to me that the city of Des Plaines should correct the sidewalk situation before other more serious injuries occur, though assessments would not win favor with local residents.

Cronin to work against segregation

From Herald wire services

New Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph M. Cronin will work against racial segregation in schools and for women's rights and collective bargaining for teachers.

In several interviews about the job, Cronin, 39, who will assume the state post in January, said he will work to eliminate racial segregation in Illinois, just as he has worked in Massachusetts, where he is state education secretary.

"I favor equal opportunity for students of all races," Cronin said. "I have worked hard in Massachusetts to overcome segregation in five of our cities and will work as hard in Illinois."

CRONIN SAID HE helped develop the controversial school busing plan that has been in operation in Boston. He said that plan was imposed on the Boston schools when a federal court found an earlier desegregation plan to be inadequate.

Cronin also told reporters that as the father of five daughters (he has a total of seven children), he expects to be a strong advocate of women's rights. "Having that many daughters makes me very interested in opportunities for women in education," he said. "It is a priority I've stressed in Massachusetts, especially the opening of all kinds of educational facilities such as vocational, medical and business. I expect to do the same thing in Illinois."

JOSEPH CRONIN

Cronin also said he favors collective bargaining for teachers but is opposed to giving teachers the right to strike.

THE NEW superintendent was named Saturday by the Illinois Board of Education and will take over Jan. 13 from Illinois Schools Supt. Michael Bakalis, the state's last elected superintendent. He said he will support all the state board's policies, even if he does not agree with them.

"I will be a visible education advocate but on matters of policy and programs, the board and superintendent will speak with one voice," Cronin said. "I might become an advocate of policies with which I disagree and if the disagreement becomes serious enough, the superintendent would resign."

Cronin also said, "I see the state school superintendent in a major leadership role. The superintendent is first a major source on policy and advice to the board and then he should serve as their agent in carrying out decisions. It is a very vigorous role."

CRONIN IS A native of Boston and has worked in California and Maryland as well as Massachusetts. He has degrees from Harvard and Stanford universities.

Cronin said he was not disturbed by the fact that Bakalis, a Democrat, who was one of three finalists for the state superintendent's job, withdrew from consideration after saying the state board seemed to want a "manager" rather than an educational leader.

"The board of education has not ruled out anything as far as leadership is concerned," Cronin said, "except they appear to take a dim view of partison political activity. The intent of the legislature was to create a nonpartisan leadership position, one that could work with both bodies (of the legislature) and all groups in the state. I'm very comformable with that definition."

Politics

Inflation main concern, Percy survey shows

A post-election day survey conducted by U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., showed that inflation was the major concern of 54 per cent of Illinois voters.

Ranking second as the leading concern was "honesty and integrity in government" (23 per cent), followed by unemployment (18 per cent) and crime and public safety (4 per cent), Percy said.

"Poor economic conditions, combined with recent political events, have eroded the public's faith in government officials," Percy said. Of 1,051 voters questioned the day following the election, 60 per cent were critical of all public officials.

Among them, inflation and Watergate each were cited by 30 per cent of the respondents as the chief reason for their attitude toward elected officials. Another 22 per cent cited "cynicism," and 2 per cent named crime as the reason. Another 15 per cent listed other causes.

The poll also showed that more voters consider themselves members of neither political party than either of the two major parties. Forty-one per cent said they favored no party, 36 per cent identified themselves as Republicans and 23 per cent as Democrats.

Of the responses collected, 622 came from passengers on Chicago and North Western Ry. and CTA trains. Questionnaires returned from Springfield total 193. There also were 125 responses from Peoria and 111 from Rockford.

Crane names assistant

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has announced the appointment of Richard S. Williamson, formerly of Winnetka, as his Washington administrative assistant.

Edward D. Murnane, present administrative assistant, will return to the district to take responsibility for operation of Crane's congressional offices in Chicago and Arlington Heights.

Williamson, formerly an intern in the congressman's office, joined his staff following graduation from the University of Virginia Law School in June.

"Rich Williamson's legal background will be a valuable addition to the legislative functions of the Washington office while Ed Murnane's background in the 12th District should enhance the services which I am able to provide my constituents," Crane said.

Murnane lived in Arlington Heights and Palatine before joining Crane's staff as press assistant in 1971. He was a vice president of the Palatine Jaycees and a charter member of the board of directors of the Twinbrook YMCA in Schaumburg.

Convention crowd slips

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Coordinators for the Democratic Party's miniconvention Dec. 6-8 say attendance may be smaller than anticipated.

Andrew Shea, Democratic midterm convention coordinator, Said "I first predicted we would have about 7,000 persons, but now it looks like we'll come closer to about 5,000."

Shea retained his optimism, however.

"With the November elections just behind us and states just now getting their delegates chosen, it will start picking up now," he said.

"Why, just this week we found out that Walter Cronkite is coming. Things will pick up in the next few days."

Maurice Blum, spokesman for the Plaza Inn, said it has been "very disappointing. I just hope like hell they can do what they say and fill the rooms we've been holding."

Police officials said they have decided to reduce the convention security force because of smaller crowd estimates and funding problems on paying overtime for police.

Neither the city nor the Democrats have agreed to pay protection costs.

Volunteers sought for LWV court-watching project

Volunteers are needed for the League of Women Voters' court-watching project in Cook County.

The project is being conducted under an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant to discover why so many citizens are dissatisfied with the criminal justice system.

Volunteer court observers will be trained by lawyers to observe misdemeanor courts and collect data for the study. Suburban courts selected for the projects are in Niles, Oak Park and Midlothian. Volunteers would spend two days a month observing the court nearest them for five months.

The study's directors are looking for people from every walk of life, including retired persons and college students.

As a result of a court-watching project in Peoria, court calendars have been arranged so police, witnesses, lawyers and defendants spend less time waiting for their calls.

Those interested in volunteering can call Nancy Edler, 835-1374.

Area man has chance for $300,000

The lowest prize package yet offered in the Illinois Lottery will be up for grabs Wednesday at the weekly Bonanza drawing in Bloomington.

A Des Plaines man, Robert A. Bolin, 1810 Pratt Ave., is the only person from the Northwest suburbs with a chance at the $300,000 top prize. Fifteen other persons will vie for the jackpot and a consolation prize of $50,000.

The drawing, held a day early because Thursday is Thanksgiving, marks the first time since the lottery began that no $10,000 prizes will be awarded. In the mathematical system used to determine the prize structure, it takes at least 20 qualifiers before any $10,000 prizes are given.

Draft resister to speak at Harper

A Chicago area draft resister who spent two years in Canada after refusing induction to protest the Vietnam War will speak at Harper College Wednesday.

Steve Grossman, who has lived in Toronto and worked on "Amex" the newspaper for American draft resisters, will discuss President Ford's Amnesty program.

Grossman will speak at 1 p.m. in Room E-107 at the college. His visit is being sponsored by the college veteran's club.

Tears of joy flow for Paddock Junior Misses

The tears flowed Sunday night at Buffalo Grove High School when Penny Fukuya and Donna Neukuckatz were crowned Paddock Junior Misses for 1974-75.

But they were tears of happiness shed by the winners. Both girls walked away with $500 scholarships and opportunities to compete in the state pageant next month.

Miss Neukuckatz received an additional $100 for scoring highest in scholastic achievement.

Miss Fukuya, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matsy Fukuya, 515 Dara James Rd., Des Plaines, and a senior at Forest View High School, performed a solo on the flute for her talent presentation.

MISS NEUKUCKATZ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Neukuckatz, 7 Lynnbrook Ln., Prospect Heights, and a senior at Wheeling High School, staged a song-and-dance routine to "Much More" from the musical "Fantastics."

Runnersup were Mary Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jenkins, 607 S. Walnut St., Arlington Heights, and Elizabeth Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Walters, 963 Garden Ln., Wheeling. Both girls received $250 scholarships. Mary is a senior at Rolling Meadows High School and Elizabeth attends Wheeling High School.

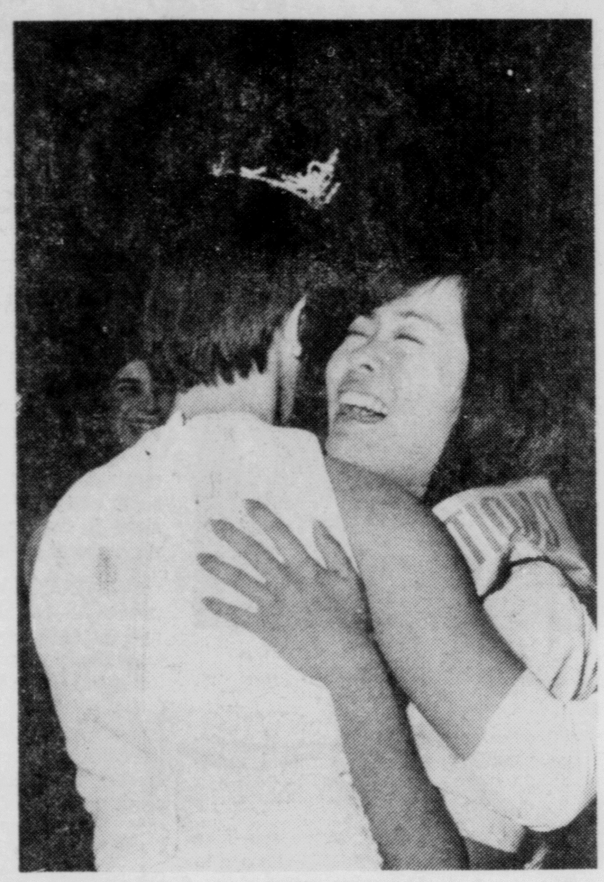
For her piano and vocal medley "I Believe in Music," Miss Jenkins placed first in the performing arts and received an additional monetary award of $100.

THE AWARDS were presented by Robert Y. Paddock, executive vice president of Paddock Publications Inc., which annually sponsors the local pageant.

He was assisted by Anne Chalikis, chairman and director of the pageant, and Ingrid Stumpfhauser, one of last year's Junior Misses who emceed the pageant with Tom Stutzman, a senior at Rolling Meadows High School.

The 24 finalists who performed Sunday were chosen through personal interviews from 107 contestants who entered the pageant earlier this fall.

Five past local Junior Misses have gone on to capture the state title.



THE CROWN IS TRANSFERRED. Grabbing Ingrid Stumpfhauser, last year's Junior Miss, for support, Penny Fukuya holds back tears of joy as she is selected one of two Paddock Publications Junior Misses.

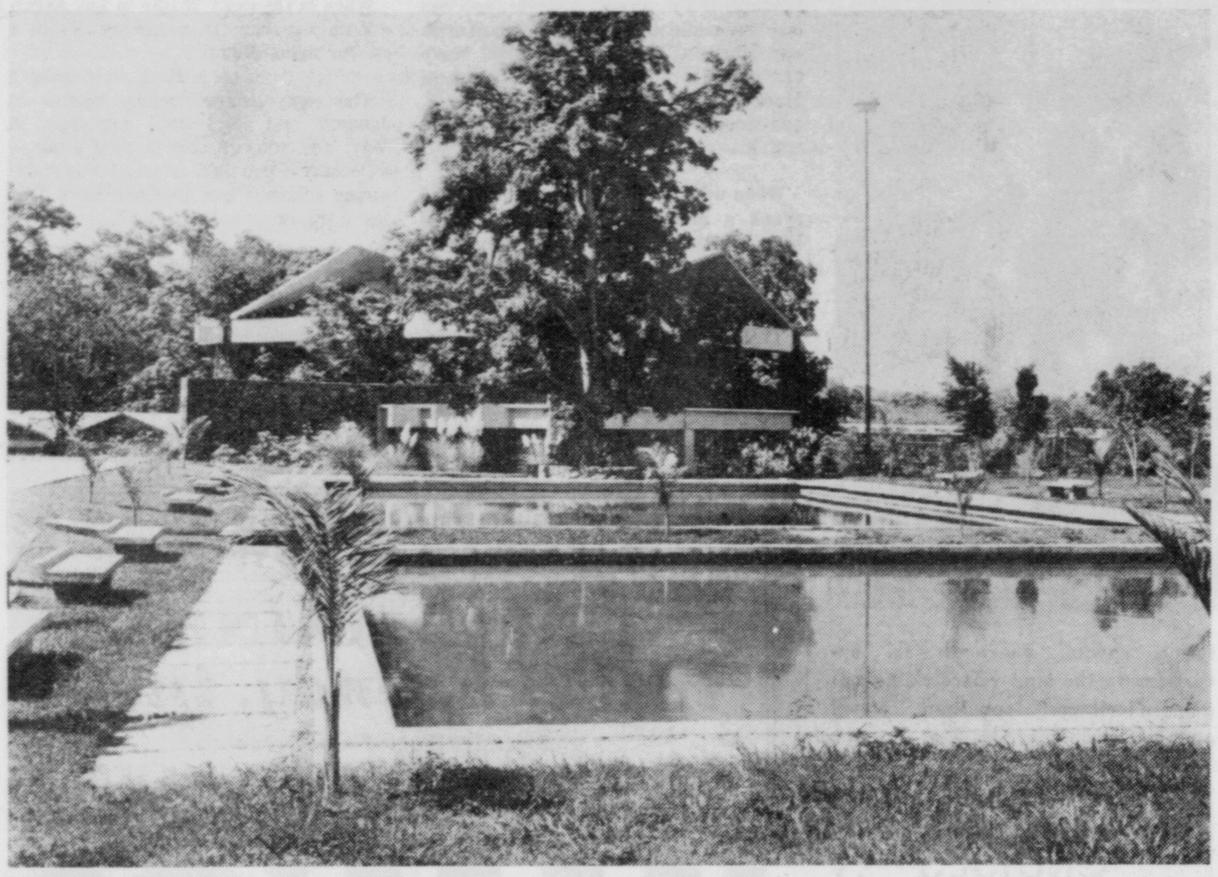
Would you believe Mexico under $10 a day



MEXICAN HIDEAWAY where American tourists can stretch their dollars. This hotel in Oaxtepec, a newly popular spa that was once a winter residence of the Emperor Montezuma, 56 miles south of Mexico City, is one of many "off-the-beaten-track" places where accommodations are unbelievably low-priced.

Vacation in Mexico for less than $10 a day?

It can be done, according to the Mexican National Tourist Office, by staying in little-known but delightful spots with clean, unbelievably low-priced accommodations ranging as low as $1.60 a day for a double room with bath, or $8 with three meals.

Tourists can reach these "off-the-beaten-track" places by car or via Mexico's excellent intercity bus system (at about one cent a mile first class). Most of the bargain spots are not scheduled airline or railroad stops.

Recently the Mexican Government Tourist Council did a rundown on low-priced accommodations in the states of Mexico (west and north of Mexico City) and of Morelos and Guerrero to the south. This area includes Mexico's most famous — and potentially most expensive — tourist route. Following are their recommended bargains:

State of Mexico

Valle de Bravo — A small, former mining town on Lake Avandero, 90 miles west of Mexico City, this area has a woodland setting, golf course, fine black bass fishing and all water sports. There are three American plan hotels, one with a bar, another with a swimming pool. Costs range from $12.50 to $18.50 for a double. There are two European Plan hotels, one with a restaurant, another with a swimming pool, for $4.85 to $6.15, double.

Toluca — The state capital, Toluca is unusually clean and well laid out, 40 miles west of Mexico City. Surrounded by craft villages, it is famous for its huge Friday Indian market. It has nine European Plan hotels and motels range in size from nine to 87 rooms, in facilities from room-with-bath only to restaurant, bar, elevator, room telephones and heating equipment for the odd cool night, and priced from $2 to $6.15, double.

San Juan Teotihuacan — Adjacent to the magnificent Pyramids of Teotihuacan, this resort is 36 miles northeast of Mexico City. A seven-room American Plan inn with garden, enclosed parking, and electric heaters at $17.60 double is in town. (This spot could be used as a base to explore Mexico City, missing only lunch but saving considerably on other meals and equivalent lodging expenses in the capital. The same applies to Toluca.)

Tenancingo — Twenty-seven miles south of Toluca, Tenancingo is an important rebozo weaving center, also noted for tropical hardwood and palm-reed furniture. There are two European Plan hotels of seven and 19 rooms charging $2.20 and $1.60 double, respectively.

Ixtapan de la Sal — This is one of Mexico's most famous mineral water spas, 120 miles southwest of Mexico City. The two major resort hotels here are well over the Tourist Council survey limit, but there also are seven American Plan hotels from five to 36 rooms with rates from $8 to $14.50, double, and two European Plan establishments of four and nine rooms, respectively, at $8 and $5.30, double.

State of Morelos

Cuautla — A semi-tropical, thermal spring resort as popular with the Mexicans today as it was with the Aztecs and the Conquistadores, Cuautla is 68 miles southeast of Mexico City, 30 miles east of Cuernavaca. It has 11 European Plan hotels of nine to 27 rooms for $3.10 to $6.40, double. Several have swimming pools, trailer facilities, restaurants and bars. Also, there are five American Plan hotels with 13 to 110 rooms, ranging from $8.30 to $13.20, double, with a wide range of facilities.

Oaxtepec — A newly popular spa that once was a winter residence of the Emperor Montezuma, this town is 56 miles south of Mexico City. The Mexican Institute of Social Security has built a large vacation complex here. For non-Mexicans, there is a 12-room, American Plan hotel, with restaurant, bar, swimming pool, golfing privileges and parking facilities at about $13.50 double.

Tesquesquitengo — On a small natural lake about 70 miles south of Mexico City, this spot is increasingly popular with water sport fans. Of the resort's three hotels, the smallest (32 rooms) costs about $13.50 American Plan, double, and another offers a choice of European or American Plan, with the minimum-maximum range for each straddling the Tourist Council survey limits: $4.40 to $11 European Plan and $17.60 to $26.40 American Plan. The smaller hotel has a restaurant and bar, the latter a restaurant, swimming pool, room telephones and air conditioning.

Tehuixtla — Tehuixtla is a spa on the bank of Amacuzac River, 35 miles from Cuernavaca. It has a 32-room, American Plan hotel with restaurant, bar, swimming pool and parking facilities. Rates: $12.35 double.

State of Guerrero

Iquala — Famed for its goldsmiths' work in filigree and its Friday market (pottery and basketry), this is 23 miles south of Taxco and has seven European Plan Hotels with rates from $2 to $6.25 double. One features a restaurant and bar.

Chilpancingo — The state capital and 62 miles south of Iquala, Chilpancingo has four European Plan hotels from $3 to $5, double. One hotel has a restaurant and another a restaurant, bar and swimming pool.

Zihuatanejo — This town is on the Pacific 149 miles north of Acapulco by paved road. It is destined to be the new "in" resort. It's almost enclosed bay offers fine swimming, skin diving and fishing. Three European Plan hotels (four to six rooms each) charge $4 to $5, double. Four American Plan hotels charge $10 to $20, double. Two American/European Plan hotels charge less than the Tourist Council survey maximums either way.

Pools, courts, golf courses

Palm Springs all ablossom with delights

by MURRAY J. BROWN

PALM SPRINGS, Calif — The desert blooms in southern California year round these days.

It blooms not only with dates and figs and other erotic fruits and flora but also with swimming pools, tennis courts, golf courses, hotels, housing — and tourists.

Take this desert resort about 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles, for instance. Its natural hot mineral springs were a mecca for ailing Indians for centuries but it was hardly more than a cluster of adobe huts when first discovered in the 1930s by movie stars seeking to escape for a while from the glitter and glamour of Hollywood.

TODAY, PALM SPRINGS can boast of 5,000 swimming pools, more than 200 tennis courts, 34 golf courses, about 200 hotels, a population of 25,000 and 1.5 million visitors annually. And air conditioning has helped make it a year-round vacation site.

It still is a popular retreat for celebrities from the world of entertainment. Bob Hope has a home here. So do Frank Sinatra, Debbie Reynolds and Doris Day.

For despite its booming popularity as a tourist destination, Palm Springs has not gone touristic. There still are no high-rise hotels blotting out the desert sun or the view of the nearby mountains.

Neon signs are prohibited, and so are blinking, flashing and moving signs. There are no shlocky souvenir shops and after-dark entertainment is low-key.

PALM SPRINGS offers a wide variety of accommodations, from budget-priced small hotels to high-rate resort complexes of up to 500 rooms. Most of the bigger ones have swimming pools, saunas and therapeutic baths in addition to a wide range of recreational and other facilities.

Long popular is the Palm Springs Spa, built over the site of the Indian hot springs which gave this oasis in the Coachella Valley its name. The springs and land still are owned by the Agua Caliente Hot Water Indians who leased them to the Spa for 99 years.

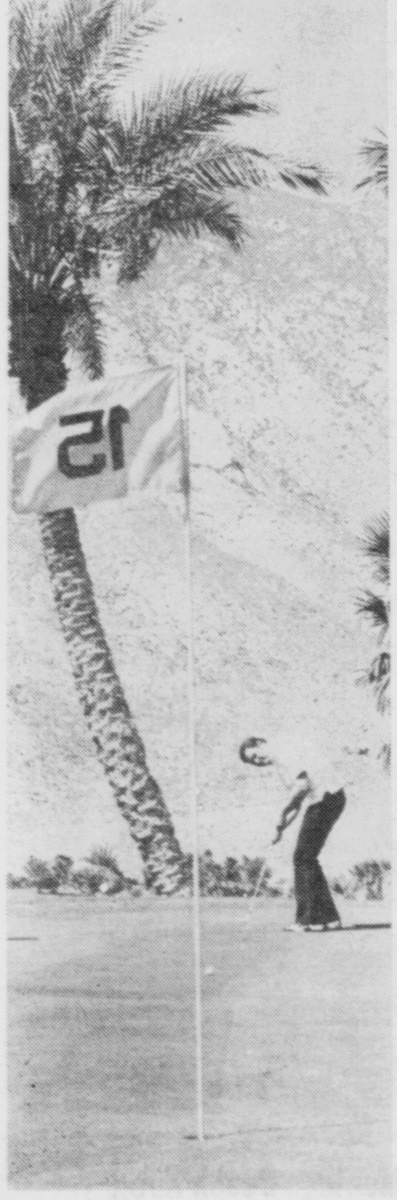
In fact, every other square mile of land in the desert community is owned by the Indians.

DURING MY VISIT, I received a preview inspection of the newly renovated Canyon Hotel Racquet and Golf Resort—opened several weeks later — operated by Americana Hotels for the new Japanese owners. I also was given a fill-in by Tom Voss of the Convention and Visitors Bureau on the Smoke Tree Hilton and Tennis Club and other future construction.

I drove down from Los Angeles via the San Bernardino Freeway (Interstate 10) and California 111. The trip took about two hours; the return trip was more than three hours because of heavy weekend traffic.

Palm Springs also can be reached by air. It is 4½ hours from Chicago.

(United Press International)



PICTURESQUE PUTT — With gorgeous scenery and warm, sunny weather, even the long putts don't seem to bother golfers in Palm Springs, Calif.

Airlines urge: send packages to avoid having them opened

With the holiday season approaching, airlines are urging travelers to send gift-wrapped packages instead of carrying them on board.

Since gift-wrapped packages carried on board will be inspected, delays can be avoided by:

- Packing wrapped packages in checked luggage instead of carrying them aboard.
- Considering using the small package counter service provided by most airlines. Packages weighing up to 50 pounds may be brought to the ticket counter 45 minutes before departure. They can be picked up 30 minutes after arrival. Larger packages may be sent by air freight.
- Checking in early. Plan to be at the airport at least 45 minutes before flight time to allow for check-in and security procedures.
- Using identification tags on luggage, both inside and out.
- Tearing off all old destination tags.

JAMAICA

This winter leave your cares at home and come to Jamaica. Trade your snow shovels for a palm-ringed white sand beach. This isle in the Caribbean has something for everybody: 18 hole championship golf courses, deep sea fishing or just lazing in the sun. By night Jamaica comes alive to the beat of Calypso music and before you know it, you'll be trying the Limbo.

I just returned from 6 days in Ocho Rios and Montego Bay and will be happy to answer your questions and help you with your plans.

Travel lore

You can ski where it all started

Skiing began in Norway several thousand years ago. The oldest known proof is the famous rock carving depicting a skier, made at Rodoy in Nordland more than 4,000 years ago.

One of the most famous Norwegian skiers immigrated to the U.S. and as "Snowshoe Thompson" made skiing history by carrying the mail on skis across the Sierra Nevada mountains every winter from 1856 until the first railroad was opened in 1869.

Four one-week ski excursions featuring the cross-country trails and downhill slopes of Norway are being offered by Scandinavian Airlines for the winter months of January, February and March for as little as $99 per person, plus air fare. Tour prices, based on double occupancy, include transfers, accommodations, luggage handling, taxes and service charges en route.

Norway is touting other great ski holidays too, including several ski touring trips.

SKI TOURING, of course, is the way most Norwegians ski. Pass any hotel right after breakfast and you'll see skis fastened outside.

Touring is such a popular sport in Norway that many towns and villages provide flood-lit trails for evening trips.

Incidentally, Norwegians differentiate between ski touring, which they call "skitur," and cross-country skiing ("langrenn"). They think of the latter as competitive sport.

Ski touring is a family affair in Norway. You realize this when you see all the gadgetry available for children — even for tiny tots. Norwegian youngsters are "born with skis on." Mom and Dad put their toddlers on skis as soon as they can walk. And even before that, Dad will take the little one along when he skis — with the child securely placed in a plastic sled.

PEOPLE OF ALL AGES can enjoy ski touring. Norway has plenty of easy skiing terrain for beginners, and more advanced skiers have no problem finding challenging areas.

The equipment you need for ski touring is completely different from what you use for alpine skiing. The difference in weight alone is about 14 pounds in favor of ski-touring gear. It's also inexpensive and lasts for years.

In Norway all major ski centers provide marked trails for ski touring. They're usually packed regularly by special machines and marked with colored ribbons to designate the different trails. This network of trails provides a great variety of skiing terrain. You can actually spend days at the same resort without once having to retrace your own steps.

If you want to do your Norway ski touring at a resort offering a big choice of hotels and lots of apres-ski activities, consider Geilo on the Bergen railroad or Lillehammer (including Nordseter) on the Dovre railroad.

OTHER RECOMMENDED centers are Gol and Ustaoset on the Bergen railroad, and Oslo, the only capital city in Europe which also is a winter sports center.

However, since ski touring can be fun without a lot of frills — and even without ski lifts — you can find rest and relaxation at practically any hotel or ski lodge which has snow outside its door.

Another popular snow sport in Norway is ski touring with a dogsled team. You ski from one mountain lodge to another — helped along by specially trained dogsled teams. Each team includes five huskies trained to pull a sled with about 300 pounds of luggage.

You don't have to be an expert skier to take this dogsled route — but a little experience as well as being in good physical shape can help.

Northwest suburban travel agents have brochures and information on ski trips to Norway. They also can tell you about "A Day on the Norwegians," which is a free program from now until April — and an "Oslo Weekend" at a greatly reduced price.

SKI TOURING is a family affair in Norway where the children are practically "born with skis on." Most toddlers are put on skis as soon as they can walk. Scandinavian Airlines is offering special one-week ski excursions to the land where skiing began. Northwest suburban travel agents have the details.

Tea can help you conquer 'Montezuma's revenge'

We are taking our first trip to Mexico in February and we're already worried about "Montezuma's Revenge." Can you suggest a list of medicines to take along?

Mrs. W.A., Des Plaines

Ask your doctor for a prescription for Lomatil. If you forget, however, you can buy the medication across the counter in any Mexican "farmacia." A local Mexican cure for "tourist trot" is a cup of Manzanilla tea. The natives swear by it, and since we've had our own experience with it — we do, too!

When we were in Jamaica last year we drank a marvelous liqueur blended of Blue Mountain coffee and something else. It was delicious but now I can't remember the name of it.

Mrs. T.R., Buffalo Grove

That's Tia Maria and the other ingredient is aged cognac. Another Jamaican liqueur is Pimento, which is great for a ladies' lunch. It's much too sweet for some people's taste, however.

The trial of Galileo has been transformed into a contemporary television news documentary by students at St. Viator High School.

Several students in the school's science program produced, wrote, directed and edited the 30-minute film, which includes humorous commercials. The acting was performed by students and teachers. Primary directors of the project were seniors Jim Gawne of Prospect Heights, John Turek of Arlington Heights and Rich Zak of Elk Grove Village.

The students are studying the Renaissance and Reformation periods in their science, English, social studies and religion classes. The studies include the work of scientist between 1450 and 1750 and how their religious beliefs affected their scientific pursuits.

The Rev. John Milton, science teacher, said he plans to show the film during Dec. 1 open house for prospective freshmen and their parents.

Trumping late makes it ruff

The famous playwright and wit George Kaufman once said that there were two ways to tell when a certain player held a good hand. First, his face would light up; then he'd misplay it.

South's face lit up like a Christmas tree and it didn't take him 10 seconds to boom out his seven-spade bid.

It took him even less time to misplay it and go one down. At tricks two and three he cashed the ace and king of hearts. Then he ruffed a heart; returned to his hand with a second club and tried to ruff another heart. Unfortunately for him, that mean old East overruffed and the grand slam had left permanently for never-never land.

How did South misplay the hand?

He was right in trying to ruff two hearts; he was wrong in how he went about doing it.

South should cash just one high heart and ruff the second one. Then back to his hand to ruff another. Then he would cash dummy's queen of trumps; get back to his hand by ruffing a club or diamond. Either suit would go through. Then he could draw trumps and claim.

PBS economist sees a brighter day

by Frank S. Swertlow

NEW YORK — Louis Rukeyser, the Public Broadcasting Service's blue-chip economist, is bullish on America. He thinks people should be investing in stocks now.

"I think that the rich people of 1984 are buying stocks in 1974," said Rukeyser, the host of PBS' weekly look at the stock market, "Wall Street Week in Review." "Right now, some of the highest quality stocks are selling on a par with many over-the-counter stocks, and they are a good investment. I'm not saying that they won't be selling low next month, but a decade from now they will be a lot higher."

Each Friday Rukeyser and his guests, who have included the presidents of the New York and American stock exchanges, analyzes the market's ups and downs. However, the program, aired live from WMPM in Owing Mills, Md., is not meant to be a buyer's guide to specific stocks.

"I'M NOT A tipster," said Rukeyser. Nevertheless, investors and noninvestors must like the advice they get — WSWR is one of the top shows on PBS and is aired on 225 stations, including Fairbanks, Alaska and Guam.

So far this season, WSWR has discussed former President Nixon's economic policy, the airline industry and inflation. This Friday's show is entitled, "Stocks: Future Growth."

One of the program's key ingredients is the ease with which Rukeyser handles the bulls and the bears on his show. Their complex and sophisticated jargon is often simplified by Rukeyser's wit and pointed questions.

RUKEYSER'S EXPERTISE as an interviewer is aided by 11 years as a newsman and foreign correspondent with the Baltimore Sun. He later became ABC News Paris correspondent and the network's London bureau chief. His assignments included the coverage of the 1967 Middle East War and the opening of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

In 1968, Rukeyser returned to ABC's headquarters in New York to begin five years as TV's first network economics editor. WSWR was started in November 1970 on the eastern educational network and went national in January 1972.

Last year, Rukeyser left ABC to devote all his time to "Wall Street Week" and other ventures. He has just finished a book on the stock market, "How to Make Money in Wall Street" and will appear on an NBC special on the economy on New Year's day.

ALTHOUGH MANY financial experts are predicting a depression that might match the darkest days of the 1930s, Rukeyser is more optimistic about the future.

"I don't think there will be a '30s depression," he said. "We've been in a recession for some months, and it will deepend before it improves. But I think we have certain safeguards that are built into the system that would prevent it.

"But by the end of next year, the biggest problem facing the country will be inflation, and I think that will be around for the entire decade. I really don't think that any politician of either party can come to grips with this problem. Unemployment will continue and so will high prices, and politicians will just look for quick solutions, which can only make the situation worse."

New films series for women

A new series of films for women will be shown Thursdays at 1 p.m. at Oakton Community College, according to Patricia Handzel, coordinator of the college's Women's Resource Outreach Center.

The outreach center program, which operates on a rotating basis among six locations in Niles and Maine Townships, is set up on Thursday afternoons from noon to 4 p.m. in Building 2, Room 223 on the Oakton campus, Oakton and Nagle, Morton Grove.

"Where Mrs. Walley Lives," a story of the conflicts which can arise between generations, will be shown Dec. 5. Two films dealing with loneliness, "Those Who Mourn" and "Each Day That Comes," will be shown Dec. 12. The first presents a young woman struggling with grief at the death of her husband; the latter portrays an unmarried woman, disturbed by thoughts of what her life might have been.

TWO "JUST FOR FUN" films to be offered Dec. 19 are "Television Land" and "Girls in Danger," nostalgic histories of television and the movies.

"The Modern Woman: The Uneasy Life," a documentary which explores the feelings of women about the various roles possible today, will be shown Jan. 9. On Jan. 16, the series will present "The World and Work of Barbara Scarpione," which gives viewers a look at women as artists.

Admission to the films is free. For further information on the films or on the Outreach Center readers may contact Mrs. Handzel, 967-5120.

'Back to School' workshop

"Back to School," a workshop for women considering returning to or entering college, will be offered by the Harper College Women's Program Friday, Dec. 6, and again on Monday, Dec. 9, at the college.

Focus of the workshop is on college in general, not only Harper. Participants are urged to raise their concerns and interests as they relate to enrollment in any college or university.

The Dec. 6 workshop (Section 001) will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the college board room. Tuition is $7.50, including luncheon and optional pre-admission counseling in the afternoon.

The Dec. 9 session (Section 002) will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the board room. Tuition for this session is $3.

To register, women should indicate section and send name, telephone, address, Social Security number and birth date, with a check for the correct tuition, to Admissions Office, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle Roads, Palatine, Ill. 60067. Reservations may be made by calling 397-3000, ext. 230.

Child care for the daytime workshop is available for additional charge. Prior registration must be made by calling 397-3000, ext. 248.

Harper exhibits winning prints

Winning prints from the first Illinois Print Commission exhibit, entitled "Illinois Printmakers I," are now on public exhibition at Harper College. The show is on the first floor of Building F through Dec. 10.

"Illinois Printmakers I" is made up of 23 prints commissioned by the Illinois Arts Council. The artists were winners of the council's first Illinois Print Commission Program, a juried competition in which the winners received an honorarium to create a new print edition specifically for the program.

The prints are now part of the arts council's touring exhibitions which will circulate throughout the state upon request from art organizations and schools for two years. The prints will then be donated by the IAC to Illinois institutions which have print and drawing collections.

The exhibition contains works by artists from various locations throughout Illinois and represents a survey both of the quality of works presently being done in Illinois and the various printmaking methods. The winners were selected from 200 applicants.

Methods differ to toast pumpkin, sunflower seeds

Dear Dorothy: Do you have a good recipe for toasting pumpkin and sunflower seeds? I seem to be doing a lousy job. — Phyllis Holland

The two methods in my file are different for the two seeds. Here they are: To two cups of pumpkin seeds, add one and one-half tablespoons of melted butter and one and three-fourths teaspoons of salt. Mix well. Spread in a shallow pan and bake in a slow oven (350 degrees) until crisp and brown.

For raw, hulled sunflower seeds, stir one cup of seeds with two teaspoons of salad oil, put on a cookie sheet and put in a 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Stir every five minutes. When brown, drain on paper towels and sprinkle with salt. You're on your own on these. Vitamins and minerals, yes, but too many calories for me.

Dear Dorothy: This may help the reader make meat loaf without eggs for her daughter who is allergic to them. We had this problem and solved it by mixing all the other ingredients for the meat loaf before adding eggs. Put some of the eggless mixture in a custard cup to bake separately. Cheer up, Reader, your daughter will probably outgrow the egg allergy. — I. Spring

Dear Dorothy: Maybe others will be interested in how I save geraniums for next year. I shake off the dirt and tie the plants with soft rags to hang with the roots up. They hang in the basement where they can't freeze and there isn't too much light. In the spring, they can be put right back into the ground. — Celia Campbell

Dear Dorothy: Did you know that if you beat an egg white to the same texture as the cream you are whipping and combine the two carefully and smoothly, you can put whipped cream on a cake 'way ahead of when you expect to use it — and it will not run? — Josie Feldman

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Safety tips for holiday

Thanksgiving will be lots more fun if certain precautions are taken to make sure the house is safe from fire and the food safe from spoiling.

Home safety advice comes from Allstate Insurance Co.:

- Curtains, dish towels, paper and other flammable items should not be near the stove.
- Exhaust hood and ductwork should be free of grease.
- Spark screen on the fireplace should be free of damage and securely in place.
- There should be plenty of large ashtrays available for smokers.
- Metal trays should be kept beneath fondue pots and chafing dishes.
- Air should circulate freely around TV and hi-fi to offset overheating.
- Home wiring must be adequate to carry extra electrical loads.
- Overnight guests should be reminded of "no smoking in bed."
- Hair spray and other flammable sprays should not be used when smoking.

To be sure the holiday meal is properly cooked and preserved this advice comes from the city sanitarian of Rolling Meadows:

- Fresh poultry, stuffings, etc., should be cooked to heat all parts to at least 165 degrees F. with no interruption of the cooking process. Poultry stuffing should be cooked separately.
- Frozen turkey should thaw in the refrigerator at a temperature below 45 degrees for one to two days depending upon weight.
- Leftovers should be kept hot or cold or thrown out. If any doubt, it's best to throw them in the garbage.

Saxons, Pirates open with wins on league mats

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Schaumburg and Palatine were the first ones out of the starting gate as the 1974-75 Mid-Suburban League wrestling campaign was launched amid a flurry of non-conference combat over the weekend.

The Saxons spoiled the entry of Hoffman Estates to the varsity scene 31-21 on the Hawk mats Friday. The Pirates clipped hosting Forest View Saturday, 39-15.

Hoffman fell behind 24-0 to the defending conference meet champs but rallied through the heavier weights in an effort to make coach Angie Testone's loop debut a memorable one. The sophomore-studded Hawk lineup captured five of the final seven bouts after forfeiting at 105 and succumbing to the impressive showings of four Schaumburg vets in the early going.

Mark Zeller at 98 pounds and state finals vet Terry Ruddy at 112 sandwiched pins around Mark Rovnyak's forfeit win and Joe Hannon and Ron Kuchnia followed up with 10-0 and 11-3 verdicts respectively at 119 and 126.

Bill Miller, Chad McCreary and Jim Thomas turned things around for the hosts, Miller at 132 and McCreary at 138 pulling out close decisions and Thomas winning by a third-round fall at 145.

Then it was Mark Mandel and Bob Jones countering with verdicts for the Saxons before Walt Porter pinned at 185 and heavyweight Bill Ward claimed a 7-2 win for the Hawks to close things out.

Palatine broke loose from a 6-6 deadlock on vet Paul Bordenkircher's narrow 8-7 triumph at 112 and were never threatened again. The tie had been forged on Pirate Jeff Sheppard's pin at 98 and a lightning fast counter move by John Gross of the Falcons at 105.

For returning sectional qualifier Gross, up a weight in his last prep season, the pin over Palatine at 0:58 was his second in less than a minute in as many days.

Only other View triumph later on was a shutout posted by Tom Andersen at 145. Palatine's winners included Brian LeGreca at 119, Mike McBride at 132, Bill Zimmerman at 155, Gary Leidolf at 185 and John Petko at heavyweight, the latter three all winning by fall.

Three other matches ended up in draws: Pirate Dave Hanetho and Kevin Smith at 126, Greg Warren of the guests and Terry Sullivan at 138 and Falcon Dave Swanson and Brian DeWyze at 167. For brand new Palatine varsity helmsman Rich Pietrini, it was a perfect start.

LOOKING FOR A WAY OUT of his perplexing situation is Kevin McKenna, Palatine's 6-foot-5 sophomore. Maine East's Mike Tietz (42) and Mark Mahoney seem to have McKenna pretty well bottled up. McKenna was high scorer for the night with 21 points but Maine won, 51-50.

Capt. 'Junie'

President's teammates recall grid days

by ROBERT M. ANDREWS

Silas McGee, retired longshoreman, stretched in the sunshine on a park bench in San Francisco and recalled that Thanksgiving Day in 1930 when his old high school football team, captained by Gerald R. "Junie" Ford Jr., won the Michigan state championship in a blizzard:

"Junie was a sight to behold, a big shock of blond hair, and he hollered at us, 'Come on fellas!' It was like a clarion call to battle, just like the cavalry in the movies."

Ford played center for South High School in Grand Rapids, Mich., and McGee, the only black on the team, played left end that day the Trojans entertained their archrivals — "a bunch of tough Polish kids" — from across town at Union High.

Both teams were unbeaten and untied after eight games.

"It was freezing cold, with 6 to 8 inches of snow on the deck, uh, the gridiron. Jeez, it was cold. The game ended in a scoreless tie," McGee said.

But it was discovered a few days later that Union's fullback had previously signed a contract to play professional baseball. Union had to forfeit the entire season, and Ford's team was declared state champion.

McGee is one of 23 survivors of the 30-man South High team of 44 years ago who plan to gather Thursday for their annual reunion at Thanksgiving Day brunch. It traditionally is held each year in Grand Rapids, but this time they will meet at the White House, where team captain Ford is President of the United States.

"If they don't send me a ticket, I'm gonna grab me an armful of a freight train," McGee said recently. "That's my thing. I used to be a hobo." He said later he was only joshing.

"It's too damned cold to be riding a freight in November," he said. Instead, thanks to donations from friends, McGee will fly to Washington "top timber — I'm going first class."

Most members of the "30-30 Club" are flying or driving down from their native Michigan, but some are traveling from as far away as Seattle and Johannesburg, South Africa. All are paying their own way.

"Yeah, you bet I'm going," Edward A. Preston told UPI in Johannesburg, where he manages a New Jersey pipe manufacturer's South African subsidiary. He and his wife, Bonnie, will fly 9,000 miles. Ford H. Gettings, a Grand Rapids real estate executive who was the team's 21-year-old coach in 1930, said Ford "always has given 100 per cent" and the country is lucky to have him in the White House.

"Jerry was a perfectionist on the team," he recalled. "After a game — we didn't have movies to review in those days — he would meet with me and the rest of the team and review the big plays and the mistakes. His memory was flawless. During the years his integrity and honest have become more pronounced."

Preston, then a quarterback, said Ford was "bold, dedicated and intense" as team captain, but never lost his temper.

President Gerald R. Ford

"He figured before the start of the '30 season that we had a pretty good team, and he talked his father into letting 18 of us stay at the family's hunting camp in North Michigan. We had a three-week workout.

"There was no fooling around with Jerry. He wanted us in shape. He was a tremendous organizer with exceptional all-round talents."

Richard J. Zylstra of Chicago Heights, Ill., a Ford Motor Co. production supervisor who played fullback, said Ford was a "swell guy, honest, sincere and effervescent. He was a great leader and a great team player. He was one of the best centers, too. He sure could open up holes."

Said Zylstra: "I happen to be a registered Democrat, but I'll vote for him every time."

Dr. Allan R. Elliott, psychology professor at Clarion State College, Shippenville, Pa., said "there was little question who the leader of that team was — it was Jerry. Although I was quarterback, I consulted Jerry on plays. He was always straightforward, just as he is today. As a psychologist, I see him as one who inspires confidence and mutual respect."

"Jerry was a real good team player," said Leon A. Joslin of Seattle, a real estate man in Seattle who played right end opposite McGee. "There's nothing he wouldn't do for someone else. He always did more than his share."

"I wish everyone in the country knew him like we do and wouldn't pan him like some people do," said Sherman Coryell of Ada, Mich., a former South High principal.

McGee called Ford an "electrifying guy" who made friends easily.

"I don't think much of his politically expedient voting record on civil rights and labor, then again Harry Truman and LBJ didn't have such good records when they went to the White House.

"He's honest, he always calls 'em as he sees 'em . . . Jerry Ford is my boy."

Meadows swims to easy win over Maine North

Swimming Editor

Rolling Meadows swept to an easy victory but Forest View and Wheeling weren't nearly as successful in weekend non-league varsity swimming.

The Mustangs of coach Phil Pardun won both relays plus six individual firsts as they squashed Maine North, 111-57. Tom Stahnke and Gary Grunwald each swam three winning events.

In the other meets, Forest View lost at Niles North, 90-71, and Wheeling was no match for powerful Glenbrook South, going under, 116-64. The Wildcats had their only winning effort from diver Matt Barnett.

Back to Meadows which started fast and didn't slow down against Maine North. Grunwald, brothers Ken and Tom Stahnke plus Rick Siebert won the 200 medley relay. Grunwald picked up 50 and 100 freestyle victories. Tom Stahnke ran off with 100 butterfly and 200 individual medley honors.

Dan Nate captured 100 backstroke for the Mustangs and Ken Stahnke led the 100 breaststroke field. Nate, Roy Vollkommer, Steve Zimmerman and Joe Kafka won the 400 freestyle relay. Times were not available for any event.

Glen Adams placed second in both longer freestyles while Nate Swan second in 100 butterfly. Kafka in 100 freestyle and Rick Siebert in 50 freestyle.

Forest View earned victory points in just four of 11 events during the loss to Niles North. Kevin won both longer freestyle events, taking the 200 in 1:55.1 and 500 in 5:18.3.

Mike Zahakaylo, Jim Rohn, Tom Ciesielski and Mark Buczek got the Falcons a 200 medley relay victory in 1:53.2. Mark Oliver, Buczek, Oke Pearson and Redig won the 400 freestyle relay in 3:43.1.

The Falcons swam second in four events, Rohn twice in 50 freestyle, 24.9; and 100 butterfly, 1:08. Jeff Nitschneider placed second in diving and Oliver's 57.2 earned second in 100 freestyle.

In sophomore competition, Rolling Meadows beat Maine North, 118-29; Wheeling took Glenbrook South, 85-81; and Niles North stopped the Falcons, 85-74.

Varsity schedules head into fuller swing this Thanksgiving week. Today's only meet has Forest View at the Adlai Stevenson Relays, a 6:30 p.m. start.

St. Viator and Wheeling attend the Deerfield Relays (7 p.m.) Maine East hosts Proviso East (7 p.m.) and Maine West visits Proviso West (3:30 p.m.), all on Wednesday.

Two dual meets are set for Friday, Arlington at Thornwood West (7 p.m.) and Niles East against Rolling Meadows in the Buffalo Grove pool (1 p.m.).

One area meet is scheduled for Saturday, the 2:30 p.m. St. Viator Relays which includes Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. Forest View will swim at the St. Patrick Invitational. 2 p.m. Prospect and Elk Grove are destined toward the Wauwatosa (Wis.) Relays, 1 p.m.

Fitting end to prep year

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — Glenbrook North provided a fitting end to the first Illinois High School football championship playoffs, upsetting No. 1-ranked East St. Louis 19-13 with a touchdown in overtime.

Rockford East's hard-running backfield gained 366 yards and the Class 4A title in a 35-15 win over Normal Community Saturday.

West Chicago, ranked second among the smaller schools, overwhelmed Mount Carmel 32-0 for the Class 3A championship and No. 1-ranked Decatur St. Theresa outlasted Alexis for a 15-6 win and the 2A crown. In the 1A title game, Flanagan whipped Concord Triopia 13-8.

Greg Van Schaack plunged over from the one-yard line to give Glenbrook North the crown after the Spartans fought back to tie East St. Louis in the fourth quarter on a 50-yard pass from Don Broadbridge to Sam Poulos.

Glenbrook North staved off an East St. Louis drive in the final minute to put the game into overtime. Glenbrook North won the toss in the overtime. Pete Bohr gained two yards and a Flyers' penalty moved the ball to the two before Schaack took the ball over for the lead.

The Flyers then got the ball with a chance to tie or win. But the Spartans' defense held, throwing Brian Leonard for a four-yard loss on the first play and intercepting an East St. Louis pass in the end zone on the second.

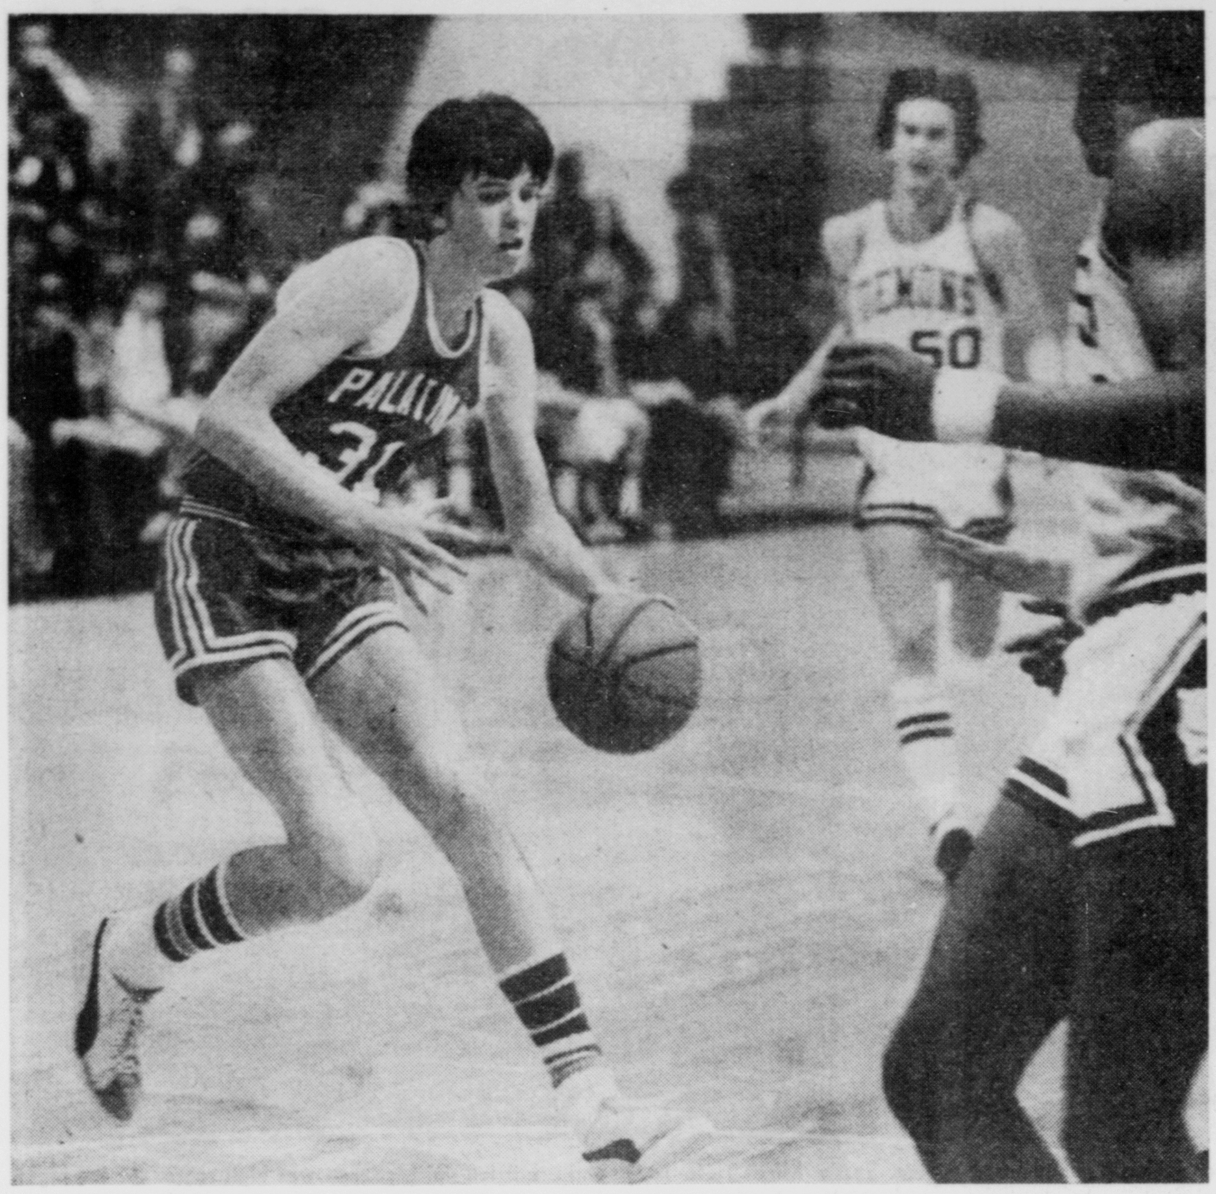
Ira Matthews accounted for more than half of Rockford East's 34 points. He scored on runs of 38 and 70 yards, and hauled in a pass from Dean Schlueter on a 41-yard play which resulted in a score.

Normal was in front only once, when quarterback Kurt Swearingen ran eight yards for a touchdown and passed to Todd Ashbrook for a two-point conversion and an 8-7 Normal lead.

West Chicago's Henry Antes, a standout in earlier playoff action, stood out once again in the Friday round of 1A, 2A and 3A games, rushing for 116 yards in 17 carries and scoring three touchdowns. Scott Hall, West Chicago quarterback, threw for two other scores to complete the touchdown barrage.

Marty Bushell led Decatur St. Teresa to its nine-point win over Alexis, scoring touchdown and an extra point kick and a two-point passing conversion after another score.

Defense was the key to the Flanagan-Concord Triopia game, but Greg Gundy moved the Flanagan offense with 92 yards in 24 carries. The Falcons' defense backed him up with four pass interceptions and recoveries on three of six Concord fumbles.



SIZZLING SOPH Kevin McKenna of Palatine (31) anticipates his next move against the Maine East defenders in last Friday's season opener. The 6-foot-5 Pirate sophomore hit 10 field goals and totaled 21 points in his varsity debut, but the Pirates fell 51-50, after leading by 11 in the fourth period.

Arlington now 5-0-1 after two wins in Metro hockey

by DICK ABRAHAMSON

Arlington Heights picked up two victories in the Northwest Division of Chicago Metro High School Hockey League action at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, beating Rolling Meadows on Thursday 4 - 2 and Lake Forest 8 - 1 on Sunday to take over sole possession of first place.

In Thursday's first place battle with Rolling Meadows, Arlington scored three unanswered goals after Rolling Meadows opened the scoring on a first period tally by Mike Shanley, assisted by Mike Retzer.

Billy McGuire continued his hot scoring pace, tying it up for Arlington, assisted by Jeff Gardner, and that was followed by unassisted goals from Tom Olcese and John Walsh.

Meadows made it 3-2 with 9:29 left in the third period when Russ Riandeau scored assisted by Mike Retzer and Buddy Wright. With 2:35 left, Jeff Gardner iced the Arlington victory assisted by Billy McGuire.

Scoring six goals in the third period, Arlington crushed Lake Forest 8-1 in Sunday action. For the game, Jeff Gardner had two goals and an assist; John Walsh two goals, two assists; Scott Whittier one goal, two assists; with single tallies for Tom Olcese, Larry Hermanson and McGuire again.

In other Sunday action, Rolling Meadows came back to beat Fremd 5-1 to stay within two points of first place.

Meadows took a 2-1 first period lead on goals by Randy Voss, assisted by Ed Byrnes and Mike Weber, assisted by Scott Glander.

Fremd's lone tally was scored by Tim Holland, with assists to Kurt Meyer and Mike Aquino. Unassisted goals by Mike Shanley and Mike Retzer, and a goal by Buddy Wright, assisted by Retzer, closed out the scoring. Fremd goalie Dave DeLeshe stopped 31 Meadows shots, 16 in a busy first period.

St. Viator scored three first period goals and held on to defeat Driscoll 3-2. Driscoll scored first on an unassisted effort by Mike Perillo. Dave Thompson, Viator's captain, tied it up with an unassisted goal, followed by Pat Frazier, assisted by Bobby Bettis, and Bettis assisted by Tommy McDonald. Driscoll came within one on a goal with 1:14 left but was unable to score again.

Hersey picked up its first victory after three ties, and moved into a tie for third place defeating Palatine 3-1, scoring once in each period. Bob Brush scored twice, unassisted and helped by Brad Smith and Steve Beck.

Beck meshed Hersey's other tally, assisted by Smith and Brush.

Palatine's only scoring came with 37 seconds left in the second period closing to 2-1 on a goal by Bob Greenhill, assisted by Mike Mikulan and Scott Zordan. Hersey's Bob Brush narrowly missed his hat trick when a penalty shot went wide to the left. Palatine goalie Scott Sprinkle cut down the angle with three seconds left on the clock.

In Thursday's second game, St. Viator lost a heartbreaker when Lake Forest scored as the buzzer sounded for a 5-4 final score.

After a scoreless first period, Tommy McDonald put Viator ahead assisted by Kevin Kosowski. Lake Forest tied it up and then Viator went up two goals when Len Jarocki scored unassisted and Kosowski tallied assisted by Mark Gustafson.

Lake Forest scored three straight to lead 4-3 but Viator tied it with 32 seconds remaining on a goal by Ron Menoni, set up by Jack McLorraine.

Action resumes next Sunday after the Thanksgiving holiday with four games at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, routes 12 and 83. A nominal $1.00 admission charge is payable at the door, with children under 12 admitted free. Good bleacher seating for 2500 spectators is available with plenty of free lighted parking.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

An 'extra' pregnancy

Four years ago I had a tubal ligation. Because I was only 31 and there was no medical reason for it, I had to go through a lot of red tape and even went to another state to get it done. Since then I have had my 12th living child. The pregnancy was normal, but she was a breech birth, and it was very hard on me.

The explanation given me by the doctors was the egg had fertilized around the tissue of the tubes. Now, I am anxious to find out what the chances of it happening are. I should add the pathologist report after birth confirmed the tubes are still cut and tied. I have several friends who have also had this operation and are worried it could happen to them.

If the tubes are cut and tied, there is no way a pregnancy can occur unless an ovum (egg) has already passed through the tube before the operation. That opportunity would be present only about a day after the operation at the most. There is a slight possibility of a tubal pregnancy limited to a couple of day's time.

Otherwise the egg has to pass through the tube to be implanted in the uterus. Some operations fail because the cut and tied tubes literally repair themselves. They reconnect even if the surgery was done perfectly. Remember your body is designed to correct injuries and nature regards such an operation as an injury. This occurs very rarely.

In a Food and Drug Administration study only one woman in 200 got pregnant in a year's time after a tubal ligation. That is about as good or better than you can expect from any birth control procedure.

Another reader recently wrote in about tubal ligation and stated she was now pregnant. She was concerned about whether her baby would be normal or not. There is no reason why a baby should have any greater chance of being abnormal when a pregnancy does occur after a tubal ligation.

* * ****

Could you tell me what should be done with a 12-year-old boy with one undescended testicle? He weighs 80 pounds and is thin.

Seven years ago he had a hernia operation on the same side as the undescended testicle. Could the scar tissue have prevented the testicle from coming down? Is it dangerous to have it go untreated?

See a doctor right away about correcting this. Most doctors agree that if the problem has not been corrected by 8 or 9 years of age the testicle should be lowered surgically.

If it is done too late, and you are already pushing your luck, the testicle will never be able to produce live sperm. Your son's ability to be a father will depend solely on the one descended testicle. So, if you want to help our son, don't delay any longer.

Many men have only one descended testicle and father children and othersise have no problems, but it is a risk you need not take. There is some chance that the undescended testicle will later develop a tumor. All factors considered, including the psychological ones, it should be corrected early in life.

Study links smoking, sudden death

DALLAS (UPI) — A team of doctors said cigaret smokers run a "very high risk" of sudden fatal heart attacks, but there appears to be no link between drinking and heart attack deaths.

Dr. Arthur L. Klatsky of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program in Oakland, Calif., told the American Heart Assn. conference of a study of 197 men who died within 24 hours of an attack.

"Cigaret smoking was positively associated with sudden cardiac death; coffee drinking, heavy aspirin use, and alcohol showed no statistically significant association," Klatsky said.

"The comparison of responses about cigaret smoking showed that current cigaret smokers seemed to face substantially greater risk of subsequent sudden cardiac death than those who stated that they do not currently smoke," he said.

HE SAID previous theories were that aspirin and limited alcohol drinking helped prevent sudden attacks. However, he said, the study showed no connection.

Also, he said, there was no direct link between persons drinking at least six cups of coffee per day and sudden death victims.

Klatsky said all of the men studied in the group had completed questionnaires during physical examination prior to their death and their answers were compared to a similar group of cardiac patients who did not die later of sudden attacks.

He said more than half the men had clinical evidence of heart disease prior to the deaths and the rest were found by autopsy to have heart disease.

State changes financial-aid programs

Legislative and administrative changes have been made in the major financial-aid programs of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission:

- Part-time students now enrolled in at least six credit hours of college work in any semester or quarter are eligible to receive assistance through the Monetary Award Program if they qualify on the basis of need.
- The maximum monetary award has been increased from $1,300 to $1,350 and is applicable only toward tuition and mandatory fees. Students must still apply for other sources of assistance at the institution they attend and through other state and federal programs for help in paying room and board and other costs.
- Monetary awards will now be made available for up to five years of undergraduate study or until a student receives a bachelor's degree. The extension of the entitlement from four to five years cannot be applied retroactively to students who have received degrees.
- Final application deadline has been set for Oct. 1, 1975.
- Half-time students are now eligible to participate in the Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program. The maximum loan for half-time students range from $500 to $1,250 depending on the student's year in school; loans for full-time students range from $1,000 to $2,500.
- The guaranteed-loan program now permits non-residents attending Illinois colleges, universities and vocational schools to participate. Previously only Illinois students were eligible.
- Borrowers do not have to begin repaying the principal of a guaranteed loan until nine months after they conclude their post-secondary studies, but interest must be paid by the borrower during the school years. For some students who qualify, the government will pay the interest until the student is required to assume repayment of principal.

Persons interested in obtaining applications for the monetary awards or guaranteed loans should write Illinois State Scholarship Commission, 102 Wilmot Rd., Deerfield, Ill. 60015.

Nursery rhyme characters come to life with games

"Jack be nimble,
Jack be quick . . ."

"Rub a dub dub,
three men in a tub . . ."

Wherever you find children at play, you're sure to find nursery rhymes, too. Almost as soon as a child learns to talk, he learns to recite the familiar rhymes. Some are lullabies or prayers, but most are chanted while playing games like hopscotch, jump rope or jacks.

"Nursery rhymes, especially those of Mother Goose, have charmed youngsters for generations," says William Garrity, president of Schaper Manufacturing Co., a leading maker of children's games. "Because of the special attachment youngsters have for nursery rhymes, we decided to give them a chance to see their favorite characters come to life through games."

So, this holiday season, new games — based on centuries-old characters — will be available for pre-schoolers. There's Jack Be Nimble, where players use color-coded pieces to build a candle; the object being who can make Jack jump over the tallest candle, and still land on his feet. The "three men in tub" will make an appearance, too, in the Rub A Dub Tub game. Here players try to be the first to get their butcher, baker, and candlestick maker into a wobbly washtub.

While nursery rhymes have been around for a long time, no one knows exactly how long. None has been found in written form before the time of England's Henry VIII, but some scholars say the rhymes can be traced back to ancient Iceland. And some say that counting rhymes, like "Eena, Meena, Mina, Moe," were used by the Druids to choose sacrifices for their religious ceremonies.

Mother Goose herself is a bit of a mystery. She could have been the Queen of Sheba. She could have been Queen Bertha, the mother of Charlemagne, who history recorded as having a foot the size, or shape, of a goose; or, perhaps another Queen Bertha, the wife of France's Robert II, whose child, legend says, was born with the head of a goose.

Most likely, Mother Goose was an American, Elizabeth Foster Goose. Mrs. Goose lived in Charleston in the 17th century, and she, like all grandmothers, recited the now-famous nursery rhymes to her grandchildren. Her son-in-law later published the rhymes.

In addition to the nursery rhyme games, characters and ideas from familiar phrases have also been brought to life by Schaper.

One most grade-schoolers are certain to enjoy is Cat In The Bag, based on the old saying, "don't let the cat out of the bag." A series of claws holds the cat down, and players lift these one-by-one until, like a jack-in-the-box, the cat jumps out.

Games like these are popular with children not only because they bring favorite fantasies to life, but since no reading skills are needed to play, they are easy to learn. And, since they have an unpredictable climax, children can play for hours without losing interest.

So the next time you hear children reciting "Jack be nimble," they may not be alone. Jack may be there with them.

Santa Claus

The familiar red suit and white beard can be credited to cartoonist

Who gave Santa his red suit, broad girth, white beard, ruddy cheeks and nose, fur-trimmed hat and coat?

Surprisingly enough, the donor was a political cartoonist.

The artist's name was Thomas Nast, cartoonist for Harper's Illustrated Weekly, who also created the now-famous symbols of the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

The figure of Santa that Nast drew in 1863, and perhaps earlier, has proved to be the definitive one, and even today the figure as drawn by Nast appears occasionally on Christmas greetings.

"Nast's image of Santa was extraordinary," says Mrs. Jeannette Lee, director of design at Hallmark.

"He gave Santa many of the qualities that have endeared him to children ever since, and we wouldn't dream of tampering very much with them today."

Nast first credited Santa with keeping books on good and bad children, having a Christmas toy workshop and reading letters sent to hime by children.

Perhaps it was the now-famous poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," by Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, that inspired Nast's illustration of Santa. In this children's classic of 1823, the right jolly old elf, who looked like a peddler with a pack on his back, was first described in print.

Nast followed Dr. Moore's description of Santa in several particulars, but many of his concepts were original.

At the time of Nast's Santa Claus drawings the nation was at Civil War, and families were separated. In a note to cheer both soldiers and their waiting families Nast drew "Santa Claus in Camp," for Harper's Weekly.

This earliest Santa was different from any artist's creations up till then. He was shown wearing stars and stripes of the Union and distributing gifts to soldiers. Actually, this Santa might have been meant as a representation of Uncle Sam also.

A later, equally moving Nast illustration featured a soldier's Christmas homecoming.

Born in 1840 in the tiny hamlet of Landau, Bavaria, Nast probably pictured Santa as the long-imagined Saint Nicholas of his childhood.

Albert Bigelow Paine, a friend and admirer of Nast, said the artist often revealed to him his love of the Santa illustrations. He later wrote in his biography of the cartoonist:

"His own childhood in faroff Bavaria has been measured by the yearly visits of . . . St. Nicholas . . . and the girlhood of the woman who was to become his wife (Sarah Edwards of New York) was intimately associated with brilliant and joyous celebrations.

"Nast's children later recalled there was always a multitude of paper dolls — marvelously big and elaborate, a race long since become extinct.

"HELLO, LITTLE ONE" was the title of this famed drawing of Santa by Thomas Nast. Nast, a noted 19th Century political cartoonist, was the first to illustrate Santa as a bearded, red-nosed jolly old man whose rotund figure was clothed in a fur-trimmed red suit.

"And these the artistic father — more than half a child himself at the Christmas season — arranged in processions and cavalcades, gay pageants that marched in and about those larger presents that could not be crowded into the row of stockings that hung by the family fireplace.

"It was a time of splendor and rejoicing — the festive blossoming of the winter season — and it was a beautiful and sturdy family that made Merry Christmas riot in the spacious New York home."

In Nast's day, the idea of some sort of Santa was not new to this country. He was introduced to North America by the early Dutch settlers and his name was St. Nicholas. The annual visit of this kind man, who was thought to have been a 4th Century bishop, was his feast day, Dec. 6.

By 1809, Washington Irving was describing Santa as a small Dutch citizen who looked much like Father Knickerbocker. Irving wondered how the poor old man could get to all the homes in a growing America on his horse, so he invented the famous reindeer-drawn sleigh.

Brighten Christmas spirits with $1-or less gift stuffers

A grab bag of fun-filled Christmas spirit — that's a stuffed Christmas stocking. No other Yuletide custom offers so many opportunities for imaginative gift-giving, whether you're aiming your gifts for fun, usefulness or both.

Why not hang a stocking for every member of the family, then set a $1 limit on the price of any gift dropped in. That way, you can afford to let even the youngsters get in on the shopping, and watch their Christmas spirits soar.

An often overlooked, bountiful source of $1-or-less stocking stuffers for the entire family is your local stationery store or the stationery department of the five-and-dime or department store. With the wide variety of "fun and functional" items available there, stocking stuffer shopping can be an inexpensive one-stop affair.

For the youngsters, there are pencil sharpeners in all shapes and colors. Novelty pencil sharpeners shaped like spiders, TV sets or airplanes are sure to please any school youngster.

For the little girl in the family, you might put a smile on her face as she corrects her mistakes by giving her erasers made in the shape of tiny Oriental dolls.

Stuff Dad's stocking with a $1-or-less pen-and-pencil caddy with a built-in sharpener or a stapler set, T-square, slide rule and staple remover to make his home office work easier.

For Mom, there are novelty note pads and magnetic memo holders for use in the kitchen, or a small photo album to keep all those memory-filled Christmas photographs in order.

And you're bound to please the teenage girl in your family with a telephone and address book or a one-year diary, complete with lock and key.

Among the many other stationery store stocking stuffers meeting the $1 limit are handy hand-size adding machines for Mom's grocery shopping, pocket dictionaries, and an almost limitless variety of other budget-priced gifts that you'll probably find your family still using when Christmas rolls around again next year.

PARCHEESI backgammon games by Scrabble, are very popular with children and adults alike. The game is manufactured by the Selchow & Righter company.

Select toys that are safe

With Christmas just around the corner, parents are beginning to converge upon the toy departments of their local stores.

Toys can be tokens of potential tragedy if not chosen with care, it can sometimes bring serious injury to a child. There are about 700,000 toy related injuries each year, according to government figures.

The Food and Drug Administration conducts intensive pre-Christmas toy safety campaigns to alert the public. They stress three important points: The need to buy with the child's safety as well as his enjoyment in mind. The need to match the toy to the child's age and development. (Many toys have age group labels) The need to read instructions and to be sure the child understahds how to properly use any toy that might cause injury through misuse.

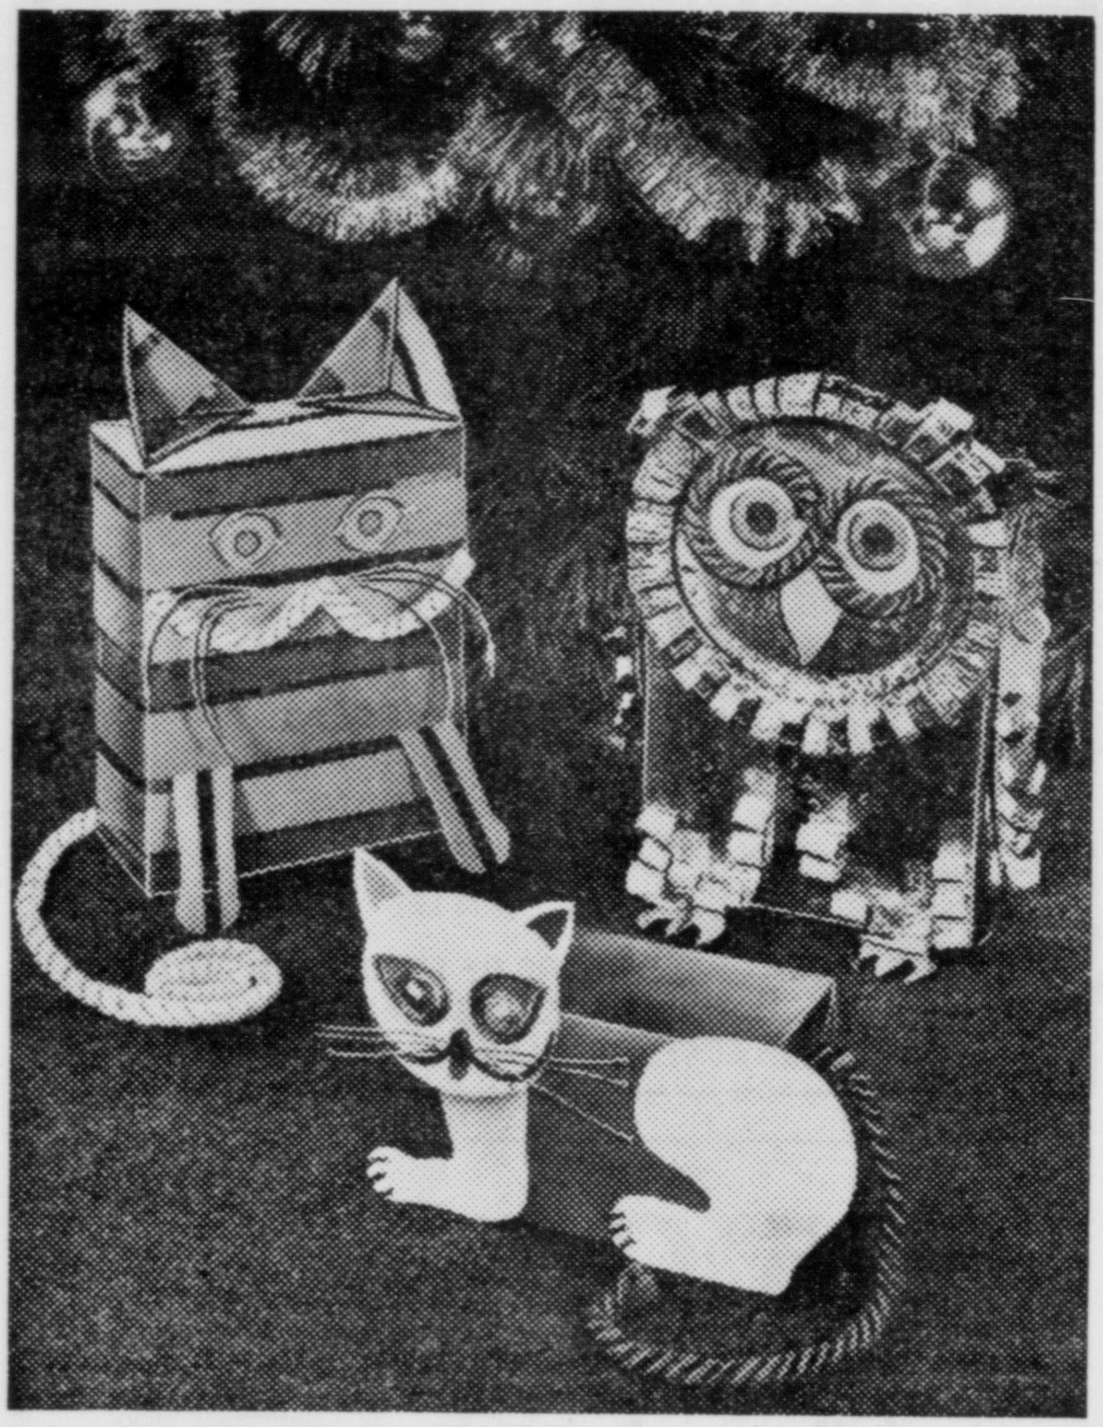
Package creation can be easy, fun



THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCATS add a distinctive note under the Christmas tree. Created by American Greetings designers, these cheerful packages add to the enjoyment of the gift itself.

Creating your own attractive and unusual package designs can be fun and easy during the busy holiday season, if you follow these suggestions from designers at the American Greetings Corp.

Select a table or countertop that is large enough for the package. Trying to wrap a package on a surface too small, or flexible, will make it difficult to get a smooth look.

Try to wrap most of your packages at the same time. That way, the materials and tools you need will be handy.

Create a signature that reflects the season, your taste and that of the recipient. You might want to use all foil papers this year; or perhaps, settle on a color scheme (green and gold, red and yellow, red and green, pink and red) so that all your papers and ribbons are coordinated You need not use the same papers, but try to have the colors in the same families.

While satiny ribbons are always festive, you might like to add a different note with bright chubby yarns or metallic string. You can also use pre-made bows and matched tags in festive groupings on the package.

Always measure your package before cutting the paper. Leave a few inches on each side. If the paper is too large, you'll wind up with bulky ends; if it's too short, you'll have to patch or discard the paper entirely.

If you are giving presents to children, consider giving them a special treat on the outside by wrapping the packages to look like animals. Almost any package size can act as the "body."

Easy animals to make are cats, dogs, owls, lions and lambs. For all animals, first cover the package in giftwrap. Select solid, printed foils, colorful stripes or whimsical patterns.

For the cat, add face details directly on the package with cord, chubby yarn and scraps of paper to match or contrast with the wrap. Cut feet from cardboard and cover with paper. Add a yarn tail and paper ears to complete.

For a slightly more elaborate feline, cut head outline from shirt cardboard. Add face details with paper and cord. Cut feet from cardboard and affix to package. A fluffy yarn tail completes the package. The wise old owl has a paper plate head, covered with shiny foil paper. Edges are cut and curled under to make feathers. Strips of paper are added at the top for ears. Yarn circles outline the eyes which are completed with three paper circles one on top of another.

Wings are from cardboard cut to shape and covered with foil. Feathers are added on the body and wings by cutting strips of paper and curling over a pencil.

Add a Christmasy package decoration, if you like.

You'll probably want to experiment with your own ideas for a family of animals or an entire menagerie. Be sure to allow uninterrupted time to work. You'll enjoy yourself more and your designs will be a unique addition under the tree.

TOADSTOOL HOLIDAY Creations, located in the Buffalo Grove Mall, features various holiday needs including gift boxes, candles, wrapping paper and a mailbox where kids can drop their letters for delivery to Santa Claus.

Special store for holiday season

Toadstool Holiday Creations is a special store for a special time of year. Located in the Buffalo Grove Mall, Dundee and Arlington Heights Roads, the 4,000 square foot store is seasonal, open from the middle of October to the middle of January.

The store specializes in Christmas and Hanukkah needs. They carry a complete line of cards, gift wrappings, paper wares, candles, dreidels and menorahs. Imprinted cards, matches and napkins can also be ordered.

"The store is very unique. There is not another store like it in the area," said Marge Sklencar, owner of both the Toadstool Holiday Creations and the Toadstool, also in the Buffalo Grove Mall.

The store features corn husk dolls, new item which many people are stringing to use as decorations for their Christmas trees. The Early American styling of the dolls is in keeping with the nation's bicentennial.

Thirty different Advent or Christmas calendars are available in the store or through various local churches that are selling the calendars.

A Christmas gift wrapping service, that last year wrapped 5,000 packages, will be available again this year. Christmas gifts purchased from the Toadstool are wrapped free of charge while a fee is charged for items that were purchased in other stores.

An added feature of the store is that since it is a substation of the Wheeling Post Office, it can accommodate the mailing needs of its customers. The post office, which keeps the same hours as the store, allows shoppers to do their mailing until 9 p.m. week nights as well as on Sunday.

Store hours are 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Barbie celebrates 16th birthday

Sweet 16 and — been hugged, kissed and adored by millions of children all over the world. That is what Barbie is in 1974 — 16 years old.

Since Barbie was first introduced to the children of the world in 1958, more than 80 million Barbie dolls have found their way into the hands of youngsters on just about every continent the world over. And Barbie continues to find her way into the hands of approximately six million new little girls every year, and 1974 will not be an exception. This makes Barbie the biggest selling toy in the world ever.

To commemorate Barbie's sixteenth birthday Mattel will be conducting a series of birthday parties to call attention to this momentous year. The first party, held in New York City during Toy Fair, entertained approximately 300 children — all patients at Bellevue Hospital. On the same day, New York City recognized Barbie as the world's most popular toy and commemorated her birth in New York at Toy Fair 1958 by renaming a portion of Seventh Avenue "Barbie Blvd." for the duration of Toy Fair. Parties have also been held in Hawthorne, California — Mattel headquarters — and in Washington D.C., the nation's capitol, where Mrs. Gerald Ford, wife of President, joined patients at The Hospital for Sick Children in the birthday celebration.

Barbie has come a long way since she was first introduced in 1958, originally as a fashion doll. Today, Barbie reflects the contemporary life styles familiar to all of us. Barbie is no longer content just to stand around and look pretty in a lovely designer dress. Like young women today, Barbie now also is an outdoor enthusiast and is active in many sports. Her outfits now include: camping gear, all kinds of outdoor sporting wear and clothes for just about every social and business activity. Barbie also has her very own camper, dune buggy, jet airplane, townhouse, swimming pool, beach bus and even a 10-speed bicycle.

Though Barbie is actually 16 years old, in the mind's eye of children that play with Barbie she is actually about 5 years older than the age of the child playing with her. This being the case, Barbie will probably never mature much beyond her 16 years, and in all probability though she does have a wedding dress in her wardrobe, will probably never actually get married. Barbie will continue to have her many friends which include: Ken, Brad, Skipper, Steffie, Francie, and P. J. The Barbie family will continue to grow and bring a great deal of pleasure to young children all over the world in years to come. Happy birthday, Barbie.

Gifts of beauty please ladies

Any woman on your Christmas list will appreciate receiving a gift that lasts long after the ties and tinsel are torn off the package. One good present that's convenient to buy and always gladly received is a "gift of beauty" from your local beauty salon.

No matter what her age, any woman will adore the luxury of being groomed and pampered after the hectic rush of the holiday season. The beauty experts at Helene Curtis suggest arranging a package of beauty services into a "gift certificate" that the salon will honor whenever the recipient desires.

For Mom, Grandma or a favorite friend, arrange a "beauty makeover" that includes an updated hairstyle and one of the new Uni-Perm automatic permanent waves. Its mild, programmed heat curls the hair gently in just six minutes withoug frizz or over-processing.

For a long-haired sister, daughter or niece, an appreciated gift from the local salon would be a "beauty shape-up" that includea s haircut by a pro together with a conditioning treatment to help restore damaged ends to a healthy condition.

If you are visiting the beauty salon before the holiday, you will also find it an excellent spot to shop leisurely for an array of beautifying items priced to suit even the smallest gift budget.

For instance, proper skin care is an important part of every woman's winter beauty regimen, so you might want to consider a selection from the Balsam Body Basics collection.

This soothing skin care line consists of four body beautifiers that include Balsam Beauty Bar, a soap-free, alkaline-free cleanser; Balsam Beauty Mask, for giving at-home facials; Balsam Bodysoothing Bath Oil, for smoothing the entire body while bathing and Balsam Concentrated Hand Conditioner, for soothing rough, dry hands.

The entire collection of all four products makes a beautiful gift for some special lady. Or purchased separately, they make excellent grab-bag or stocking stuff gifts.

These "gifts of beauty" are available at local professional beauty salons not just for the holiday season, but for any special occasion at anytime of the year.

Adults, children welcome games

Games make great gifts for children but they can do double duty for adults too.

You can give your friends anything that will give them pleasure, in the way of something they don't take seriously, something they can just enjoy. There are whimsical toys and games that are equally suitable for fun-loving big and little folks.

We suggest such things as hexablocks, jigsaw puzzles, a book on and of magic, kaleidoscopes and shuffle books — to name just a few of the many things on the market today.

Due to 1974 Price Increases, this clearance sale reflects almost a 72% savings from 1973 prices.

Early shopping allows greatest choices

He's a master of his craft . . . the happiest, jolliest, most generous man of the year! He's Santa Claus, back again with an important Christmas message for us all: kindness, brotherhood and love.

He'll be making the "chimney scene" with gifts in his pouch and goodwill in his heart, and so we celebrate this season following Santa's example, by giving gifts to our close friends and our loved ones.

It's a good feeling inside to give presents and keep alive the spirit of the holiday, and shopping for the right gift for someone close should be an enjoyable task. So Santa says, shop early. Start now to organize your gift list before the Christmas rush turns this happy assignment into a weary and hectic chore.

In 1974 there's one week less than last year between Thanksgiving and Christmas (that means less shopping days) — something to keep in mind when mailing greeting cards, as well as doing Christmas shopping. It might even be best to begin a holiday list before Thanksgiving.

When making up a list, keep everyone in mind. Even just an acquaintance usually merits a Yuletide thought, whether it be a greeting card, or a box of candy. The size of the gift or the price can take a second place to the thought behind the gift.

Colorful cookies

Christmas cookies are a traditional goodie. Be sure to have enough red and green coloring.

When shopping for the season, sometimes it's wise to buy a lot of little "token" gifts. These are the inexpensive things that people appreciate and enjoy. Just another way of saying "Merry Christmas and thanks," to teachers, milkmen, and others. And you can give many little gifts along with the big presents to the family members, too.

It's also smart to take advantage of a store's Christmas ideas. Check out newspapers, magazines and department store windows for special items advertised. They just might come up with a solution for the "man-who-has-everything" problem.

A gift should be a personal matter, that is, a part of yourself goes with the thought. The special choice should suit each individual. It's up to you to put your own homespun touches to the holiday.

Stores and shops come up with so many good gifting ideas that a wise person knows how to use them to advantage and give them homemade touches with a warm, old-fashioned accent. For example, instead of buying the children only the latest toys on the market, why not go to the hobby department and pick out a selection of do-it-yourself kits. The fun and accomplishment of making it yourself adds a personal feeling to holiday giving.

A little imagination put towards each present can make the ordinary seem outstanding. Instead of the usual wrapping paper, why not sprinkle in some different fabrics and materials? For your teenager, wrap those smaller gifts in faded denim material, which can be used for patching jeans or making little projects.

Put a little more of the Christmas spirit in everyting you do this holiday by picking up Yuletide ideas from your surroundings. Look to the Christmas suggestions that you find in community functions, school pageants, religious activities and Christmas displays or exhibits. Then use your creative talents and natural resourcefulness to make Christmastime a special occasion for the whole family.

Just remember to shop early, and begin thinking about your own gifting ideas to work on for the big day. The spirit and excitement of Christmas is far from lost or forgotten. It's there for us to enjoy, if we kow how to find it.

Cootie offers challenging toys for '74

America's most popular aviation toy, "U-Fly-It," will offer in 1974 its most challenging and exciting unit yet — a working model of the U.S.S. Enterprise Aircraft Carrier. Pilots-to-be of any age will "power catapult" their scale model Phantom II jet fighter up a long glide-line. At the top of its climb, the jet will bank a turn and start down the line for a daring approach to a safe landing on the carrier deck. In true landing fashion, the carrier's arrestor cable hooks the plane for a stop and activates the crash barrier!

A realistic toy driving experience will be offered from the Cootie Company's new "U-Drive-It." The battery-powered unit simulates actual driving conditions — with a movable automobile, realistic steering wheel and foot-accelerator controls! The compact unit can be operated on any table-top. The young driver-to-be learns real driving skills while developing eye-hand and other motor coordination.

"Sky/Crane" and "Sky/Guy" will also be introduced in 1974, completing the Cootie Company's Action Sets category. A model of the Sikorsky-type helicopter, "Sky/Crane" rides the glide-line and is controlled up/down and forward/reverse by twin "joy" sticks mounted on a realistic control panel. The battery-powered, friction activated unit provides hours of play value — as any member of the family successfully completes that daring rescue or landing behind enemy lines.

"Sky/Guy" is a seven-inch articulated male "action-doll," sold separately from "Sky/Crane." Complete with parachute pack, "Sky/Guy" is attached to two lines via a ring and is "launched" when the player separates the lines. A basic, popular-priced action set, it allows for countless numbers of different play settings.

The Cootie Company's popular-priced action set, it allows for countless numbers of different play settings.

The Cootie Company's popular line-up of "Traditional Box Games" will be enhanced by "Casper the Friendly Ghost Game." Dim the lights and set the stage for the "spookiest" game of fun and competition. If your magic "Spooky Stone" lights up Casper, you win a chip. The chips glow in the dark (by a non-toxic, specially treated plastic) while Casper is lit by one AA-type battery. Designed for ages 4 to 10, "Casper" requires no reading skills.

The Cootie Company's Pre-school Game category will be expanded in 1974 to include the new "Jack-Be-Nimble" and "Rub-a-Dub-Tub;" while "Cat-in-the-Bag" will be new for the grade school kids.

Indoor family strategy games have gained a new significance and popularity, since the energy crisis has limited family mobility for leisure time activities. The Cootie Company is adding, for 1974, "Letter Pile," and "Air Traffic Controller," to their family games category. Described by Cootie Company research and development personnel as the "best new word game to come out in a decade," the "Letter Pile" game adds mystery and excitement to a vocabulary building game. Players use clues to identify visually disguised words. Success is dependent upon word knowledge and the ability to decode opponent's clues.

"Air Traffic Controller" game recreates the fun and excitement of jet travel and teaches every member of the family the important role of the airport traffic controller. Success in winning — landing and disembarking passengers at their gate before your opponents — depends on a combination of skill, good judgment and luck.

MISS PEEP'S exquisitely sculptured features make her one of the most realistic looking new-born baby dolls ever. For additional realism and functional play opportunities, she's bundled in a pink cotton flannel receiving blanket over a kimono, nightie, cotton tie diaper and booties. From Amsco, she even comes in a specially designed package that converts to a serviceable bassinet. Little mothers and big ones will also love the fact that she's washable.

Store toys in steel cabinets

Ask any child what he wants for Christmas and the answer will invariably be "toys!" Small wonder then that the day after Christmas finds Mother wondering how to cope with the deluge of toys, all of which seem to be underfoot.

One answer to this problem is to encourage neatness in your youngster by providing him with a place to store his toys. Steel cabinets are practical, inexpensive storage chests that come in many designs. Floor-standing models accommodate the reach of any child, even a toddler; (shelves can be assigned according to your children's varying height).

Gift for do-it-yourselfers

Estimates indicate that there are over 20 million male do-it-yourselfers in the United States.

These home hobbyists all have two common interests — they enjoy repairing things and they like to construct useful gadgets.

This Christmas why not consider an electronic hobby kit as a gift for that favorite fellow who fixes your hairdryer and toaster? He'll get a lot of pleasure out of building some useful project during those long, cold winter nights.

Electronic kits come with all the parts and complete, step-by-step instructions necessary to make projects ranging from garage door openers to digital clocks. Many of these projects can be completed by the hobbyist in a few hours in the evening or on weekends.

A few of the many projects offered in kits by RCA include a home fire alarm system, a home intruder system and a digital electronic clock that keeps superbly accurate time within one minute-per-year or better. The company also has several experimenter's kits which permit constructio of these items: an electronic thermometer, timer, battery charger, flasher, or even speed controls for model railroads or race cars. Certain additional components are required for these kits.

All the kits can be easily assembled with simple tools. Kits are available through RCA distributors.

Pigge soap for unliberated males

Looking for a somewhat offbeat and fun new way to gift the "unliberated" man this Christmas? He could be a boss, co-worker, brother or pal or someone you love, but deep down in his all-male heart, isn't he sometimes a "you know what" when it comes to women?

So — poke a finer at the sometimes chauvinistic attitudes in him, says Royall Lyme Limited of Bermuda, and give him their new "Pigge Soape" — a super-luxurious, delightfully fragranted hand-milled soap-on-a-rope, that's shaped into six ounces of winsome, charming "pigge."

Along with the three delightful Royall Lyme "pigge" scents comes an interesting "storye." The "Pigge" (it seems) played a large role in Bermuda's history. Bermuda received its name from the man who delivered the island its first "pigges" — Juan de Bermudez. The animals' love for Bermuda's wild palmetto berries and each other quite literally caused the island to be overrun by them. When the first settlers arrived, the "pigges" provided badly needed food. In gratitude the settlers gave the "wilde pigge" a place of honor on their first coin, so that it became known as "hogge money.". The complete story is printed on the back of each "Pigge Soape" gift-box.

The soap itself is available in all three best-selling Royall Lyme fragrances, which are light and refreshing. The green Royall Lyme version is made from the sweet oil of fresh island limes, the blue Royall Bay Rhum "pigge" is compounded from rich Jamaica bay leaves and the saddle tan-colored Royall Spyce "soape" is blended from costly spice leaves from all over the world.

You can provide all this Royall Lyme fun for only $3.50 since "Pigge Soape" is available at your favorite department or specialty store and in fine men's furnishing establishments as well.

And, while you're there, do check out the rest of the Royall Lyme Christmas Collection. There's an assortment of fragrant men's gift items in a wonderful range of prices. Royall Lyme Toilet Lotion is in either four ounce bottles or a ten ounce Magnum size and there are gift sets that include a four ounce bottle of Toilet Lotion and two bars of soap. Royall Lyme and Royall Spyce Toilet Lotion is $5.00 for the four ounce size, $10.00 for the Magnum and $8.00 for the gift set. Royall Bay Rhum is $3.50, $7.00 and $6.50 respectively.

"Merrye Gifte!"

THIS AUTHENTIC western folk guitar from Emenee Industries caters to the escalating enthusiasm of young America for country music. A series of lively western figures are embossed on the two tone brown face of the guitar, including cowboys, a bucking bronco and a steer. A longhorn's skull is embossed above the gold, anodized tail piece. Featuring fine tonal quality, the new western folk guitar has professional metal strings and is accompanied by an official guitar tuning record, a pick, an easy-to-master Music Book and detailed instructions.

Calculators keep checkbooks in line

Having trouble with that checkbook? This Christmas why not consider giving a family finance problem solver — a desk-type, digital calculator.

These miniature electronic "brains" are truly a gift for everyone in the family. Perhaps the most common uses are in figuring household budgets, checking monthly bills and the biggest headache of all — balancing the checkbook.

Today, some banks are charging up to four dollars for every check that bounces. At that price, you can't afford to have inaccurate records. And at income tax time, an electronic calculator speeds you through those detailed computations in seconds.

VERSATILITY is a key feature of General Electric's new Superblow Hair Care Cener. Four separate attachments provide options in blow drying and styling. All are lightweight because the power is located in a countertop unit. Superblow has a pistol-style dryer, a unique hollow-tooth comb for deep air penetration and an air styling brush with 89 tiny vents for wide air coverage. There's also a "hands-free" directional air flow attachment, leaving both hands free for fluffing while drying or for spot roller drying while reading or manicuring.

New products for indoor gardeners

Anyone with a green thumb itching for ways to make indoor gardening more adventuresome and the results more attractively visible will enthusiastically welcome a new line of horticultural products developed by Aladdin Industries, Inc., Nashville, Tennessee.

For those who have already progressed to an almost professional level of horticultural achievement, one of the new Aladdin products in the Phyto-Gro Chamber, a fully-controlled growth chamber providing 30 square feet of shelf space in only 10 square feet of floor space. The chamber's temperature, humidity, light and ventilation can be automatically maintained to produce the exact growing environment needed by virtually any plant.

The Phyto-Gro Chamber's interior is brightly illuminated by grow-lights and clear plastic doors provide a full view of the plants inside.

For the less technically inclined indoor gardener, Aladdin has developed the Folarium, an indoor "greenhouse" that is also an attractive plant display case. The Folarium is equipped with a grow-light for maintaining plant growth, starting seedlings and reviving ailing plants. It also has a reservoir for water for maintaining proper humidity.

Folariums may be placed anywhere either individually or stacked. The grow-light in each unit enhances the appearance of plants inside and clear plastic side panels provide full visibility.

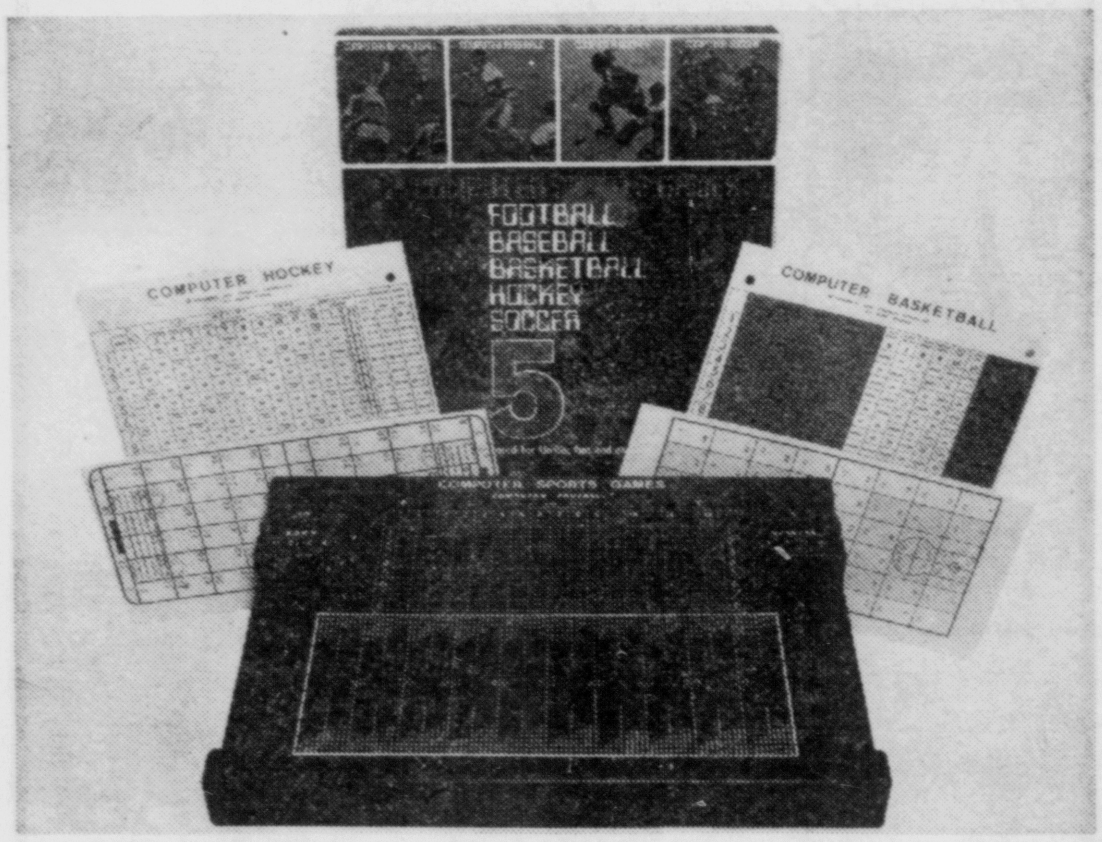
Closely related to the Folarium in a functional way is the new Aladdin Solar Window, a capsulated "greenhouse" that may be easily installed in any window capable of accomodating an air conditioner. The Solar Window allows plants to take full advantage of natural sunshine the year round in a fully protected atmosphere. A sliding drawer inside the window holds the plants and allows easy servicing from inside the house. It is ideal for growing herbs and starting seedling plants of all kinds.

Another new product in the Aladdin line is the plant caddy, which provides indoor gardeners with a convenient way to move plants to various locations inside the home for display and care. It is a stylish, ruggedly built cart with three shelves each capable of supporting 75 pounds. In addition to its functional advantages, the Plant Caddy's decorative design makes it a uniquely attractive unit on which to display plants anywhere in the home.

As the final item in its new line, Aladdin offers a set of Tiny Tillers, which every indoor gardener can use. These are miniature garden tools designed especially for working with potted plants. The set includes a trowel, rake and cultivating blade all of stainless steel with tough molded plastic handles.

In order to be certain that all its new horticultural products meet the highest technical standards, all product developmental stages have been reviewed by an advisory panel of indoor gardening experts.

IDEAL FOR DISPLAYING plants in any room, the Aladdin Folarium also gives plants a healthy indoor environment. Plants are placed on a drain pan with a water reservoir underneath that acts as a built-in humidifier for the entire chamber.



YOU PICK YOUR offensive strategy and your opponent picks the defense to stop you. Press the buttons and read out the results. Two reversible overlays from Computer Games — basketball to baseball and hockey to soccer — allows you to match wits with your opponent in 5 exciting sports. Dad can install dishwasher

For a truly special gift this year, a built-in dishwasher that the handyman husband installs himself combines the best of what can be purchased and what can be done with one's hands.

All wives, of course, like fun gifts, but a practical gift, like a new dishwasher, is always welcome and will keep saying "Merry Christmas" all year long. And nothing expresses the holiday spirit more sincerely than a gift that costs more than money.

A recently published handbook is designed so that a good "do-it-yourselfer" can install a built-in dishwasher, using the simple, fully illustrated instructions.

It is noted that the Maytag handbook "is not intended to be, and should not be considered instructions for making plumbing and electrical connections for all installations in all areas."

For the simple installation, however, such as a normal replacement, following the instructions in the booklet mean no highly professional skills in electricity, carpentry or plumbing are required.

The step-by-step procedures in the 30-page handbook are easy to follow. The book is in two sections. The first explains the procedures for an installation that is easy to accomplish and requires fewest parts,. while the second deals with installation using more complex procedures, such as cutting and sweating pipes, steps that require special tools and a working knowledge of plumbing procedures.

Besides installation instructions, the handbook contains helpful information about the location of the dishwasher in an older home and installation in a new home.

With the handbook, a new built-in dishwasher and a few tools, the husband will have no problems coming up with a welcome gift this holiday season.

Carve meat across grain

The first rule of carving to remember is that all meat has grain. Meat grain may be best visualized as bunches of tiny, closely-grouped tubes, each brimming with savory juices, When the meat is cut with the grain, the slices will consist of these tubes, side by side — in other words, chewy or tough.

When meat is cut across the grain, the slices are made up of short lengths of these tubes standing end on end — tender and holding all their natural juices.

How to select best radio

Planning to give a transistor radio as a Christmas gift?

Then, to help you select wisely from receivers now in local stores, here are some reliable tips.

An easy formula to follow for in-store transistor radios is this—

First, select two or three radios with a brand name you know and respect. Then listen to each of these sets for rich, full tone with the volume turned low.

This is one tip-off on a top-performing receiver. In a portable radio, it means there is power to spare for outdoor listening where background noises drown out sound from less powerful sets. Also, if the receiver is engineered to serve you well outside the home, it will provide good listening indoors where, normally, quieter conditions prevail.

As a check on receiver sensitivity, ask the store salesman to demonstrate around the tuning dial whether the radios you are considering will tune out-of-town, distant stations as well as powerful local stations. Of, if you prefer, do so yourself. Then use the results and your pocketbook as a guide in making your final selection of a receiver.

NEW! THE INTEGRAL legs of "Little Comfy" have flaired styling for sensible "no tip" stability. In sturdy plastic for ages one and one half to six from Marx.

Art of batik great for handmade gifts

"Batik," what's that? Don't be shy if you don't know.

Although the art of batik originated thousands of years ago, many of us are mystified by this strange and complicated method of decorating fabric. Basically, batik is a technique using wax coatings on material, which resist dyes and produce designs.

THE NEW "SEA DIVER" by Parker Brothers is an exciting activity toy which simulates the action of a diving bell. Contestants, eight to adult, squeeze the water-filled tank to make the bell descend and use its grappling hooks to pick up treasures from the ocean floor. You control all the movements through the underwater environment.

New watch demand

All solid-state digital watches are becoming popular. RCA, which makes the electronic circuitry of many such timepieces, estimates 1½ million will be sold this year.

The Malaysian word "batik" is usually applied to this resist process, since the art form was most extensivly developed in Java. From Java, batik was introduced to Europe by Dutch traders, who first imported batiks to Holland in the 1600s. Today Batik continues to be a major industry in Java and is practiced in the same, intricate way it was centuries ago.

Westerners are familiar with the batik process through the lively, unusual batiked fabrics that have become more and more popular for clothing and interior decoration.

Although simplified batik processes have been developed by Western industry, the art form has remained too time-consuming and complicated for most amateur crafts buffs to tackle.

But hold on! The ancient art of making batik fabric prints has been revolutionized — and simplified — in time to make dazzling, modern holiday gifts in the age-old batik tradition. Binney & Smith, Inc. has introduced the CRAYOLA CRAFT Batik Kit which makes it a breeze for any youngster to create novel, colorful presents this season.

Parents and friends appreciate the time and effort youngsters spend in making a personal gift. But, more than that, a child feels satisfaction and pride in presenting a gift that he or she has created with time, energy, and imagination.

The Crayola Craft Batik Kit is a great gift-maker because it features a simple three-step method of batik printing.

Here's how it's done. First, the design is painted on the fabric with hot wax colors. Then, the finished wax-painted fabric is gently crumpled to crack the wax for attaining the batik effect, and it is immersed in the background cold dye bath. In the third step, the dyed fabric is rinsed and allowed to dry, and all the wax is removed using a warm iron and plenty of old newspapers to absorb the wax.

It's simple! The Crayola Craft Batik Kit includes everything necessary for your home-batiking operation.

The basic kit includes six Crayola Craft batik color waxes, a block of paraffin, an aluminum warming pan, two brushes, two packets of background dye and two packets of dye conditioner, two 16" x 16" cloth designs, a wooden frame, and an instruction folder. Then you're all set.

Lightweight cotton fabrics work best in the process, although other nonsynthetic fabrics can be used with success. Light colors are necessary, and white works best. Fabrics should also be porous to absorb the wax.

So have a good time creating uniquely attractive handmade presents. Turn your fabric remnants or plain-Jane T-Shirts into snappy gifts. The season will be merrier and more heartwarming if adults and youngsters take the time and energy to give gifts with a personal touch.

It's easy, it's fun, and since it recycles, it's even ecological. You can't beat that.

Kewpie dolls make '74 comeback

One of the most popular entries in the doll world this Yule season is a fourth generation of Kewpie dolls, the mischievous sprites originally created by Rose O'Neill which have set a record for enduring popularity, spreading love all over the world since grandma was a little girl.

Although the fourth generation Kewpies keep their perky top knots and wide-eyed roguish looks, these 1974 versions by Amsco wear smart contemporary clothes and range from four-inch sitting versions to 27-inch jointed styles. There is a new group of Birthday Kewpies who wear pastel hued party dresses.

Side by side with the nostalgically charming Kewpie contingent is an adorable baby doll named Miss Peep who is one of the most realistic looking newborn infant dolls ever. This little newcomer is bundled in a pink cotton flannel receiving blanket wrapped over a kimono and nightie. Cotton tie diaper and booties complete this realistic attire, which assures maximum play interest. She arrives in a specially designed package that converts into a serviceable bassinet. Little mothers and big ones also will be pleased to know that Miss Peep and her wardrobe are washable.

The doll world's record for muscular versatility unquestionably goes to the Bendy dolls, acrobatic wonders long famous in Europe, which are being introduced here in liknesses of such favorite characters as Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Popeye and the Pink Panther.

The remarkable Bendys are made of squeezable, twistable latex which is pleasant to the touch as well as appealing to the eye. In the latex lies the secret of their agility, as it allows them to bend into an infinite variety of positions, a talent that gives them extraordinary play value.

CELEBRATING THE INTRODUCTION of a record-setting fourth generation of Kewpie dolls is the special Birthday Kewpie by Amsco. In sizes from 12 to 16 inches tall, these fully jointed "little cupids" wear pastel hued party dresses with lace trimmed panties, and feature the same topknot and facial expression that have sustained the Kewpies as favorites longer than any other dolls in history.

Cushion gifts

Sending gifts far away? Use popcorn (popped, of course) around that fragile gift. Helps them to withstand all that havoc en route. And if you're sending cookies, it helps to keep them fresh!

Gift cards should reflect sentiments

A gift is an announcement. It should say Merry Christmas, Happy Birthday, I Love You, or whatever you want to convey. Don't lose sight of this function, and don't fail to enclose a card that expresses the sentiments you want to convey.

Don't just sign your name to a printed card — a few sincere phrases of your own devising add an extra dimension to any gift.

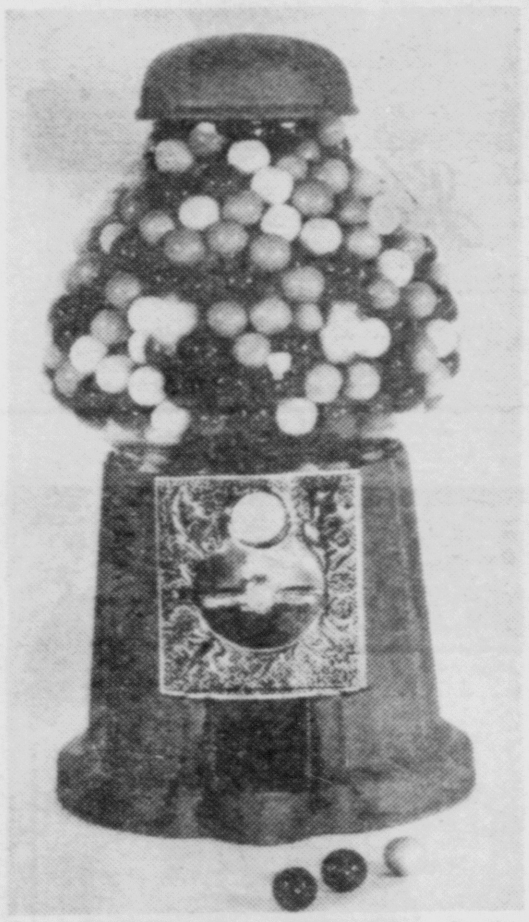
A NEW AUTOMATIC Buffet Skillet in a choice of dark brown "winter wheat" and butterscotch genuine porcelain on aluminum exteriors is being introduced by The West Bend Company. The unit features a high-domed cover and roomy 12"x12" size which makes it ideal for preparing a wide variety of foods and popular skillet dinners. A removable heat control allows the unit to be immersed for quick, convenient clean up.



A CONVINCING REPLICA of the old fashioned, classic American gumball bank is available for this year's holiday fun. It's the Big Red Machine, a full-size copy (about 14 inches high) of the machine you've seen in stores for years and years.

Made by The Tarrson Company in Chicago, Big Red Machine is a bank that operates with pennies, nickels, and dimes, and dispenses giant gumballs, nuts and candy. Naturally, children love Big Red Machine, but adults seem to be equally delighted to have one at home or office. College students have become excellent collectors of Big Red Machine, too, in the very short time the bank has been on the market.

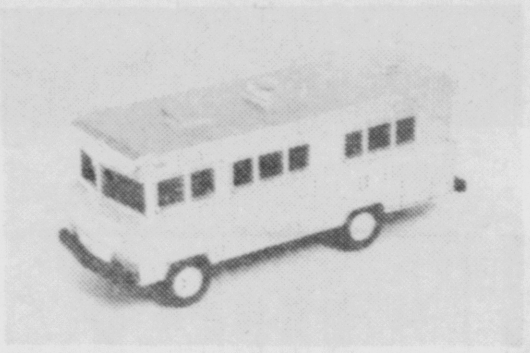
Camper or school bus?

A child's dream of having his very own camper or driving the school bus can become a reality this Christmas with two new entries in the 1974 Strombecker line of Tootsietoys.

Both the Camper and School Bus are constructed of tough die-cast metal with high impact plastic base. The Tootsietoy models are brightly painted with completely safe vegetable base paints. Each vehicle measures five and one-fourth inches.

Extremely authentic in design, the camper features a detailed plastic interior, consisting of driver's cab, eating area, sink, cabinets and beds, to assist any youngster in planning his recreational outing.

Equally appealing is the school Bus with its well-detailed design. The interior of the bus even includes a row of seats — just waiting for young passengers to get on board.



CAMPER. Handsome die-cast metal scale model of famous camper by Tootsie Toy.

Give pet before Christmas

Prepare your child well in advance for the pet that is to share his life. Instruct the child on how to care for the pet.

Take your child along to help pick out his new friend. Many times a parent's background intrudes and the "wrong" breed is chosen. Maybe Dad grew up with a Great Dane, but Junior would prefer a poodle. Remember, it's your child's pet.

The puppy or kitten should be brought into the home at least a week ahead of time. This gives everyone a chance to get acquainted, and in particular, it gives the pet an opportunity to settle down and be acclimated by the time Christmas dawns with all its excitement and joyous noise.

For Christmas Day, gifts can be made for the new member of the family — chew bones, toys, a pillow, special occasion "snacks."

But don't expect too much from your new pet — he'll probably be asleep in his own special box out of harm's way.

That little ball of fluff with a red ribbon around its neck scrambling around the base of the Christmas tree looks adorable.

But that scrambling could signify a terrified puppy or an hysterical kitten.

Pets are traditional gifts for children, but they should be given before Christmas Day so they do not have to compete for attention. The excitement of this special day runs high, and children are often unwittingly thoughtless with a new live animal.

Games focus on fast action

This Christmas the newest excitement in games centers on fast action competitions that can be played indoors now and outdoors later, involving all members of the family in the fun.

Most unusual is shuttlecock archery, the first basic change in this sport in 8,000 years. It's a highly practical focus for family fun on Christmas morning because its "no-flight" arrow never leaves the bow. When the bow string is drawn back and released, only a soft plastic, suction-cupped shuttlecock is propelled toward the target. This brand new concept is designed by South Bend for grownups and children to enjoy together.

THE DENIM LOOK is "in" and Jimmy Jeaner and Jibby Jeaner, the Blue Jeaners dolls from Mattel, are as "in" as can be. Soft and cuddly for kids, put 'em in funny poses for teenage rooms — velcro on the hands does it! And . . . completely washable to achieve that necessary faded look!

There will be toys in '74

"There will not be a shortage of Mattel toys this year despite the material shortages" said Ray Wagner, president of Mattel Toys, the world's largest manufacturer of playthings for children.

"In fact," Wagner said, "we will be creating a new generation of toys for today's children. The toys will be smaller in size, have different composition than toys previously available and will be packaged in a more economical way," said Wagner.

"In regard to toy size," Wagner said, "toys in all probability will be using less raw material than toys of years gone by. Mattel's 1974 toy introductions provide stimulating play value and in some cases are smaller in size. For example — Mattel's new Itsy Bitsy Bean dolls: Pidgy, Piffle, and Poffum. These are miniature size bean dolls. These dolls will offer great play value but use far less materials than in comparable toys."

Other new Mattel products that will give great play value and use a minimum of raw materials are the Blue Jeaners dolls: Jimmy and Jibby. Each of these dolls, dressed in blue denim though long in length, represents modest use of raw materials.

"Mattel's new Spinwelder set," claims Wagner, "takes advantage of recycled plastic. Materials that have been reground are now available in the new Spinwelder set which enables a youngster to create either a Can-Am car or a dragster made from plastic beams. The parts can be assembled, taken apart and reassembled. It provides many hours of creative and imaginative play. The product is made almost exclusively of recycled materials."

Encouraging youngsters to take advantage of everyday household items to be used in their play situation is now made possible with The Sunshine Family dolls and accessories. This is a new line of three miniature dolls. In each package there is a booklet telling how to make accessories for their doll family out of commonly found items around the household. Specifically, tomato baskets, lids from spray top containers, match boxes, cereal boxes, plastic bottles, spools, bandage boxes, rubber bands, string, paper clips, aluminum foil and a wide variety of commonly found items from around the house are incorporated into The Sunshine Family play situation. There are craft packs that are available for The Sunshine Family which give specific directions and include a variety of materials which will stimulate youngsters to be creative. The Sunshine Family line of toys also encourages children to be resourceful, not only in their play but in their everyday lives. We try to encourage youngsters to get their family to be like The Sunshine Family and be resourceful, conserve materials and take advantage of everyday household items.

"We are," said Wagner, "also making adjustments and modifications in our packaging. Our packaging designers are investigating packaging that is durable, will protect the product inside, show off the product, yet be protective, attractive and at the same time use far less raw materials than previous packaging."

"We have to look at the material shortage as a long term possibility," said Wagner, "therefore in planning future products we have to think in terms of conserving all raw materials and to create smaller but meaningful products that will stimulate imaginative, fun, creative play and at the same time not prove to be a drain on our nation's resources."

New toy makes knitting easy

Knit Magic from Mattel is a fun new toy which enables any youngster to successfully knit, using real wool yarn, a wide variety of items for personal use, for dolls, as toys and for decorative items. By merely turning the handle on the side of the Knit Magic machine, the yarn is fed into a knitting machanism which feeds out either a knitted tube or a knitted panel.

Youngsters can take these knitted panels or tubes and fashion them together and make a wide variety of items including real hats, scarves and mittens. For dolls they can make a complete wardrobe of dress, coat and sweater as well as a hat. By merely feeding in a different color yarn into the Knit Magic machine, a youngster can create a wide variety of interesting patterns and designs. Children as young as five years old can now become familiar and adept at knitting through Knit Magic.

American Yuletide history...

Over the years, many traditions, customs, decorations, songs and stories have become associated with the Christmas holiday season in America. Here is a chronology of some yuletide events and a bit of trivia about when and how they started.

1492 — Columbus' ship, the Santa Maria, struck a reef off the coast of Haiti and was abandoned on Christmas Day. Timber from the ship was used to build a fortress which was named La Navidad, the Nativity.

1776 — Washington and his troops crossed the Delaware.

1321 — The first record of a Christmas tree in America was mentioned in the diary of Matthew Zahm of Lancaster, Pa. Christmas trees of the 1820's were decorated with ginger bread, apples, raisins and colored cloth rosettes.

1822 — Clement Clarke Moore, a professor at the General Theological Seminary in New York, wrote "A Visit From St. Nicholas" to read to his children on Christmas Eve. The famous poem, better known as "Twas the Night Before Christmas," introduced the reindeer-drawn sleigh.

1882 — First Christmas tree lighted by electricity was put in the New York home of Edward H. Johnson.

1897 — Frank Church of the "New York Sun" wrote his famous editorial, "Yes, Virginia There Is a Santa Claus," to young Virginia O'Hanlon. In it, the editor said, "He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist...."

1921 — First community Christmas trees were erected in Madison Square Park, N.Y. and on Boston Common.

1923 — Calvin Coolidge was the first President to light a Christmas tree at the White House in Washington, D.C.

1937 — The first Santa Claus School was opened in Albion, N.Y., with enrollment of six students.

1942 — Bing Crosby's record of "White Christmas" hit the million-seller list. Since then various recordings of the song have sold over 95 million copies, with Bing's version accounting for 25 million.

1943 — An album by the Andrew Sisters featuring "I'll Be Home For Christmas" and "Jingle Bells" sold over a million copies.

1948 — Spike Jones and his City Slickers turned out a novelty record, "All I Want For Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth," which joined the million-seller ranks.

1949 — "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was first recorded by Gene Autry and became a favorite.

1952 — "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus," sung by Jimmy Boyd, was a million-seller record.

1968 — Apollo 8 Astronauts Borman, Lovell and Anders sent the first Christmas Eve message from Moon to Earth.

...and customs from other lands

Mistletoe, Santa Claus, letter to Santa, Christmas customs galore — where did they all begin?

The customs of Christmas come from many lands and many eras. They evolve from pagan ceremonies into Christian rituals. And they stretch from West to East, from North to South, as each country contributes something special and traditional to the celebrations of the holiday.

When seasonal gaiety rings out in Canada, the merriment is echoed in Mexico. When North or South Americans gather for Christmas festivities, the people of Sweden are doing the same — and so are the peoples of Holland and France and Italy and Spain and countless other European countries.

In the Far East, Christian communities spread the customs of Christmas, which mingle with the year-end ceremonies observed by those of other faiths.

That the legend and lore of Christmas knows no boundaries is illustrated in the following round-up of Yuletide customs, based on information provided by the editors of the Encyclopedia International.

— From the north of England comes the happy custom of the kissing bough. A large hoop, twined with greens, is decorated with apples and candles. And in the center there's mistletoe — signal for exchanging kisses.

— Custom of writing letters to Santa Claus may have begun in Austria, where, long ago, it was an Advent tradition for children to write letters containing lists of what they'd like to receive on St. Nicholas' Day.

— From Italy comes a most poetic addition to Christmas lore. For three weeks during the Christmas season, children traditionally go from place to place reciting Christmas poems. They expect coins in return, to buy holiday goodies.

— An ancient custom that is still observed in some Swedish households today is that of "dipping bread into the pot." Each person dips a piece of bread into pork and sausage drippings and eats it for good luck.

— For St. Nicholas season, it's traditional in Holland to make flat cakes called Klassjes. Once exclusively made in the form of the bishop, St. Nicholas, Klassjes now take any form of bird, beast or fish.

— At Salers in Central France, old-time tradition calls for a king and queen to rule over Christmas festivities. Rulers pay for the privilege, since they are "elected" by bidding at an auction held on the church steps.

— A procession which blends pagan and Christmas customs is part of the legend and lore of the holiday in Ruppin, Germany. A rider on a white horse, symbolizing the horse of the pagan god Wotan, leads the parade. He is followed by Father Christmas, who is decked with ribbons and carries candy and fruit.

— A Swiss custom that dates back to the Middle Ages is to start the New Year free of debts. Dec. 6, the feast of St. Nicholas of Myra, the first Santa Claus, is the day set to meet all monetary obligations such as rents and mortgages.

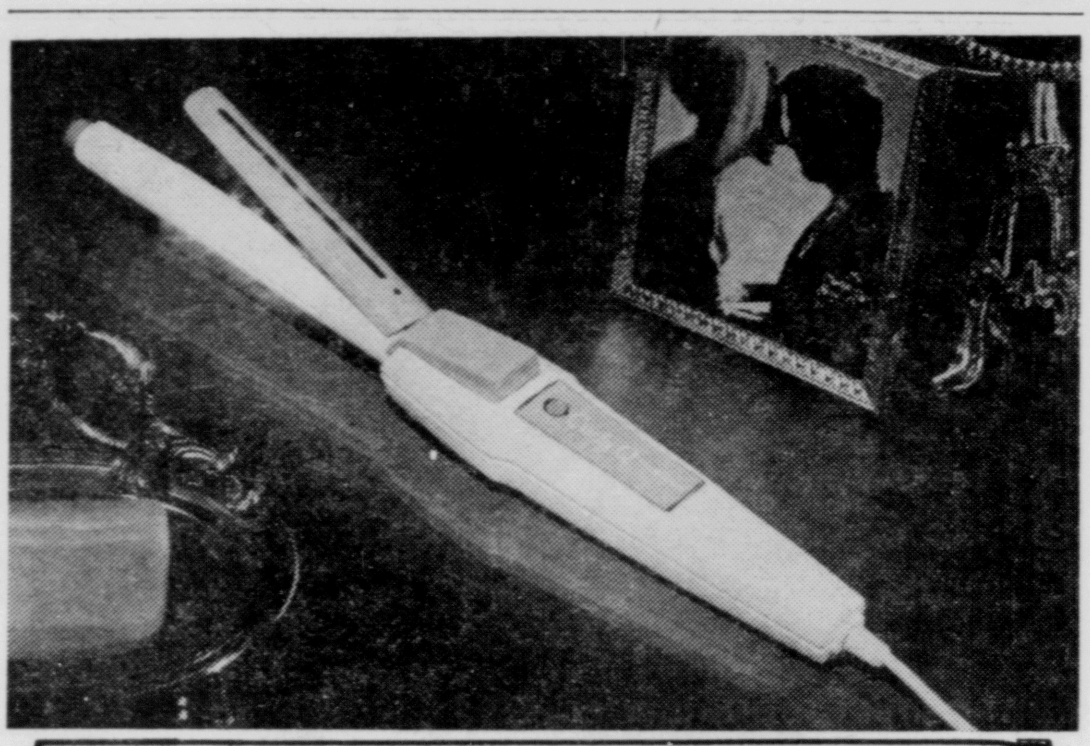
NORELCO introduces Curly Q, a new curling iron with mist. The new Curly Q is styled in pale lavender with white. Its mist vessel holds enough water for a complete hair styling.



POPPIN' SWAP, an educational card game to help teach nutrition, has been introduced by The Pillsbury Company. Suitable for four to seven players, ages 11 to adult, it was developed originally for use in nutrition units in junior and senior high home economics classes. The 51 cards picture full-color photographs of foods high in important nutrients. Simultaneous trading of the colorful cards, as players try to collect nutrition sets, keeps the game lively. Players learn to avoid empty calorie cards and seek bonus cards of extra high nutrient values. The game has been reviewed for accuracy and suitability by nutritionists and educators and currently is being used in both home economics and science classrooms in all 50 states. Sold only by mail, single decks are available for $5.00 from The Pillsbury Company, Dept. R., 1176 Pillsbury Building, Minneapolis, MN. 55402. Christmas orders should be placed before December 1, for sure delivery.

ALREADY FAMOUS throughout Europe, Bendy Dolls are now being introduced here in likenesses of such favorite characters as Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse and the Pink Panther. They're made of washable, squeezable, twistable latex, which is pleasant to the touch and attractive to the eye. Most important, though, it allows them to be bent into an infinite variety of poses, giving them extraordinary play value. They're from Amsco.

Don't delay the mail

Watch the calendar!

You can make sure your Christmas cards and packages are delivered on time if you just follow a simple rule — mail early.

Although "it's the thought that counts," a Christmas card or Christmas gift received in the mail late can be disappointing. Not to mention the aggravation it produces among U.S. Postal Service employees who are deluged with billions of cards and packages during the season.

So, to get holiday material delivered on time, and help the postman perform his duty, use zip codes and keep some deadlines in mind:

—Before the last week of November begins, send out parcel airlift packages and cards to servicemen overseas.

—By the end of November you should have mailed: surface parcels to Alaska and Hawaii; packages via parcel airlift to the Arctic and Canada; and airmail parcels and cards to South and Central America, and Near East or Far East.

—During the second week of December, try to take care of these holiday mailings: international greeting cards and parcels to Africa, Near East and Far East; surface mail for the whole United States (including Alaska and Hawaii); airmail parcels and cards to Canada, Europe and Mexico.

—And finally, by the end of the third week in December, with only three to five days to spare before the 25th, send all airmail parcels and cards to Alaska and Hawaii as well as all destinations in the continental United States.

THE NEW SCHWINN-approved Le Tour ten-speed is lightweight, agile and loaded with fine quality features you'd expect to find on much higher priced bikes. It's the ideal bike for those bicyclists who especially consider lightness in weight an important factor, as well as performance.

Mattel's preschool market grows

The preschool toy market continues to be a growth area for Mattel. This year, 1974, Mattel is introducing a wide variety of imaginative toy products designed to give many hours of fun play and be educational at the same time.

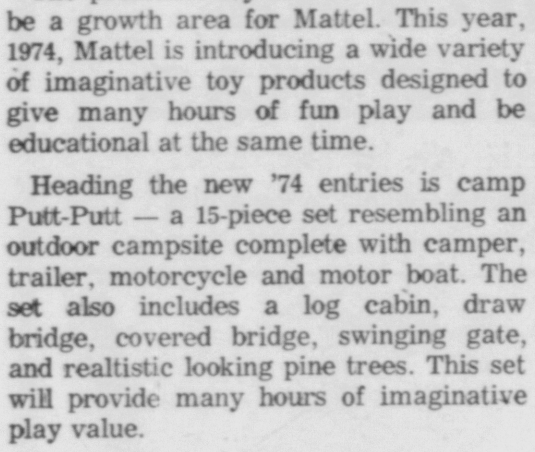
Heading the new '74 entries is camp Putt-Putt — a 15-piece set resembling an outdoor campsite complete with camper, trailer, motorcycle and motor boat. The set also includes a log cabin, draw bridge, covered bridge, swinging gate, and realtistic looking pine trees. This set will provide many hours of imaginative play value.

Tuff Stuff, the toy that carries a five-year replacement guarantee, and is virtually indestructible, this year shows up in the form of a Tuff Stuff fire truck. The Tuff Stuff fire truck has an extension ladder that actually works, with a little bucket on the end of the make-believe firemen to sit in. It also has two firemen that can sit in the front of the fire truck or be taken out and moved around as the youngster desires.

Mattel talking toys, always a favorite with preschoolers, this year introduces Mr. Safety Says. By pulling the string on this toy the youngster will hear a wide variety of phrases that encourage safety both at home, at play and at school. There is also a Chatter Pal tape measure. The youngster pulls out the tape and hears a wide variety of phrases giving youngsters the opportunity to measure things with the tape. Both toys provide educational inputs and laughs.

An innovation in talking toys is Mattel's new Talkin' Tracks. Talkin' Tracks toys operate by strips of specially formulated plastic mounted on the playboard. As the younger pushes a toy car down the tracks there are a variety of random phrases to suit the play situation. There is a Talkin' Tracks farm, town, Snack Shack, and fire station.

For the preschooler that wants to play camper, there is the new Li'l Camper line of toys including a back pack, cookstove that "sizzles and boils" without heat, and Trail Belt. With these items the preschooler can pitch his own tent, pretend to cook bacon and eggs, and even bake a pie. Also included in the Li'l Camper outfit is an ax, shovel, flashlight, and a real compass.



THE ONLY AUTHENTIC Disney World Phone on the market from Romper Room! The child turns the wheel to select a favorite Disney character on the screen, than dials the magic numbers shown. When he lifts the receiver, he can listen to one of six different messages from Mickey Mouse, Goofy, Minnie Mouse, Snow White, Mary Poppins and Jiminy Cricket. Futuristic styling with touchtone dial system plus colorful illustrations of the Disney characters. A fascinating phone that will stimulate the imagination of pre-schoolers.

Useful, inexpensive stocking stuffers

After most of the Christmas shopping is completed, parents are generally faced with getting something to fill those stockings for the kids. Rather than panic into buying a bunch of useless trinkets, why not put in a few practical items?

Chances are your children have a transistor radio, portable tape recorder, electric toys, camera or flashlight. They all use batteries, and a fresh supply would be a welcome gift. RCA battery specialists suggest that before going to the store, you jot down the size recommended for each product.

Another useful stocking stuffer is a few blank audio tapes such as "Red Seal" for your son's or daughter's recorder. Although most children use these to record their favorite music, many find tape recordings helpful to rehearse their language or school speaking assignments.

True Love's is hard to find. Without a map.

Why did we put Love's Restaurant where we did? Don't ask! The fact is, it's too late to move it. So. It takes a little effort to find Love's—but it's worth it. Because...

Love's is:
- An absolutely unique dinner experience.
- Hickory specialties (ribs, chicken, steaks and much more).
- Generous cocktails.
- Lovely prices.

For example: for $5.75! Chicken and Ribs! Tantalizing, succulent Pork Ribs and Barbecued Chicken basted with Love's original sauces. Including—choice of soup, dinner salad or Love's cole slaw—and—Love's barbecued beans, corn-on-the-cob, baked potato and hot biscuits.

True Love's may be a little hard to find... without a map. But now you have one. Besides. Where Golf and Higgins Roads cross, a triangle is formed—"Love's Triangle"—and that's always easy to find.

Love's opens every day at 3:00PM for our "Bolla Grande" Happy Hour. Dinner service begins at 4:00PM.

When you're in Love's—the whole world's delicious.

CHALLENGE YAHTZEE, a new variation on Yahtzee from Milton Bradley, offers fun and excitement for the whole family.

New variation on Yahtzee

Yahtzee, "the family game that makes thinking fun," has been loved by millions for years. As a matter of actual fact, it's the best-selling game, in units, in the entire world! Playing it requires skill, but it's also loaded with chance, so there's lots of action and suspense.

Now, there's a new, absorbing, fast-paced variation of the game. It's Challenge Yahtzee from E. S. Lowe, a Milton Bradley company. Winning at it depends on skill and shrewd strategy more than in any version ever before. It has great appeal for all age groups, from grade school on, and is the ideal game for the entire family to enjoy together . . . though it can also be played solotaire.

Challenge Yahtzee's introduction is especially timely because today's energy crunch means more families will be spending more time at home and more time playing games.

In Challenge Yahtzee, careful choices are vital for players to make as they build their point scores from common rolls of the dice. Using their own best judgments for possible combinations is crucial to winning.

Components of handsomely-designed Challenge Yahtzee include: a 10 inch by 10 inch by 1 inch molded black plastic playing tray which features a gold-colored flocked play field insert and platforms into which dice are fitted, five large red playing dice, twenty small white dice or "makers," dice cup and score pads.

Many names for Christmas

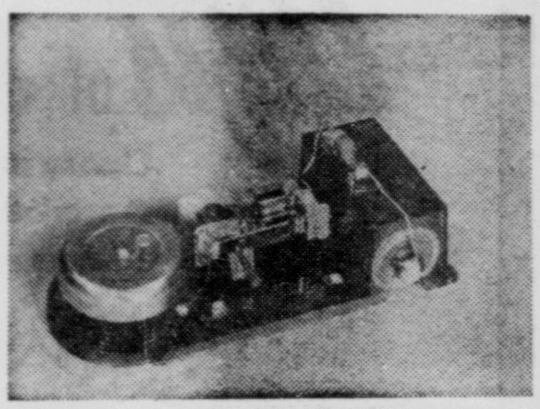
In Greece, Christmas is called "Genethlia," feast of the Nativity.

Noel is the term used for Christmas in France.

An Italian name for Christmas is "Nativita" from which probably derived the Spanish "'Navidad."

The German "Heilige Nacht"' signifies "holy night."

The likeliest derivation of our own "Christmas" is from the Hebrew 'mas' which means tribute.



THE BUILDER learns how motors really work by constructing one, winding the armature, adjusting the speed and running it forwards and backwards. Choose from a selection of our most precious gifts for her — for Christmas — for always

A fine ring is more than an investment in gold, diamonds, fine gemstones. It is more than an investment in beauty, style and good taste. The ring is the thing — this Christmas.

Easy-to-do crafts can offer distinctive home decorations

It's a bonanza season for easy-do crafts that both youngsters and adults can enjoy creating and which provide prized, highly distinctive decorations for the home.

One of the most significant advances in simplifying craft techniques is in the category of sculpturing with wire. For the first time, the difficult step of soldering has been eliminated. In the new Wire Sculpture Kits by Whiting, soft aluminum wire, bending templates and die-cut cardboard shapes are the basic components provided with which even beginning crafts enthusiasts can create graceful, unusual three-dimensional wire artworks. Bases are furnished for mounting and gold paint insures a decorative finish. Each kit contains complete materials and easy-to-follow instructions for creating such subjects as birds, biplanes and dirigibles.

Look for new attractions in the realm of scrimshaw craft kits using plastic to simulate the sailors' folk art of etching whale teeth and jawbones with decorative designs. An Eskimo version of the art is made easy to recreate with the Scrimshaw Jewlery Kit. It features favorite arctic designs that are transferred by decal to vari-shaped pendants and etched with a special tool that's provided, simulating the Eskimo art of etching on ivory. These distinctive pendants cue in beautifully with the current fashion for bold, primitive jewelry.

A new Walrus Tusk Scrimshaw Kit uses two favorite Eskimo scenes to be etched into an authentic looking 14-inch tusk. A kayak race scene goes on one side, the image of a dog sled team on the other. The finished tusk makes a unique conversation piece with the charm of a 19th century ivory prototype.

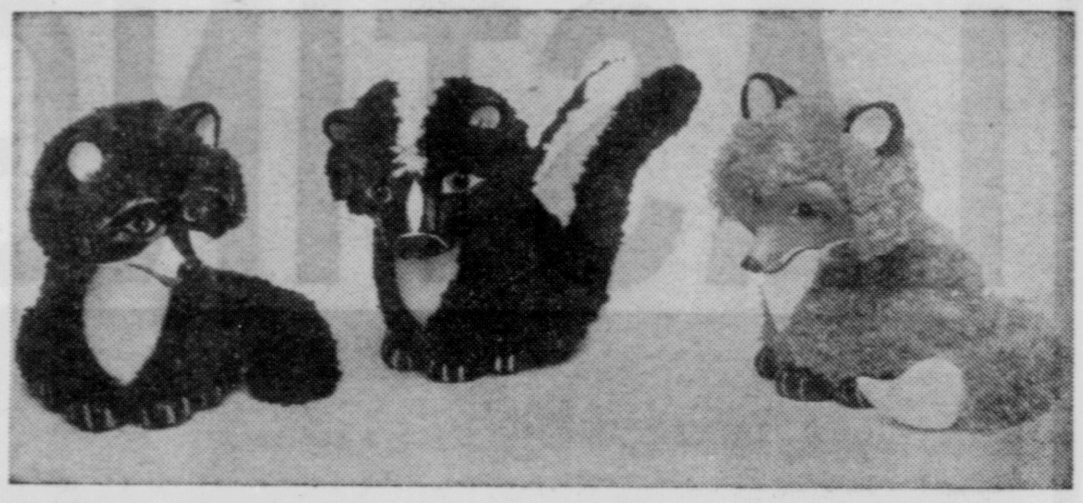
A welcome development in the area of decorative crafts is an innovative technique that combines styrofoam and yarn. You just press small pieces of yarn into patterned polystyrene bases with a specially designed tool that's furnished in each kit. If you make a mistake, you simply pull out the errant bit of yarn and press it back where it belongs. Delightful animal characters with painted faces and furry yarn coats that invite petting can be created in this manner. They're called Yarn Critters and Wooly Wuzzies. The assortments include a raccoon named Randy, a skunk named Stinkerbelle and a fox named Freddy, each over 8½ inches tall, plus a Tired Tiger, Lazy Lion and Pooped Panda, each about 20 inches long. All are ideally suited to decorate beds, walls, shelves and desks.

Many uses for pine trees

Need a Santa's helper this Christmas? Try products from the pine tree. For example, a giant pine cone can be turned into the world's smallest Christmas tree.

Just mount an 8-12 inch pine cone on a piece of plastic foam, decorate as you would a tree but with sequins and glitter glued on the cone edges. Top off with a star.

In the practical side, use a pine oil cleaner to banish crushed candy cane, spilled food and turkey grease from the holiday scene.



HERE'S A NEW DELIGHT in yarn crafts by Whiting! Yarn Critters offer an innovative technique for converting yarn and polystyrene into whimsical creatures with furry coats that invite petting. The animal forms are "furred" with a specially designed tool that performs with a simple push-pull action. Molded-in guidelines make it easy also to paint eyes and other facial features. Subjects bear such names as Randy Raccoon, Freddy Fox and Stinkerbelle Skunk. Polystyrene forms, yarn, special yarn tool, paints, paint brush, yarn winder and step-by-step instructions are included.

Give stocking gifts for feet

Stuffing for Christmas stockings can be practical and fun, too, when you add something for what goes inside the socks, feet. After a hectic shopping whirl, every member of the family will welcome a little, foot-soothing gift. These easy-on-the-pocketbook items are suggested by the foot experts at School to make holiday going smoother;

A certificate for a professional pedicure will be a surprise pick-up for a busy mother Santa.

A pair of lightweight, terry-covered slippers will help relax dad's feet on Christmas morning — and all through the year.

For a teen-size stocking, slip in a pack of decorative decal designs to sleek up toe-nails and feet during holiday lounging or sandal-wearing.

The week-end skier or anyone whose shoes might rub the wrong way will appreciate a box of soft, moleskin padding.

Then there's the instant luxury of a menthol-scented foot bath promised and packaged in a Soap 'N Soak Box.

And as a literary footnote for someone's stocking, The New Foot Book will make an attractive, informative gift. (It's available for just 25 cents handling fee, by writing to Scholl, at 150 E. Huron, Chicago, 60611).

Flower magic thrives at Christmas time

For the Christmas season, the homemaker and gardener can easily bring some garden magic into the home as part of the holiday scene.

The decorations can be simple or elaborate. The materials used can be gathered from the garden and combined with fresh flowers from the local florist. These can then be highlighted with accessories from the garden or home. Let your imagination run rampant.

An old clock (top) can serve as the centerpoint of an arrangement of white chrysanthemums, colorful carnations and pompon mums combined with holly and pine branches.

Christmas flowers for the dinner table (bottom, right) include roses, holly, evergreens and eucalyptus. Candles and colorful styrofoam snowballs accent the holiday theme.

Clippings from garden evergreens, pine cuttings, cones and deciduous branches can all be put to good use for an arrangement. After the accessory has been selected, tape a block of florist foam to a shallow bowl and thoroughly soak the foam with warm water. Insert the greens into the foam to form an outline of the arrangement. Establish the size and shape with the clippings. After the lines have been established, work the flowers into the arrangement.

Insert the flowers deep into the foam material. Fill in the design with flowers and greens. Conceal the container with more green clippings and place the arrangement on the accessory. If using a statue in the arrangement, use it as the focal point and work flowers and greens around.

Proper care will lengthen the life of the flowers and greens. For most flowers hot water is recommended (as hot as your hand will comfortably stand). A flower preservative will add life to the arrangement. Loose flowers or the finished arrangement should be kept in a cool place overnight.

It is wise to avoid placing evergreen over or too near candles or other source of heat. If evergreens are used in their natural state, freshen them from time to time by sprinkling with water.

Cook a package of frozen broccoli until tender. Then wrap each broccoli piece with a slice of salami and place, seam side down, in a baking dish.

Thin a can of condensed mushroom soup with a little milk and pour over the rolls. Bake at 400 degrees about twenty minutes or until piping hot.

New iron makes nice gift

Glamorous gifts are fun to give. So, too, are practical gifts, such as an iron, because you know it will be used and appreciated many times during the year.

Someone you know may need a new iron, for instance, a relative or friend starting a career and furnishing an apartment for the first time. An iron is an essential household appliance and what a wonderful present it would be for someone on your list.

General Electric's new Surge of Steam self-cleaning iron is big on conveninece and little on care. This iron is both a dry and steam iron plus it has an extra surge of steam that can be used to get out deep wrinkles or to set creases.

Another important feature is an exclusive self-cleaning system, which cleans the iron over the sink and not on the clothes. The system helps prevent brown spotting and clogging so the iron steams better longer. And this iron is practical in another way. It uses most tap water.

With an attractive harvest-colored handle and sleek lines, this new iron from GE will make a pleasant surprise for someone to unwrap on Christmas Day.

A GIFT FOR THE HOME is something that gives pleasure to the entire family for many years. Schneller Furniture, Arlington Heights, features furniture for all rooms, occasional pieces, lamps, paintings and prints and many accessories. There is something to fit all gift budgets, all decors and most available for Christmas delivery.

Watchbands make fashionable gifts

Has that favorite person of yours been waiting and waiting for a "free moment" to replace the old watchband that has become an ugly eyesore on the wrist? Why not buy a stylish new one for a gift and drop it into the Christmas stocking?

Watchbands are becoming more and more fashionable with each passing year, and many of them make good gift items.

Although watchbands are available in a wide assortment of styles and sizes, selecting a proper band is not difficult. The holiday shopper only has to be able to describe the watch to his retail jeweler. The jeweler can select the appropriate width, color and endhook, and can also help to choose the most fashionable style.

Merry Xmasound to all our friends . . .

Autosound, that place on the Highway, is celebrating their sixth Christmas with you. That's right. We've been selling and installing quality car stereos for over 6 years. We're proud of that, and grateful to you for making it possible. Right now we'd like to give you something in return. If you purchase a car stereo and 2 speakers from us or leave a deposit with us on or before December 14, we will install your stereo system for FREE anytime either before or after Christmas. So, if you've got someone special on your list that deserves a great stereo music system, stop in and let us return the favor.

Because of the value of this offer, it will be necessary for you to tell the salesman you saw this ad. We will not be promoting this offer again either in the store or in print.

Have a great Holiday season. Thanks for appreciating the difference.

Sincerely,
Gordon and Conky

MILTON BRADLEY BRINGS the Peanuts gang to life with puzzles designed for children between the ages of two through five.

Gang's here in Peanuts puzzles

In keeping with the "Peanuts" philosophy of life, "a friend is someone who likes you," Playskool brings the whole "Peanuts" cartoon crowd together. They're the stars of a new line of a dozen brightly-colored Peanuts Puzzles for two to five-year-olds.

Since just about everybody likes the "Peanuts" gang, what better friends could Playskool introduce into its inlaid woodboard line than Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Lucy, Sally, Linus, Peppermint Patty and even, Woodstock!

Each 9½" by 11½" puzzle, in seven to 11 pieces, engagingly depicts a cartoon friend in a familiar pose. They're all painted with bright, non-toxic paint onto the puzzle plaques which can be stored in their own trays.

Little "Peanuts" fans will have more fun than ever meeting the challenge of completing a puzzle. Learning to distinguish shapes and putting pieces together to create a picture of Charlie Brown or Snoopy will prove to be a rewarding experience likely to be repeated over and over again.

An assortment of Peanuts Puzzles will make great coordination, color and shape contributions to any playroom and all playmates.

AT 9800 MILWAUKEE AVENUE

SEE THE AREA'S BIGGEST SELECTION

We were just going to have a humble sale. But when we started adding up the reasons why this sale was so special, and why Karnes is such a good place to buy from, we had no choice but to suspend humility for the duration of this sale.

Here's why:

1. We have 48,500 square feet loaded with musical instruments. Besides over 200 pianos and organs, we're the WORLD'S LARGEST SUPPLIERS OF BAND INSTRUMENTS.
2. We're the home of famous brand names.
3. Besides our huge inventory, we have the SERVICE PERSONNEL always available to make sure you are enjoying your Karnes musical instruments.
4. We have teachers, studios, and educational programs available for all musical instruments.
5. We have music professionals to help teach you the joys of music that have become their way of life. You talk music to music people. Their credentials contain more letters than federally funded agencies.
6. 1,000's and 1,000's of people have enjoyed the many musical benefits provided by Karnes throughout the years. While others come and go, Karnes thrives on a tradition of product and service it guards jealously.
7. As if these weren't reasons enough, take a look at the low prices now being offered.

THAT'S WHY WE SAY, IF WE PRESENTED ALL OF THESE REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY FROM KARNES IN A HUMBLE WAY, IT JUST WOULDN'T BE HONEST!

Cutlery gifts? A cut above others

Here's a really keen Christmas gift that's appropriate for him, her or them. La Coutellerie, a handsome cutlery set from Imperail Knife Company, is a welcome present whether home is a studio apartment in a high-rise, a split-level dwelling in the suburbs, a condominium in a retirment community or a country cottage.

The five knives and their decorated holder have the admirable faculty of fitting in with any kitchen decor. The stylized harvest-of-vegetables notif on the holder harmonizes with any color scheme and goes beautifully with many lines of oven-to-table cookware.

La Coutellerie has more to offer than mere good looks, however. The painstaking skill of New England craftsmen working with space-age materials has produced a distinctive cutlery set that will please the most exacting cook.

The stain-resistant blades of the five knives are hand-crafted of Molybdenum Plus, the hardest, toughest steel usable for cutlery. The indestructible molded Duraplex III handles are dishwasher-safe and have been designed to fit more comfortably into the hand and balance perfectly.

The trim safety holder has a special blade-hang feature so there's never any need to touch a blade. Double-sided, peel-off tape or screws secure the holder to the wall.

The set has a two-year replacement guarantee.

KIDS CAN NOW "serve" up lots of fun with a mini replica of a real McDonald's that does everything but serve the burgers and fries. The 20 piece set is from Playskool.

Children can own McDonald's

Most of us know how much fun it is for a child to eat at world-famous McDonald's. Just the whisper of the possibility is enough to elicit squeals of joy and delight, followed by gymnastic antics and interminable queries of "Is it time to go yet?"

Imagine how much fun that child would have if he or she owned a McDonald's!

Playskool now makes it possible with a mini replica of a real McDonald's that does everything but serve burgers and fries. Even if it could produce "Big Macs" and shakes, the 20 piece set in colorful, durable plastic, couldn't be more exciting for three to eight year olds.

There's a 12" x 11" x 8¾" red-roofed McDonald's building, tables, trays of pretend food, a cash register that rings up sales, a ride for kiddies, the familiar golden arches, a built-in trash can, two cars to drive in and out, two adult customers, two children and three smiling McDonald's men to serve them. Colorful wall illustrations simulate racks of food and include a portrait of clown, Ronald McDonald. There's even a parking field play mat (24"x28") with landscaping and a "hamburger patch" on which to build this imaginary, fascinating "Mac" world.

In all, there's plenty to stimulate the little owner's imagination, and plenty to learn as he takes on the roles of counterman, manager, customer and director of the whole show.

Children learn by imitating what grown-ups do. Between the ages of three and eight, they try on the roles they may or may not play later in life. They boss each other and correct each other until each player understands how a family works, how a school is conducted, how a small business like a McDonald's is operated.

It's valuable, vital play. A familiar, yet new friend like McDonald's, from Playskool, the company whose new motto is "Our Toys Make Good Friends," makes it all even more exciting.

Give gift of musical instrument

Music is as much a part of Christmas as minced pie and a Christmas tree. It is likewise a part of the contemporary scene today. Those are just two good reasons why an instrument can represent the ideal gift for that special youngster in your life.

When a Christmas treasure delivers the pleasure of making music, especially to a younger aged six and up, the joy of opening the package is only the beginning.

Years of increasing enjoyment lie ahead as the child plays for his own delight or to entertain others. Playing a musical instrument becomes a rewarding hobby that lasts a lifetime.

So the question becomes, "Which instrument?"

The Selmer Music Division of The Magnavox Company suggests you consider first the child and his preferences.

The Selmer people have been making instruments for young beginners, as well as accomplished professional musicians, almost since the turn of the century, and they are noted for the professional-grade quality of their instruments for beginners.

Selmer people suggest further that you stress the hobby or pleasure aspect of making music. By all means, don't make a beginner feel he has to be a musical genius, or most of the potential enjoyment will be destroyed.

If the child shows a strong liking for the guitar, be happy. Today, guitars have both popularity and status. What's more, they often cost less than other musical instruments.

If playing in the school band is his goal, a woodwind, brass or percussion instrument could be the right choice. Selmer's moderately priced Bundy line offers fine instruments for young boys and girls, and so does the Signet line, with the plus of even greater professional-grade quality.

Whatever your choice, one thing is certain: When next Christmas rolls around, family festivities will be merrier; a proud youngster performs on the musical instrument you made it possible for him to own this Christmas.

Best gift might be under your roof

This Christmas give your daughter the privacy she needs for study (and to entertain her friends). This most appreciated gift might well be hidden right under your roof!

Santa suggests you give your youngster an attractive room of her own, remodeled from wasted space that was once a cluttered attic. He discovered that most attics are constructed in such a way that the main supports are in place. Because of this, a do-it-yourselfer can easily add a ceiling, walls and floor.

After "Santa" finished the carpentry and tile application, mother and daughter became Santa's helpers and decorated the room in a manner reflecting their own good taste.

Washable sleeping bags make outdoors a lot more comfortable

Even the most hardy sportsman will tell you that sleeping comfort is the key to top enjoyment of the great outdoors.

The folks at the Coleman Company, the world's largest maker of sleeping bags and other popular outdoor equipment, agree.

The result is an extension of their prominent washable sleeping bag line for 1974.

Four new models, all made to fill a particular need, have been added to six models introduced a year ago.

Whether you're on the hiking trail, in a modern campground or traveling in a recreational vehicle, the new washable bags will fill your needs.

All are pre-shrunk and have colorfast dyes that won't run or bleed.

All have reinforced stress points, adding strength where it's needed most.

All mate into double bags. Zip two of them together and you have a big, comfy double bag with more than ample room for two adults. An excellent item for the mattress in your rec vehicle!

There are no tight spots to interfere with sleeping enjoyment or cramp your feet.

Scrolled-stitched quilting keeps padding in place.

Best of all, it takes just one round in the washing machine and the bags are just as good as new. Just as roomy, just as rugged, and there's no comfort loss or time consuming airing problems.

THAT'S OUR BAG — Four new sleeping bags, all completely washable, have been added to its line by the famous Coleman Company, world's largest sleeping bag manufacturer. Washable bags are ideal for camping and other outdoor activities. Each new model mates with a similar bag to form a double unit.

CUPCAKE THE DOUGHBEAR. It's a chubby, soft plush bear that's lovable as can be. Acrylic pile is hand washable; his bib is permanent press. And he'll be cuddled and hugged by tots and teens alike.

Give books just for fun

Books satisfy curiosity, instruct and educate, show how to do things, explore special interests, take armchair travelers on magic journeys, tell stories realistic and romantic.

Most of all, because they're interesting and fun to read, books enjoy a special place on just about everyone's gift list.

Best sellers, fiction or non-fiction, usually please, if Santa makes sure the person he's gifting hasn't already read the book.

Many other delightful books, while they may have missed the best seller list, are well worth reading, and the gift giver who seeks them out will be giving the bonus of happy discovery. Salespeople can be helpful in selecting such books.

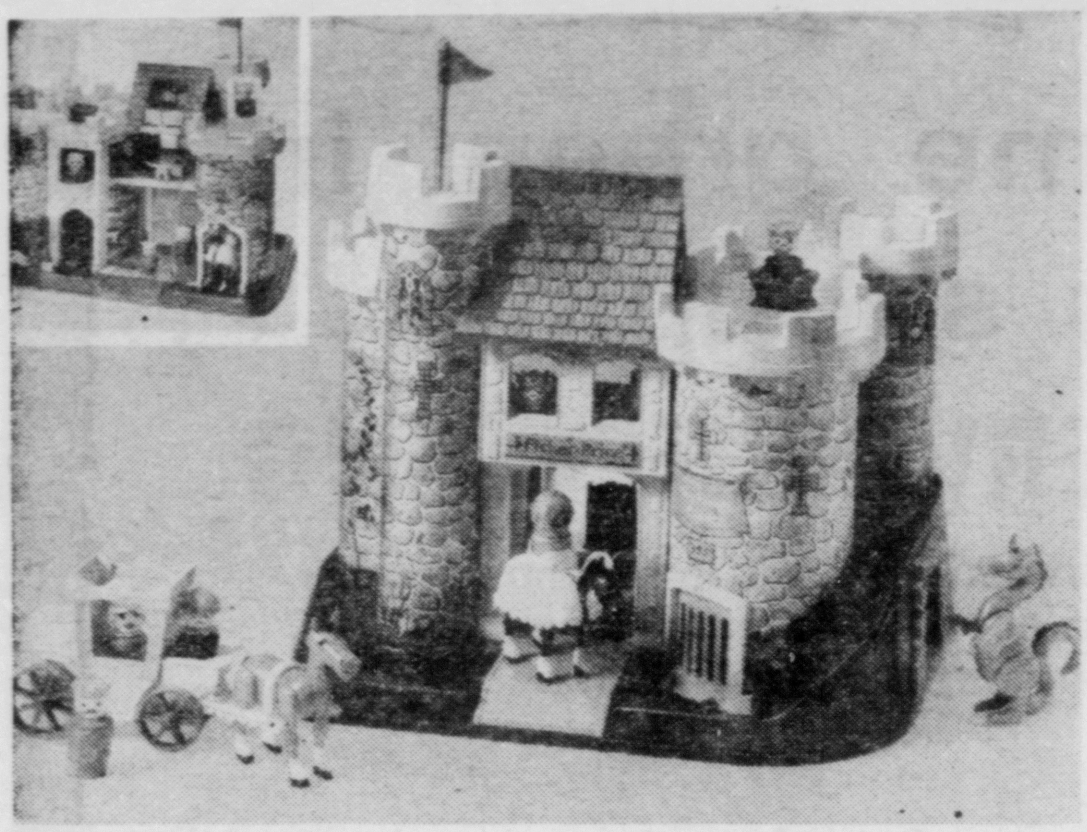
Reference works — atlases, dictionaries, encyclopedias — put books in the big gift category and offer long-lived usefulness.

Books on special subjects — subjects as varied as art and artists, birds and animals, history and philosophy — are published at the gifts season. They're both impressive and interesting.

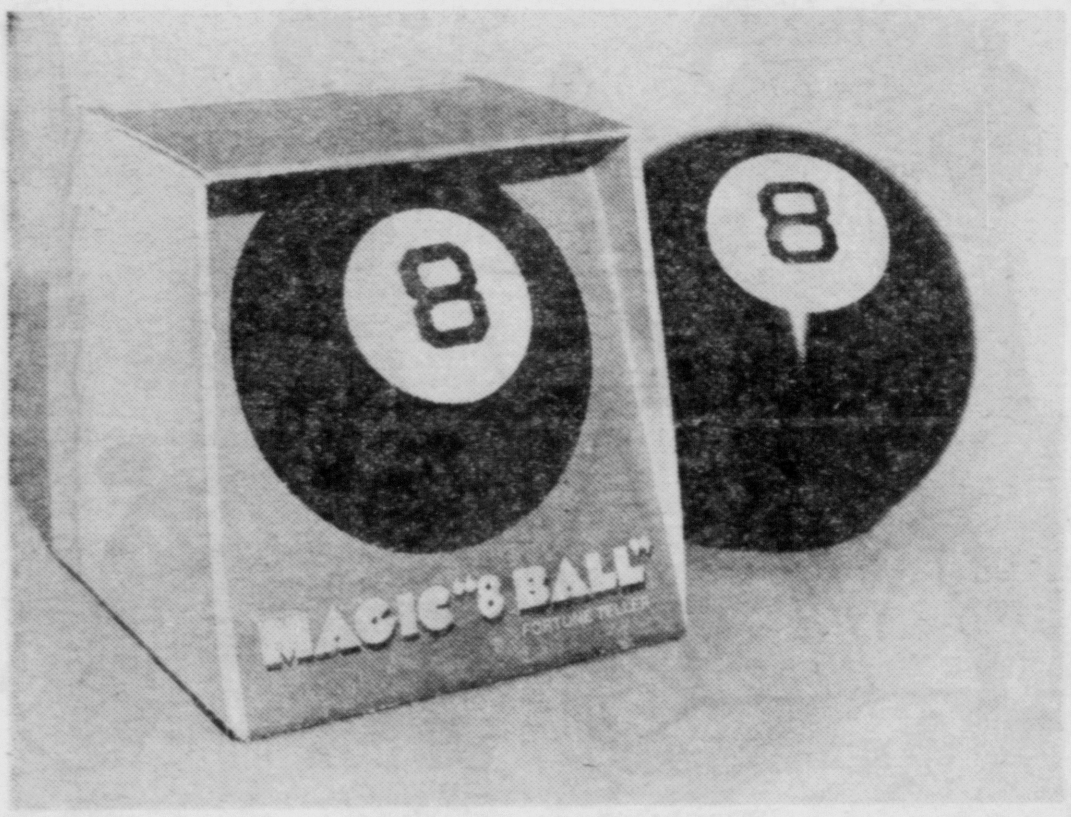
How-to books guide the gardener, the home handyman, the amateur decorator, the home sewing set, the gourmet cook — to mention just a few.

Still other books appeal to the hobbyist, in every field from stamp collecting to painting to model building.

Sports, travel, photography and other special interests are catered to by a wealth of books, ready for giving.



PLAY FAMILY CASTLE by Fisher-Price Toys broadens the world of fantasy for children from 2-10. The toy is self-contained and can be closed and carried about by the roof handle.



ASK THE MAGIC "8 Ball" from Alabe Crafts, Inc. a question ... Turn it over ... And the answer mysteriously appears in the window. Magic "8 Ball" surprises you with answers to all your questions. Fun for the entire family. Fun with friends. Fun with the future.

Let us put some green into your Christmas shopping . . .

with CREDIT RESERVE CHECKING

It happens . . . especially at Christmastime . . . The balance in your checking account isn't sufficient to cover the cost of your Christmas shopping. Where will you get the money?

1. You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account - CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

2. A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

3. You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

State employment offices to open 24 hours a day

by JILL BETTNER

The sinking economy and the rising unemployment rate will prompt Illinois State Employment Service offices to keep open their doors 24 hours a day statewide beginning next week, The Herald has learned.

Gov. Daniel Walker will announce a statewide battle plan next Tuesday to combat unemployment titled "Hire Now." Press conferences are scheduled in Chicago, Waukegan, Elgin, Aurora and Joliet.

A spokesman in the governor's office said Tuesday there has been rising concern within the state administration over the accelrating unemployment rate in Illinois and particularly in the Chicago araa.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN Illinois has been lower than the national average, but that gap is beginning to close. Walker announced Nov. 6 that he would seek increased unemployment benefits and improved employment services through the Illinois General Assembly.

Details on the "Hire Now" campaign were not immediately available, but it appears the thrust of the programs will be to expand services mainly in Chicago.

William Hunt, state employment service public affairs director, said he did not think the operations of the employment service's Des Plaines office, which serves the Northwest suburbs, would be affected.

"There will be no 24-hour service in Des Plaines," Hunt said. "I'm not really even sure why the suburbs are included in this thin gexcept that there are a lot of employers in the suburbs who live in Chicago.

"THE UNEMPLOYMENT problems are mainly in the city — it's much less in the suburbs," Hunt continued. "In fact, if there are jobs anywhere, it's in the suburbs."

Job orders from employers coming into the Des Plaines state employment office are down about 25 to 30 per cent, one official said. The office serves 19 Chicago suburbs.

Employment service officials in both Chicago and Springfield refused Tuesday to outline specifics of the "Hire Now" campaign or spell out precisely what action Walker will take to help ease the worsening unemployment situation in the state.

Consumer unit attracts interest here

Buffalo Grove officials have indicated interest in plans for a village consumer council and have asked Sherry Weinstein, who proposed the council, to provide them with more information.

At Monday's president's roundtable, Mrs. Weinstein told village board members of her interest in starting a state consumer advocate council in Buffalo Grove and asked the village to provide office facilities and equipment.

The roundtable sessions were started by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong to provide residents an opportunity to meet with village leaders in informal discussion of ideas and opinions concerning the village.

Roundtables are held four times each year in place of village board meetings.

ARMSTRONG said the village board members would consider the request at an upcoming meeting if Mrs. Weinstein can furnish them with information on such matters as possible insurance liabilities to the village.

"I think there's a lot of merit to considering it," Armstron said Tuesday. "Our concern would be one of what if any exposures that agency would place upon the village from a legal standpoint."

Mrs. Weinstein said Tuesday the governor's consumer-advocate office has agreed to send an attorney to the village board to answer questions on such liabilities. She said she will appear before the board sometime in January.

The council is different, from the Illinois Attorney General's consumer fraud office in the village hall that handles fraud complaints, she said.

She said the council, if established in Buffalo Grove, would channel complaints on questionable business practices to proper state agencies for investigation and would involve itself in consumer advocacy programs.

Village employes to get pay raises next year: Larson

Buffalo Grove should be able to accommodate pay raises for its employes next year despite a tight financial picture if unforeseen expenses do not arise, said Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Although Larson would not say how high a pay raise would be considered, he said pay scales will be adjusted according to the availability of funds.

A spokesman in the police department said, however, police are considering asking for a 15 to 20 per cent pay increase.

Larson said the pay increase could go into effect by May 1, the beginning of the 1975-76 fiscal year if the village is able to complete its budget for board approval by then.

Larson announced last week the village staff will begin budget preparation a month earlier this year in hopes of getting it approved before the April elections. He said he has instructed department heads to furnish him with proposed salary ranges for review next January.

AS A FIRST STEP in determining next year's pay scales, Larson said he is surveying wage rates of municipal workers in other towns. That would be a factor in arriving at new pay rates for Buffalo Grove employes, he said.

"We want to consider the employes as much as possible," he said. "They're the basis for the operation of the village.

Patrolman William Bennett, a police spokesman, said the 15 to 20 per cent pay hike for village police is under study and will be submitted for review by Police Chief Harry J. Walsh when completed.

Last year police salaries were increased between 6 and 7.8 per cent.

PUBLIC WORKS DIRECTOR Charles McCoy said he has conferred with Larson on raises for his 21 employes, but said he has not determined the size of pay increases to be in his budget.

Elk Grove Village planning sports stadium

Arena could lure Cougars hockey team out of amphitheater and into suburb

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village officials are laying the groundwork for a major sports stadium, possibly for the Chicago Cougars, on a 36-acre site at the northeast corner of Busse and Landmeier roads.

The village completed negotiations Tuesday to buy the land for $1.7 million and Tuesday night hired the Chicago accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. to analyze the marketing and economic potential of the property.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek acknowledged he has been in contact with officials of the Chicago Cougars about using the arena for the team's hockey games.

HAGGERTY SAID THE club has not decided where to relocate, but added: "We are anxious to be in an involvement as soon as possible."

Zettek said the Elk Grove Village arena could be used by the Cougars, "however, that's only about 50 days of use a year. I see an arena in this area as the home for concerts, circuses and community events.

"However, I am not a marketing expert and that's why we plan to seek a professional study — to determine the best use of the property."

Zettek said he sees a stadium-convention center complex as the most likely uses for the newly-acquired property. "The prime, but not the only use of the land would be as a multi-purpose arena and convention center to serve the whole Northwest suburban area," he said. Other possible uses include a public works building and major water-storage reservoir.

"THEY WERE INTERESTED, of course, in the possibility of an Elk Grove Village facility," he said, "however, I cannot see how it could help them out of their present dilemma. It would take us over a year to build a sports arena and they need a place to play right now."

Michael Haggerty, a spokesman for the Cougars, described Elk Grove Village as "certainly a great site" and said it is among many the club has considered.

The Cougars earlier expressed interest in sites in Palatine, Mount Prospect and Schaumburg, eventually settling for property in Rosemont. The club's plans in Rosemont, however, have since fallen through, and Cougar owners are seeking $13 million in damages from the village and others involved in the agreement to build the arena there.

The village board Tuesday night instructed Village Atty. Edward Hofert to prepare ordinances to annex the property to the village.

THE COST OF THE land is expected to come from budgeted funds for land acquisition. The village's $13 million budget includes a $4 million appropriation for land acquisition, which was responsible for an 83 per cent jump from the previous corporate fund total.

Zettek said "nobody is going to rush into anything. The land itself was a good investment just because of where it lies and even if it stays empty it will increase in value," he said.

Zettek was authorized last spring to negotiate the purchase and said it took several months to complete. The property is part of the Esther and Dorell Everding estate, and there are as many as 35 heirs who have claim to the estate.

President to be well paid

The new Schaumburg village president will be the highest paid part-time municipal official in the Northwest suburbs when he takes office next spring. Village trustees have endorsed an annual compensation for the office of $14,680 — two or three times what other part-time mayors and village presidents in the area are paid. Robert O. Atcher, Schaumburg's full-time village president, is retiring in April and his successor will hold the office on a part-time basis. Village Pres. Gary Armstrong of Buffalo Grove, quipped that he was "going to move" when told of the salary figure.

Tenants work to keep janitor

Newman Black has made some friends in the five years he has been building superintendent at Town Square apartments in Schaumburg. The building has been sold and as of Saturday, Black, 54, will be out of a job. But tenants have joined in an effort to keep him. "Mr. Black has always been pleasant, cooperative and prompt whenever I have needed service," said one resident. "New managers like to bring help from their former positions with them, but we, the tenants, want Mr. Black." Half the tenants have signed petitions to keep him, but Black does not feel their efforts will do much good. The janitor's union is making an inquiry into Black's firing.

Dist. 211 could get $5 million

High School Dist. 211 is faced with the option of accepting nearly $5 million — with strings attached — from the state or footing the bill itself for construction of the district's sixth school in Palatine. The district is eligible for a grant from the Illinois Capital Development Board, but along with it would come controls over the construction. Dist. 211 board members say the state agency may tie up the project, causing costly delays. Voters in the district last month authorized the sale of $15.5 million in bonds to finance the school.

Students upset over buses

Students at Maine West High School are complaining again about overcrowding of school buses. One group is passing petitions asking for an extra after-school bus on a route that regularly leaves some students behind because the bus is too crowded to carry them.

Helton sentenced today

Convicted murderer Ronald Helton will be sentenced today for the 1969 robbery-slaying of an Arlington Heights service station manager. Helton, 21, was found guilty Nov. 6 of killing Fred J. Taillon, 64, in the course of an $87 armed robbery of the Arlington Park Shell service station, Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue, in the predawn hours of Nov. 11, 1969. Circuit Court Judge Jacques F. Heilingoetter found Helton guilty after a four-day bench trial. Heilingoetter said in his verdict that it was "immaterial who did the actual stabbing" and that Helton had "clearly indicated" his involvement in the crime.

More funds for Weller Creek

Des Plaines officials probably will finance the increased city share of the Weller Creek improvement project through an additional appropriation in the 1975 budget. Increased costs have forced the price tag on the project from $150,000 to $217,435 over the past year. The state will provide $50,000 and Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have agreed to share the remaining cost.

Welfare scandal could be nation's biggest: probers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Investigators probing a Chicago welfare-fraud case have uncovered evidence of what they say could be the most massive public aid-bilking scheme in the nation's history.

Joel Edelman, executive director of the Illinos Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Aid, told the committee it may take months to finish the investigation of charges against Lynda Taylor, 47, of Chicago.

Mrs. Taylor was scheduled for arraignment today in Cook County Circuit Court on a 31-count fraud indictment involving her alleged receipt of illegal welfare benefits, medical assistance, food stamps, Social Security and veterans' benefits.

"When the entire story is told, I believe this will prove to be the most massive case of welfare fraud that has ever been perpetrated in the 50 states," Edelman said. "It baffles the imagination."

EDELMAN SAID evidence uncovered by the Chicago police and state and federal investigators indicates Mrs. Taylor masterminded a sophisticated, interstate scheme in which she used 80 different names, 30 addresses and 15 telephone numbers.

She is accused of receiving benefits on behalf of three deceased husbands and 27 children — some of them supposedly born after Mrs. Taylor allegedly underwent a hysterectomy in Florida.

SEN. DON A. MOORE, R-Midlothian, chairman of the committee, said new evidence indicates Mrs. Taylor also may have posed as a physician in Chicago and Michigan in a plot to illegally obtain Medicaid payments.

"We know for a fact she is not licensed to practice anywhere," Moore said.

Moore said state welfare officials cannot estimate how much Mrs. Taylor may have received illegally throughout the scheme, part of which he said dates to 1946.

He said she has received at least $150,000 annually from the state in cash assistance alone.

EDELMAN SAID state investigators will put together a report including recommendations to the Illinois Department of Public Aid on how to avoid similar massive claims in the future.

"We believe there are loopholes in the present system," Edelman said. "Had they not been there this would not have happened."

Taxpayers the victims

'Welfare queen' —a ripoff artist

"Welfare queen" Lynda Taylor, so the accusation goes, turns from black to Latino to white with the change of a wig.

She is said to have used a maze of aliases, addresses, telephone numbers, deceased husbands and even children — presumably "born" after a hysterectomy — all to fight inflation in a big, illegal way.

Former state Public Aid Director Joel Edelman said hers may prove to be "the most massive case of welfare fraud ever perpetrated in the 50 states."

BRIDGET HUTCHEN, the assistant Cook County state's attorney prosecuting her case, said most of the investigators' stories about Mrs. Taylor are probably true.

"But what makes me angry about all the stories is that most of them are not indictable. We simply don't have the facts on all of those things," she said.

State Sen. Donald Moore of Midlothian said Mrs. Taylor has bilked the state public aid system of at least $150,000 in the past 12 months "and probably as much in the past three to four years." But Miss Hutchen said only 19 counts of welfare fraud against her are "sure."

MRS. TAYLOR will be arraigned on those charges today before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Joseph A. Powers.

There are the nine counts of theft for receipt of welfare checks in 1974 under the name of Connie Walker; the two counts of theft for checks received under the name of Linda Bennett, and seven counts of perjury on a denied application for welfare last April in the name of Sandra Brownlee.

"And there's one count of bigamy," Miss Hutchen said. "We know she has at least two living husbands."

Miss Hutchen said the indictments charged Mrs. Taylor with receiving $7,600 in welfare payments in 1974 and another $400 a month since August, 1969.

MORE SAID the $150,000 figure he quoted does not include food stamps, medical aid, or other welfare benefits she received during the period.

She also is known to have posed as a physician in order to obtain Medicaid payments, he said.

"And we have no idea of how much she was able to get in Social Security, veterans benefits and whatever else." (UPI)

Ford asks $4.6 billion spending cut to slow inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford proposed a $4.6 billion cut in federal spending Tuesday to slow inflation, but his budget director said the reductions would boost unemployment and have little immediate impact on rising prices.

About 75 per cent of the cuts Ford proposed in a special message to Congress would come in socially-oriented programs, although direct aid such as social security and welfare still would receive about 20 per cent more funds than last year.

The President asked for a $1.7 billion reduction in the health, education and welfare budget; a $1.1 billion cut in spending for veterans; and a hike in the price of food stamps to make them cost 30 per cent of a recipient's income — the maximum allowed by law — next March 1.

The defense budget would be reduced almost $400 million beyond what Congress has already cut, but still would be about 6 per cent above last year's level.

In all, Ford asked Congress to take 135 separate "difficult" actions. One was the enactment of the 5 per cent income tax surcharge first proposed by Ford on Oct. 8.

Budget Director Roy M. Ash told reporters the new spending levels would cause 400,000 to 500,000 workers — almost all non-government employes — to lose their jobs.

The spending cutbacks, he said, would have "only a fractional effect" on the rate of inflation in the immediate future but there would be an important long-term trend toward "holding down inflation in future years."

Ash said even if Congress does everything Ford requested there will be a budget deficit of $9.2 billion — nearly triple last year's figure. If Congress refuses to go along with the President's proposals, Ash said, the deficit could soar to $17.6 billion.

Elsehwere on the economic front Tuesday:

• The United Mine Workers Bargaining Council reversed itself and voted to submit to the union membership for ratification the new three-year contract agreement with soft coal operators. Earlier, despite prodding by the government to break the deadlock in the 15-day-old strike by 120,000 miners, the council had rejected for the second time the contract agreement reached Nov. 12 with the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn.

• The Commerce Department reported the U.S. registered a surprising trade surplus of $29.4 million in October to indicate the economy has aassimilated and is now passing on higher oil prices to world markets.

• The Federal Home Loan Bank Board says mortgage interest rates on new homes dropped to 9.17 per cent in October — the first decline in 17 months.

• More major banks have lowered their prime interest rates to between 10 and 10½ per cent, and the vice chairman of Chemical Bank of New York predicted the prime would continue declining to about 8½ per cent by mid-1975.

• Because of production cutbacks, General Electric has announced the idling of 6,800 workers at a major Kentucky appliance factory. The workers will be laid off for at least a week.

Com-Ed land holdings hit by citizens group

A citizens group said Tuesday Commonwealth Edison's 2.2 million customers are being over-charged $1.23 million annually because the company is engaged in a land holdings "rip-off" in its utility rate base. Philip Miller, an investigator for the Citizens for a Better Government, said Edison owns almost 10,000 acres of land at six Illinois sites which are not being used for utility purposes, and which are not included in the firm's future utility plans.

An Edison spokesman said "It's customary for utilities to buy land long in advance of their actual need." He said it is economical because "once the word gets out that the utility, or any big company, is interested in the property the prices tend to go up."

Doctors to report on Nixon Friday

In Los Angeles yesterday, three court-appointed doctors said they had reached a unanimous conclusion on whether Richard Nixon is physically fit to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial, but will keep their finding confidential until they report to U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica Friday.

Meanwhile, at the trial in Washington, Judge Sirica, frustrated by unanswered questions, took over questioning of defendant John Mitchell as to why the burglars were paid thousands of dollars in cash. "The thing I can't understand in this matter is what reason there was for paying these people anything," Sirica said. Earlier, Mitchell testified he knew nothing about the payoffs.

A 'rigid ceiling'

Congress briefed on arms accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford told congressional leaders Tuesday that he agreed with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to restrict the United States and Russia to "a rigid ceiling" of less than 2,500 strategic missiles and bombers under a 10-year strategic arms accord.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, summarizing Ford's briefing, said the Vladivostok agreement would require Moscow to reduce its projected military buildup.

The ceiling, Nessen said, was "slightly above the American planned program."

"The new result: a rigid ceiling has been placed on delivery systems, and on MIRVs multiple nuclear warheads," the President told a gathering of congressional leaders of both parties.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, one of the administration's harshest critics on disarmament matters, was not invited to the presidential briefing but was filled in separately by a senior member of the National Security Council.

In London, meanwhile, the authoritative Jane's All the World's Aircraft said Tuesday the Soviet Union has significant superiority over the United States in antiaircraft defenses but the United States has a big margin in manned intercontinental bombers.

Jane's editor John W. R. Taylor said the current dismantling of U.S. defenses against air attack is responsible for Soviet superiority in this field.

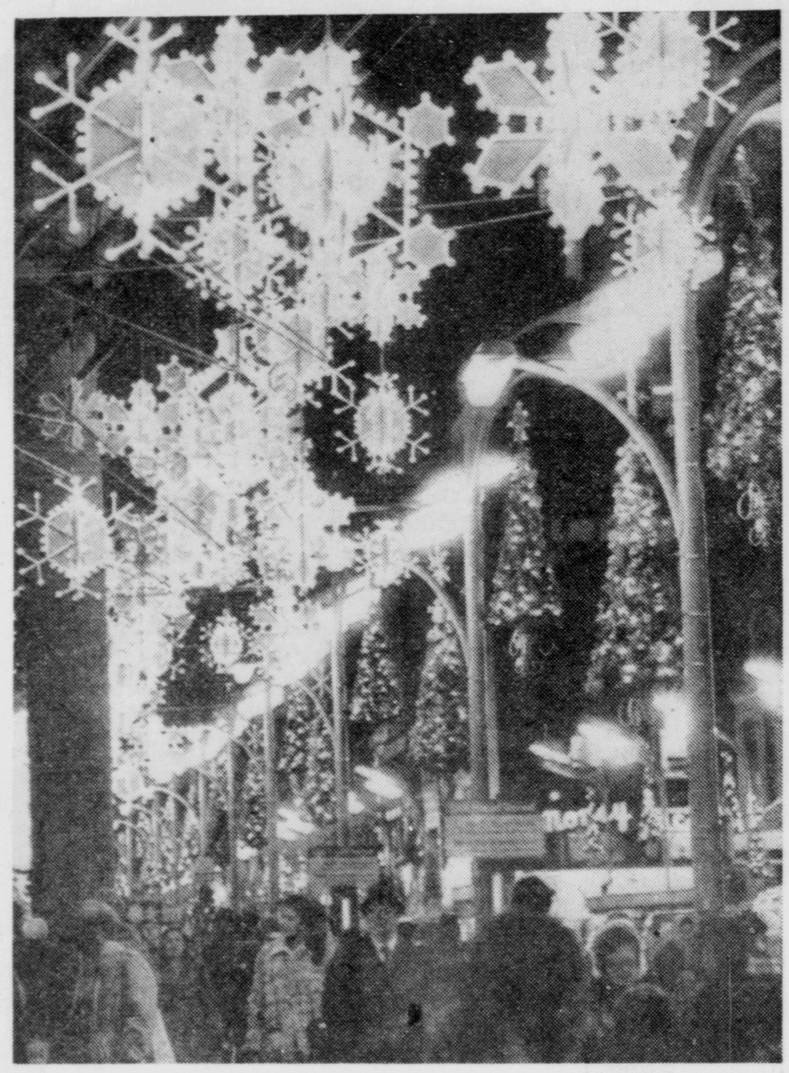
In other developments Tuesday:

• The Soviet Union rejected as "absolutely unacceptable" an offer from China to negotiate their border disputes because the Chinese demanded withdrawal of Soviet troops from the disputed zones.

The blunt Soviet reaction came in a speech in Mongolia by Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and at the same time in a telegram from the Supreme Soviet to the Chinese leaders. In his speech, Brezhnev also hailed the progress toward limiting nuclear arms in his weekend meeting with President Ford as "a considerable step forward."

• In Peking, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with Chinese leaders for the fourth time in 24 hours amid indications that he would invite one of Chairman Mao Tse-tung's top lieutenants to Washington.

At the same time American officials disclosed that Chinese leaders have made contact with former President Richard M. Nixon by sending him at least two letters since his Aug. 9 resignation. What the letters said and whether Nixon replied was not immediately known.



CHICAGO'S STATE street this week became a mile-long extravaganza of holiday decorations for the official opening of the holiday season.

Veterans bill vetoed; transit OKd

From Herald news services

Prssident Ford Tuesday signed into law an $11.8 billion bill to bolster the nation's bus, railway and subway systems, and vetoed another measure for increases in veterans' benefits.

The transit bill marks the first time the federal government has subsidized urban mass transit. Congressional leaders, governors and mayors of 15 big cities attended as Ford signed the compromise legislation to give the American commuter better service and perhaps save him fare money.

Most of the money, $7.8 billion, will go for construction and improvements on a case-by-case basis, with the federal government meeting 80 per cent of the costs.

Under another section of the bill, $4 billion will be apportioned to cities according to population and population density.

The veterans bill was reluctantly vetoed because Ford said it would have added another "half-billion-dollar load to the already overburdened taxpayer." The measure would have provided 23 per cent increases in benefits.

Ford said that veterans benefits "should — and can — be improved" and that he would support a GI bill providing for an 18.2 per cent benefit increase rather than the 23 per cent in the bill.

In other action yesterday:

• The House approved a $33 billion labor, health, education and welfare money bill with watered-down anti-busing provisions. The measure was approved on a 352-25 vote and sent to the Senate for expected final Congressional approval. President Ford told congressional leaders he would sign the bill.

• The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a $2.673 billion foreign aid authorization bill which would impose a spending ceiling of $1.267 billion for South Vietnam and phase out military assistance to South Korea over the next three years.

• The President vetoed legislation which should have provided extra tax breaks for certain disaster victims. Ford said the bill would provide "windfall benefits" to a group of people who already had been compensated for their disaster losses. Basically, the bill would have provided that individuals in areas declared disaster areas in 1972 could receive disaster assistance, and at the same time claim their losses as deductions against taxes.

Chicago hits record 866 murders for year

From Herald news services

The number of murders in Chicago moved to 866 Tuesday, with more than a month to go. The toll reached that record high yesterday when the naked body of a teen-aged girl was found in a vacant lot on the city's South Side.

In 1973 there were 864 murders in Chicago.

The girl had puncture wounds in her chest and police said she may have been raped.

In another case yesterday, investigators revised the cause of four deaths from fire to murder following the story of Charles Horace, 13.

The frightened boy told investigators three intruders raped and murdered his 3 sisters five weeks ago, clubbed his brother unconscious, left him to die, and covered the slayings with arson.

Young Horace told an inquest into his sister's and brother's deaths that three young men broke into his home on the night of Oct. 21, while his mother was visiting relatives.

They raped his sisters, Caroline, 17, Beattrice, 14, and Cathy, 11, he said, killing one by stabbing her in the neck, and the others by strangling.

Charles said he and a foster brother hid in a bedroom and managed to escape. A brother, Maurice, 7, was beaten unconscious and fatally burned when the intruders poured gasoline upstairs and downstairs and set the house afire.

On the basis of Horace's story, police reopened their investigation and arrested Lloyd Lindsey, 17, and Eugene Ford, 24, South Side residents. The two were charged with murder, rape and arson.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of a third suspect.

Investigators said Horace and his mother were sheltered in a church by their minister until Horace built up enough courage to tell police.

Experts urge huge stockpile of oil in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy experts at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology recommended Tuesday that the United States build a huge stockpile of crude oil to guard against any more oil embargoes.

The MIT Energy Laboratory Policy Group said a combination of stockpiling and other measures would be the best way to reduce embargo risks and at the same time hold the line on consumer prices. It said trying to halt all imports and achieve total independence in the 1980s would cause prices to skyrocket.

"The U.S. alone among major industrial nations has no provision for stockpiling crude oil beyond normal inventories," the groups said.

Discounting inflation, the group's report said prices equivalent to $11 to $13 per barrel would be necessary to increase U.S. fossil fuel production enough to satisfy domestic markets without imports in the 1980s.

"This means that . . . there would have to be another round of price increases for consumers roughly as great as that experienced in 1973-74," the report warned.

C&NW commuter engines to get new mufflers

All 56 locomotives in the Chicago and North Western Ry. commuter fleet are to be fitted with new mufflers for the auxiliary engines by the end of the year.

A railroad spokesman said the mufflers, which cost $400 each, have been tested for some time on C&NW locomotives. The sound-deadening system was developed to meet noise emission standards for the auxiliary Cummins diesel engines that supply heat and light to the suburban coaches.

Noise from the diesels has been a problem when the engines are idling, as they do in the Des Plaines yard during warm-up periods. Railroad spokesmen say tests show significant decreases in noise with the mufflers, and a system also has been devised to shut down half the engine during idling. Tests also are being made to quiet the main locomotive engines, which develop as much as 3,600 horsepower.

MSD non-union salaries hiked

Metropolitan Sanitary District employes who do not belong to trade unions will receive a 9 per cent cost of living raise in 1975, the MSD board has decided.

With Trustees Joan Anderson, Joanne H. Alter and William A. Jaskula opposing the pay hike, the board approved the move by a 5-to-3 vote.

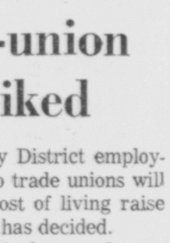
The pay raise included in the 1975 MSD budget is not expected to change the anticipated 1974 MSD tax rate of 36.95 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

THE 9 PER cent hike will go to approximately 1,300 employes who make up half the MSD work force. For workers affiliated with unions, the MSD pays the going rate that the unions receive in private contracts in the metropolitan area, although the district does not negotiate with the unions.

The board also approved issuing $20 million in bonds. Part of the district's $380 million bond authorization approved by the legislature, the money will be used to finance construction project.

The bonds were sold to the Northern Trust Bank in Chicago at an average rate over 20 year of 5.51513 per cent.

TV Bargain



by Ed Landwehr

After a ten year study, a national organization has estimated that the cost of a console color TV set breaks down to 53% for the set, 35% for service and maintenance and 12% for power. Although most TV sets last longer than ten years, even at this rate, it brings the cost down to less than $2 a week. This is a real family bargain for these inflationary times.

And many of our customers at Landwehr's Home Appliances even cut this 35% service cost by bringing their sets right to our shop and save the home call charge. Often, folks drop the set off on their way to work and pick them up at the end of the day if just minor service is necessary. We'll tell you what was wrong and guarantee our services to the fullest. To a burglar, that living room light means Mr. Jones is home.

To Mr. Jones in Florida, that's a comforting thought.

How do you keep an empty house from looking empty? With timing devices that turn lights on and off at pre-set times while you're away. To a would-be burglar, your house seems occupied.

Some devices have special light-sensitive cells that automatically turn a light on at dusk and off at dawn. Some allow the on-off cycle to occur several times a night. The craftiest burglar would never suspect.

The best time to use timers is while you're on vacation or on weekends away from home. But it's a good idea to use them any time you're away. A burglar can take advantage of an evening on the town as easily as a two-week vacation.

You can pick up these burglar-proofing devices from your hardware, department or discount store for a few dollars. And they don't use any more current than an electric clock. That's a small price to pay for all the protection you're getting.

Village may get $2,300 federal grant for its weather station

Buffalo Grove may get a $2,300 federal grant for the proposed village weather station, a public relations project the village so far has been unable to finance.

Village Administrative Assistant William Balling said Tuesday he is looking into the possibility the project can be funded through a government grant in connection with the National Weather Service.

Balling said he is waiting for a detailed cost estimate for the equipment to be completed before applying for the grant.

"It appears very basic," he said. "The village does fall within the guidelines of the grant and it would have to go through the federal review process so if we can write an application based on the information we have, we're right in the ball park I feel."

The project is designed to publicize the village by providing television and radio weather forecasters in the Chicago area with local weather conditions.

Irv Capitel, a member of the public relations committee studying the project, said broadcast weathermen have indicated interest in the project and said they would report weather conditions in Buffalo Grove on their shows.

The equipment would monitor wind direction, velocity, relative humidity, temperature and barometric pressure.

Village trustees have spoken out in favor of the idea but have been unable to commit funds for the project, hoping some other means of financing would be available.

Local officials to see if state will OK village 'welcome' sign

Buffalo Grove officials will see if the state will allow the village to place community signs on Dundee Road welcoming motorists to the village.

The signs cost $1,250 each and the Buffalo Grove Jaycees have undertaken fund-raising efforts in connection with the local Rotary Club chapter.

Ron Marcucilli, Jaycees president, said the organization probably will finance a major part of the project but was uncertain exactly how much would be allocated until the organization develops its budget for next year.

Trustee Edward Osmon, who has aided in a study of the project, said the village hopes to place signs in the Dundee Road medians but said there may be a problem of gaining approval of state officials.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said, however, that the signs proposed to be installed may be too large for state highway officials to accept.

He said the proposed sign is a "real monument" and said "the state has some pretty rigid restrictions for traffic safety" and may not accept the idea.

He said that if the state balks at the proposal, design for the signs may be changed or an alternate localtion may be sought.

Village employes to get pay hikes

will differ according to job classifications.

Also to take effect next year is a pay raise for village trustees from $7.50 to $25 per meeting allowing for a maximum trustee salary of $100 per month.

Village board members voted themselves the increase last year. The hike does not affect current trustees but will take effect for new trustees elected next year and all village board members elected after that.

Butcher, customers donate food to Little City

Residents of Palatine's Little City will be enjoying their Thanksgiving Day turkey dinner compliments of Arlington Heights merchants, local residents and James Howland.

Howland, owner of Howland's Meat Market, 14 S. Evergreen Ave., will donate a 35-pound turkey to Little City, a residential school for mentally and physically handicapped children west of Harper College.

"I was hungry when I was a kid, several times," he said. "I figured I'd help other kids out this Thanksgiving."

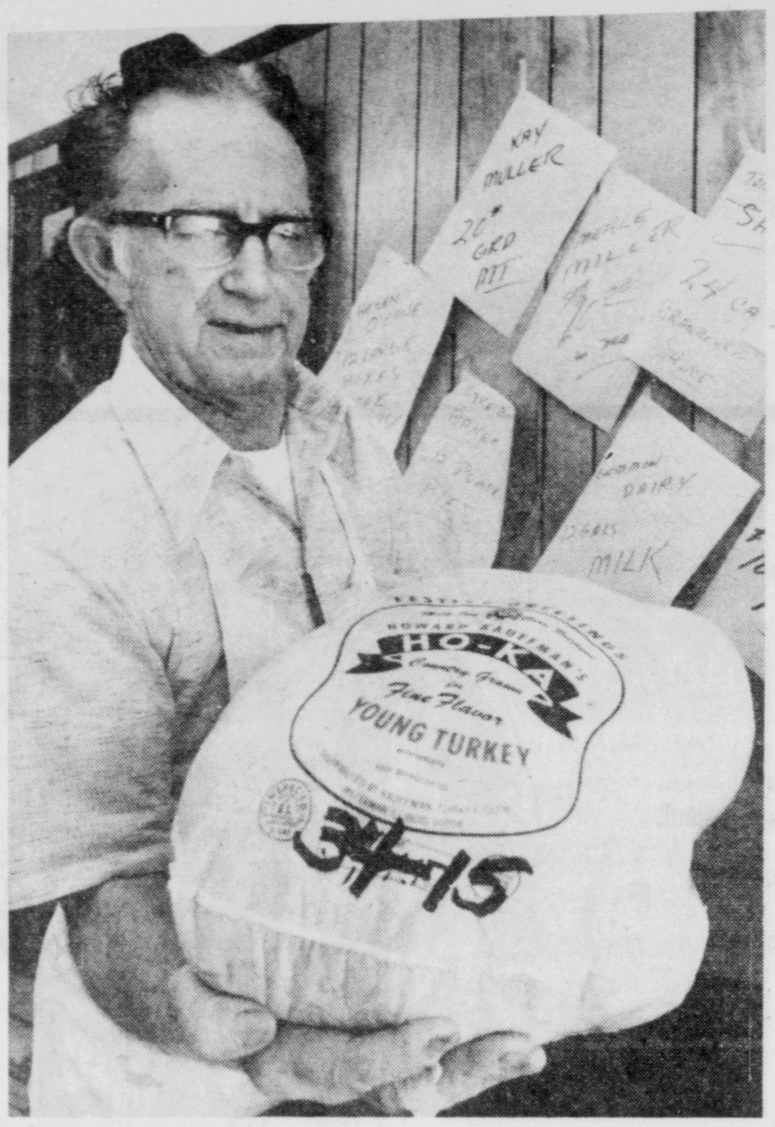
Howland put an empty barrel in his shop for customer donations. The barrel filled quickly with canned goods and promises from interested merchants. The Cake Box bakery, 15 W. Campbell St., said it would donate a dozen pumpkin pies. Tom's Barber Shop, 26 S. Evergreen Ave., donated 24 cans of cranberry sauce. Howland's employes added a case of canned goods and 25 pounds of potatoes.

"The people saw the barrel, heard, about it, and donated. There was no pressure at all," said Howland.

Noreen Davies of Little City, said, "We didn't have our turkey yet, and this will be a great help to our budget. It was Mr. Howland's idea, for which we're very grateful."

Howland selected the turkey this week, a hefty bird which would normally sell for about $35, he said. It will be on display in his shop until it and the other donations are delivered to the school today.

"People and my customers are very big hearted," Howland said.



JAMES HOWLAND displays the turkey he is donating to Palatine's Little City for Thanksgiving. Posted behind him are the names and donations of several other Arlington Heights businesses and residents. Howland, a meat market owner, said he often was hungry as a boy and wanted to help others.

Make gifts mandatory, village urged

Wheeling parks want land, cash donations

by JOE FRANZ

The Wheeling Park District will ask the village board to consider requiring builders to make cash or land donations to school and park districts as a condition for approval of residential developments.

The park board will base its request on a recent decision by a DuPage County Circuit Court judge that upheld a Naperville ordinance requiring cash or land donations from builders annexing large developments to the village. The ruling is expected to be appealed.

The suit challenging Naperville's law was filed by the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago and several builders with projects in that village. The builders say the ordinance creates double taxation in violation of the state and federal constitutions because taxpayers who purchase the homes pay for the donation through higher home prices.

"I think the village should look into adopting something like this for our community," said Comr. Lorraine Lark. "The Naperville ordinance has been given some teeth by the court's decision and I think now is the time to consider it."

PARKS SUPT. David Phillips said Tuesday the park district has not pushed for such an ordinance or resolution in the past because the matter was pending in court.

"I've been in favor of a Naperville ordinance for a long time," Phillips said. "However, there have been difficulties because it has been in litigation. Our board and other park boards did not want to jump on the bandwagon until the court determined whether the ordinance was constitutional."

Because the court supported the ordinance, Phillips said the park district will be more confident in working for a similar policy in Wheeling. He said, however, there will be some uncertainty until a decision is reached on the appeal.

"I can't speak for the park board, but I don't think we'll act in haste on this matter," Phillips said. "I think a lot of things will have to be considered and that the park board and village board will have to work together."

VILLAGE MGR. Geroge Passolt said Tuesday that although the village, to his knowledge, never has considered a policy similar to Naperville's, builders are required to contact the school and park districts prior to getting plans approved.

"We don't require donations, but they (developers) are required to get in touch with the school and park districts and get a letter from them saying they are satisfied," Passolt said.

"I'm not sure whether the village board would make something like this a resolution, but it might be something to look into," he said.

The park district has received some donations, but they have been "token donations at most," Phillips said. "Yes, we have received some land donations, but they have not helped us much because they have been very minimal to say the least."

IN ADDITION to Naperville, Arlington Heights has passed an ordinance requiring donations from builders. Buffalo Grove has passed a resolution and Elk Grove Village requires donations as part of a village policy.

Naperville and Buffalo Grove require builders to make donations based on the population of the development and Elk Grove Village requires 10 per cent of the land be donated for public use. Arlington land or a cash donation that will enable the purchase of that much property.

Phillips said he would like to see a resolution or ordinance adopted requiring developers to donate 10 per cent of the property. Mrs. Lark, however, said she would prefer to have the donations based on the population of the development.

School boards, lawyers threaten meetings law

A new threat to the public's right to know has emerged in the past week — this time from school boards and the attorneys who do their bidding.

In an opinion by Leo Athas, legal counsel to Michael Bakalis, state school superintendent, new latitude is granted to school boards who wish to meet privately.

Athas interprets the Illinois Open Meetings law to allow no public notice for closed door sessions of local school boards. That is to say that if the school board decides to meet behind closed doors to discuss matters for which the Open Meetings Law allows private deliberation, no notice of the meeting need be given.

In our opinion, this smacks of another attempt to weaken the purpose of public notice of official meetings and allows supersecret school boards to remain further in the shadows.

What is it about the simple nature of school board meetings that causes these attorneys and board members to hide from view at every opportunity?

It seems to us that the most open policy would be the most advantageous for any school board. Their deliberations are hardly ever momentous, yet they seem so fearful of "misinterpretation" of their educational jargon that they use every device to avoid public scrutiny.

Obviously, not every school board is to blame, but there does seem in school board actions common threads of secrecy and abhorrence of public inquiry.

We think there are two reasons for this. First, many school boards are creatures of their respective superintendents and it is rare for a school superintendent to have any regard for lesser souls who do not have doctorates in education.

Second, school board attorneys have in some cases fallen victims to a misunderstanding as to the identity of their client. The attorneys often render legal opinions which favor their bosses — the members of the school board (or the superintendent) instead of the taxpayers who fork up the money each year. Given a choice, the board attorney will most often protect the school board from the average citizen.

These are harsh words but it is the only way to describe the rudeness to the public shown in the education and legal professions.

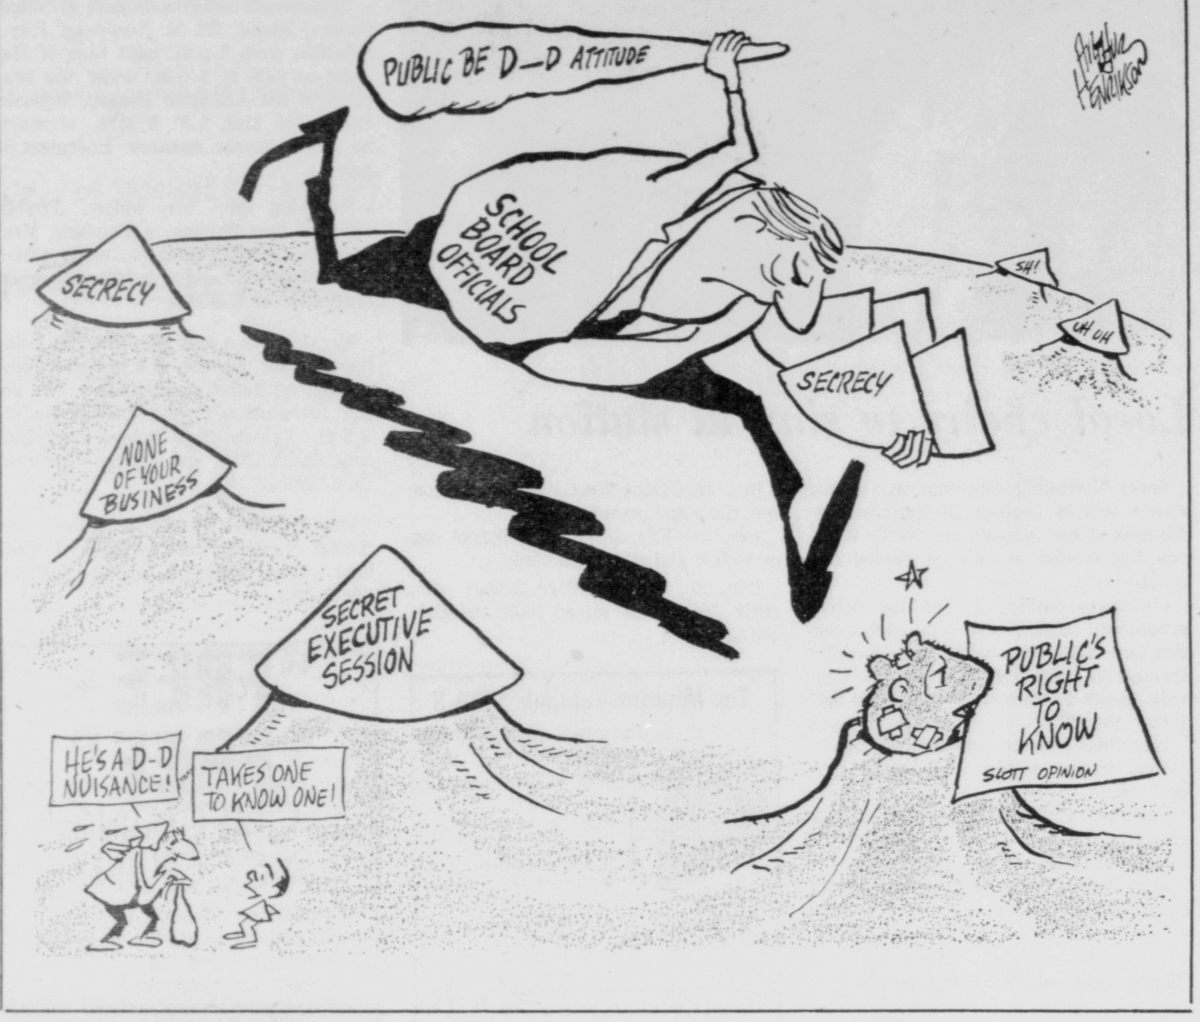
Oops, here he comes again!



He urges impeachment of judges

Having been bombarded for years in reference to "gun control," I have had it.

There are 150 some odd gun laws.

In the past election, how many voters took the time to vote on judge retention? Judges who apparently are more concerned about offenders than the victims, who can't take the time to provide or write out the proper sentence, who slaps perhaps a $25 fine on an offender and tells them to "go forth and sin no more!" No wonder there are so many victims of crimes committed with guns.

Put the blame where it belongs, on the judiciary, not the police, the offender, nor the victim.

To me, it takes an intellectual illiterate to scream for gun control, yet goes into a voting booth and instead of selecting judges for retention, votes to retain them all or doesn't even bother to vote on judgeships. If you're that type and ever become a victim, blame yourself.

I am not a member of the NRA or any other organization. Common sense, they say, prevails. I voted against those judges who bend over backward to slap an offender's wrist, let persons out on bond over and over even though the suspect is arrested time and again.

We tried to impeach a President. Isn't it time for judges?

MSD trustee thanks Herald

I wish to express my thanks to you and The Herald for your fine endorsement of my candidacy in the recent election. As you know, I was successful in my bid for re-election as a trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

It was gratifying to know that your paper recognized the efforts that I have been extending to fight the pollution of Lake Michigan.

I certainly appreciate the fact that The Herald endorsed my candidacy and I will attempt, in my second term of office, to demonstrate that the confidence of your paper was well founded.

Sirica Watergate 'truth search' backed

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — A search for the truth is, at least in theory, the purpose of every United States court trial, and yet U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica is under heavy criticism for emphasizing the importance of getting the truth in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Much of the criticism has centered on various misinterpretations of a comment Judge Sirica made to the jury in connection with a ruling on testimony from former White House Counsel John W. Dean III, a key government witness against four former high Nixon administration officials and a lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

In explaining the ruling, Sirica said:

"You see, members of the jury, I allow a certain amount of latitude. I am not trying to try this case . . . on the strict rules of evidence . . . What we are trying to get (can be summed up) in one little word . . . the truth — T-R-U-T-H. That is what we are trying to find out about the whole picture."

It was taken out of context by defense lawyers, Nixon administration apologists and some who honestly believed, without looking at the total record, that it represented a callous abandoning of "the strict rules of evidence" in disregard of the rights of the defendants.

If there had been anything else in Judge Sirica's actions or words to support such a conclusion it would indeed be deplorable, for regardless of their past attitudes and actions the five defendants are entitled to a fair trial.

But the complete record shows that Judge Sirica on several occasions had explained to the jury that in a conspiracy case the usual rules of evidence relative to procedures and admissibility of evidence do not apply as they would in a simple trial for burglary or robbery.

In conspiracy cases involving a number of alleged co-conspirators, all of the procedures and rules of evidence are modified to grant a greater degree of latitude on the part of the prosecutor in the development of the record of conspiracy, Sirica had explained.

Periodically throughout the trial, Judge Sirica has explained that there are different standards on hearsay that permit the jury to hear all evidence that is admissible as to any of the five defendants, and he has often cautioned the jurors that at the conclusion of the trial he will give them more complete detailed instructions as to the rules they should use in judging the guilt or innocence of each of the defendants.

His comment that has been the subject of criticism was a condensation of earlier cautions to the jury, and was a summary of what his formal instruction to the jury will be relative to evidence in a conspiracy case.

There was nothing in his comment to indicate that he was going to bring out the whole story on the Watergate cover-up without regard for whether the evidence was admissible against former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former White House chief of staff H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, former special assistant John D. Ehrlichman, former Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, the former lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

In fact he has asserted time after time that he will use all of his power to give them "a fair trial," and all are represented by able and aggressive counsel whose job it is to raise every objection necessary to protect the rights of the five defendants.

Since it is a long and complicated trial, it is impossible for anyone to say at this stage that it is free of prejudicial error. But it is safe to say that Judge Sirica's comment on "trying to get . . . the truth — T-R-U-T-H," is unlikely to draw criticism from the U.S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia.

That appeals court on Nov. 8 — at the height of the criticism of Sirica in the Watergate cover-up trial — upheld the conviction of G. Gordon Liddy in connection with the Watergate break-in.

In commenting upon that original Watergate break-in trial, the appeals court had high praise for Sirica and declared:

"Judge Sirica's palpable search for truth . . . was not only permissible, it was in the highest tradition of his office as a federal judge."

It is significant that a few misguided commentators commented critically on Judge Sirica's aggressive questioning of several witnesses out of the presence of the jury, when he had indicated that he believed that perjury was taking place in his courtroom.

Liddy had contended it was "prejudicial error" for Judge Sirica to recall witnesses and to take part in the questioning of those witnesses, but the appeals court in a unanimous decision declared:

"The judge (Sirica) not only has a power of recall (of a witness he believes is lying), but latitude to use it to remove or dilute the pollution of a trial of testimony he believes to be perjurious or highly questionable. He may supplement the examination by counsel in order to draw out more information from a witness and to enhance the perspective for appraising his testimony."

It was emphasized by the appeals court:

"The public interest in safeguarding a record from taint is particularly keen when the case involves the integrity of the nation's political system — as can fairly be said when persons in the campaign of one major political party used clandestine contributions to penetrate the internal process of the other — and is consequently of moment in both the daily press and history."

The present Watergate cover-up trial involves the even more sensitive issue of charges that the highest level officials — White House aides and a former attorney general — were engaged in various misuses of the power of their positions to obstruct justice in the initial Watergate investigation.

There is no reason to believe that the appeals court, or the U.S. Supreme Court, would be less understanding of the importance of an aggressive search for truth if the current record is appealed.

No mortal man can conduct a perfect trial, and the appeals court and the Supreme Court have quoted often from a Supreme Court decision in Lutwak versus United States in 1953 that stated:

"A defendant is entitled to a fair trial but not a perfect one."

Judge Sirica also is entitled to a fair trial, and those who criticize him would do well to examine the record and not base their criticism on a superficial impression or a defense lawyer's colorful objection.

Cronin in first press conference

New state school chief sets priorities

by WANDALYN RICE

New Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin says he may not be much different from his predecessor, Michael Bakalis.

"I met with Mike (Bakalis) for about 90 minutes today," Cronin told the Chicago press corps Tuesday. "I told him our views on many of the issues — especially where social values and education come together — are very much the same."

In a rapidfire press conference, Cronin answered more than two dozen questions on his philosophy of education and his record as education secretary for the State of Massachusetts.

CRONIN, SPEAKING with a barely noticeable New England accent, said his three top priorities once he takes office Jan. 13 will be providing equal educational opportunity, good fiscal management and "maintaining public confidence in education."

He also said he has met Gov. Daniel Walker briefly and received the governor's pledge of "full cooperation and support of his office." He said he will work on next year's budget with Bakalis' staff and the State Board of Education and plans to visit schools around the state during his first months in office.

He said he is enthusiastic about working with the state board, which is itself just six months old, to help set policy and define the board's role. "It's a very exciting board with a lot of diverse viewpoints and people from all over the state. I'm going to make sure my views are clear so they can work with me to form their policy."

Cronin also took a strong stand against teachers' strikes, saying "I think the disruption and the effect on the lives of children is quite negative." He said he favors legislation which would regulate teacher-school board negotiations and provide ways to prevent strikes.

He said he sees the current surplus of teachers as an opportunity to improve education. "We can now insist that teachers love children and know their subject matter very well — in the 1950s and 60s we sometimes had to compromise on quality."

THE NEW superintendent also said he is not concerned that two of the three blacks on the state board did not vote for his hiring. "I would be concerned if I didn't think I could overcome (their skepticism). My record in Massachusetts is very clear in my support for equal opportunity and achieving racial balance."

He said the problems the Boston public schools have had with school intergration have proved to him that "there can never be enough preparation." He said he has formed a committee in Massachusetts to work with colleges and universities to "find what we can do for teachers who have never had blacks and whites in a class and how to prevent racial tension in a school."

Joseph Cronin

Cronin said he may bring "one or two" of his staff members with him from Massachusetts, but plans to fill most adminitrative jobs in the state education office with people from Illinois. He said he believes most of the employes who have worked under Bakalis will stay on "and I think that's important because we will need continuity."

When Cronin takes office in January he will become the first appointed state school superintendent in Illinois history. He and the state board of education replace the elected superintendent. Bakalis was elected to the post in 1970.

Board stalled in naming new chief, Downstate official says

by United Press International

Fulton County School Supt. C. Robert Leininger, president-elect of the Illinois Assn. of School Administrators, says the Illinois Board of Education took too much time in appointing a new school superintendent.

Leininger, in Chicago for a meeting of the association, said Monday he was disappointed in the selection process.

"I think the whole process was drawn out," he said. "We should have had a new superintendent six months ago instead of six weeks before he is scheduled to take office."

BUT LEININGER says he is looking forward to working with Dr. Joseph M. Cronin, who was appointed to the post Saturday and takes office Jan. 13. "I, like most school superintendents, am looking forward to working with Dr. Cronin," Leininger said. "I have no personal knowledge of him, except what I've read in the press, but I understand he's a young man with liberal and labor leanings.

"I think most superintendents are looking toward the structure of his office and the selection of personnel."

Leininger also had some praise for outgoing state school chief Michael Bakalis.

"I appreciated some of the major thrust and programs of Michael Bakalis," he said. "I think the criticism of Bakalis came in the area of implementing some of his programs and the personnel he had to implement them."

LEININGER PEGGED finance and collective bargaining as the two major problems facing the new school superintendent.

"I understand Dr. Cronin has experience in both of these areas, so maybe he is coming at the right time," he said.

Bankers predict housing upturn, prime-rate dip

by United Press International

Several bankers have predicted an upturn in housing and a decline in the prime interest rate.

Nicholas J. DeLeonardis, vice president of the bond department, money market division of the First National Bank of Chicago, told a conference Monday the prime interest rate could drop to 8 per cent by mid-1975.

"Within the current economic framework," he told the bank's 28th annual conference of bank correspondents, "I would like to begin by suggesting a 90-day treasury bill rate of between 6 per cent to 6½ in mid-1975. Continuing in this same vein, federal funds may trade below 8 per cent, 90-day commercial paper could easily touch 7.5 to 8 per cent, and a prime interest rate of at least 8 per cent is certainly within the realm of possibility by mid-1975."

The First National Bank of Chicago has a current prime rate of 10.25 per cent.

JAMES J. DAILEY, senior vice president of First National, told the conference most forecasters see an upturn in housing in 1975, but warned that a majority of Americans can no longer afford to build their dream house.

Daily said that at 1974 prices, only 37.7 per cent of American families could afford the median-priced new home.

But he said an upturn in housing sales was expected despite price resistance.

However, he said resumption of housing construction would have to await absorption of the unsold inventory of some 400,000 homes in a market which sells only 450,000 homes each year.

Officials appeal tax-collection ban

The Township Officials of Cook County will appeal a judge's decision that makes it impossible for suburban residents to pay their tax bills in person at local township offices.

The organization's board of directors voted Monday night to appeal Circuit Court Judge Donald J. O'Brien's July ruling that continued a 1969 injunction barring township collectors from collecting real estate and personal property taxes.

MARSHALL Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor and newly elected vice president of the township officials' organization, said a majority of the 33 townships voted to support the appeal.

Wheeling, Palatine, Maine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships all endorsed fighting O'Brien's ruling before the Illinois Appellate Court, first district, he said.

To save legal costs, all townships will be represented on appeal by Richard Cowen, Theroux said. Cowen represented Wheeling, Barrington, New Trier, Elk Grove and Palatine townships before O'Brien.

Cowen may ask other attorneys to act as co-counsel on the appeal, Theroux said, but there will not be seven separate lawyers representing township governments and individual township officials as there was before O'Brien.

THE APPEAL eventually may take the fight for township collectors to keep their jobs to the Illinois Supreme Court for a fifth time. All the other appeals have been on different points in the lawsuit which began when the circuit court in 1970 invalidated the 2 per cent collection fee the township collectors received for accepting payments from local residents and mailing out the tax bills.

That ruling stripped townships of their major source of revenue and it is only with the payment of fedeal revenue sharing to local townships that the governments have been able to expand services again.

O'Brien's July decision was based on a finding that "collection by townships would be unnecessary duplication of a function now performed by the county collector with unnecessary extra expenses to the townships."

The judge said the county treasurer's computerized tax collection system "costs less than when both the township collector and the county collector (treasurer) were both collecting the taxes, and the tax money is distributed to the taxing bodies much more quickly after its receipt."

Theroux said the township officials decided to dispute O'Brien's ruling because the judge is taking away the duties given to the township collectors under state statutes.

ALTHOUGH THE townships had appropriated tax money to pay the collectors' salaries and expenses if they were allowed to resume their jobs, none of the collectors is currently collecting any salary.

One local township, Wheeling, is without an elected collector because Helmuth Meyer resigned his post recently when he accepted a job with the Illinois Board of Elections.

Town auditors were to begin interviewing candidates who want to be appointed collector for the remainder of Meyer's term at a session last night.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Watching chest pains

I am a white male, age 64, weight 190, and am 6 feet 2 inches, have been active in sports all my life particularly the contact sports. My present occupation is football and lacrosse coach. I can honestly say that I am in pretty good health, particularly in reference to diet. I will say, however, I am not very careful in reference to rain, cold and snow, having spent some bad days playing, officiating and coaching. I seldom wear a hat.

For the past three or four weeks I have been pestered with a nagging burning sensation, at times right in the middle of my chest. This sensation seems to originate just below the breastbone and work right up to my throat where it seems to linger a few seconds and then passes away. This sensation at times will cause my upper chest to become sort of tight and sore, sometimes it will go straight through to the back. This sensation will come on at any time, while cutting the lawn, reading or watching TV. I do not smoke cigarettes. I do, however, smoke three or four pipes each night. I never smoke during the day. I drink an occasional highball before dinner.

I have a yearly physical each September. It includes an X ray, ECG (heart tracing) and other tests. So far all have been normal. At times I become terribly depressed and don't seem to pay attention to what some people say, particularly my wife. Would you say old age is finally catching up with me? I would appreciate your comments.

There is no way to be certain what you have from your history alone. BUT, you and anyone who has chest pain should seek medical attention at once. I don't mean in a day or two or a week or two, but right when it happens. Call the doctor when you have the pain. If you can't find the doctor go to the nearest hospital emergency room. Get someone to drive you, if possible.

I don't mean to be an alarmist, but unexplained chest pain can be the first sign of a heart attack. These are so common in our society that you have to regard it this way. Also, the best chance you have of surviving a heart attack is by getting early attention. That means you can't sit around home wondering if it is indigestion or a heart attack. Call your doctor or get to the hospital.

YOU COULD be having indigestion and esophageal spasm, but your history is compatible with heart pain. You can have heart pain any time. You do not have to be exerting yourself. A good many people have heart attacks in bed or while riding in a car or while being inactive.

The electrocardiogram (ECG) can be perfectly normal until the attack occurs. It shows changes in the heart muscle that occur after the artery is suddenly blocked off.

Keeping your weight down, avoiding cigaret smoking, and eating the right foods all help in preventing heart attacks, or at least delaying them. But people still get heart trouble, even when living a fairly healthy life by most standards. If everyone who develops symptoms which you describe would seek medical attention at once a lot could be done to cut down the per cent of deaths caused by heart attacks. Go see your doctor.

Most women 'can tolerate' abortion

The search for mental health

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.)

"Most women are very well able to tolerate an abortion provided they have adequate time to think about it before the procedure is done," said Dr. Cornelia Freedman, clinical instructor of psychiatry at Harvard University, discussing her work at the Boston Hospital for Women. "The manner in which a woman decides on an abortion is very important to her emotional well-being.

"We've found it enormously useful for such a woman to be able to talk with a trained counselor about her feelings about an abortion and her life situation," Dr. Freedman said, "so that she can carefully think through all the particular aspects of her life situation. We can pick up on things that tell us whether or not a woman is likely to have difficulty. If the likelihood is great, we ask her to think longer about it."

"The women who have abortions range in age from 13 to in their 40s," said Rhoda Greenspan, a master social worker with Boston Hospital for Women. "They're married or single or divorced. It's about 50-50. This doesn't seem to determine their reactions to an abortion."

"THESE WOMEN want abortions because they're just not in a position to have a baby," Dr. Freedman said. "They're either not married, or they already have their family, or they don't have adequate finances. If another baby is an absolute impossibility, they decide easily and don't have any difficulty with an abortion. Women who do have difficulty can only be characterized by the fact that they sort of want a baby."

"Yes, the conflict between wanting a baby and not being able to have it for one reason or another does create difficulties after abortion," Miss Greenspan said. "Also, depending on the kind of problems that a woman presents during a preabortion interview, if it seems like there's a conflict and that she has a fairly stable marriage, we may ask the husband to come in too, but basically it's been approached as a woman's decision."

"I see the man whenever I can," Dr. Freedman said. "I feel strongly that this should be a decision inside the couple. I feel he should understand what's going on and take as active a part as possible in the decision.

"After the abortion, it's fairly normal to feel some sadness, just like the post-pregnancy blues," Dr. Freedman added. "We feel it's helpful for these women to get in a group to talk about their experience, to get support and be supportive, to know that they're not abnormal."

"WE FORM groups when the women come back for a two-week checkup after the abortion," Miss Greenspan said. "We discuss methods of birth control. They talk about how they felt after the abortion. The majority of the women say they felt relieved. Many say they were much more anxious before they made the decision. Some, however, feel depressed, might still wish for the baby, are still having trouble working through their decision. This is usually because the decision had to be made quickly and they didn't have enough time to think it through. The things they think about after the abortion are what sex the fetus was, the due date . . . They think about it when they see babies or when there's talk on television about abortion."

"I've had the opportunity," Dr. Freedman said, "to have had several women in psychotherapy who had abortions, and have been able to find how they feel about it several months later. For the most part, the woman who wanted to do this forgets about the experience. At times of stress or when she is thinking about her sexuality, she will have thoughts about the abortion and maybe even some sad feelings, but it doesn't seem to be a psychological problem. It's just another part of her life experience. It's usually true that women who have severe difficulty after abortion often had severe preceding difficulties."

"Women who are able to take responsibility for themselves and their decisions do the best after abortion," Miss Greenspan said. "How they cope with the decision to have an abortion and following through with that decision is pretty consistent with how they cope with their lives in general."

Lutheran General sets hand clinic

A hand clinic will be conducted at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, starting in December. Its goal is to improve hand and arm function impaired by paralysis, injury, theumatoid arthritis, congenital defects, burns or other conditions.

Each individual is evaluated by the hand clinic team to determine his specific problems. Muscle strength, range of motion and coordination are examined as well as the patient's motivation for help.

A course of treatment then is recommended. This may include splinting to protect an injured hand and provide for proper healing or to promote further function and strength. Surgery, occupational and/or physical therapy may also be recommended. Follow up care is given as needed in succeeding clinics.

The clinic team includes an orthopedic surgeon; a physiatrist, a physician who specializes in rehabilitation medicine; occupational and physical thearapists; an orthotist, certified brace maker, and a coordinator who assists in obtaining financial help if needed.

The hand clinic is open to inpatients and outpatients and is held on the third Tuesday of each month. There is a moderate fee for the clinic, and additional charges will depend on the specific course of treatment. Further information may be obtained by calling the occupational therapy department at Lutheran General, 696-5599.

Death spectre haunts 1976 Olympics

by Frank S. Swertlow

NEW YORK — Although it's been only two years since the massacre of the Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympics, the organizers of the 1976 games are fearful the blood-drenched flag of terrorism may wave again.

"If someone wants to shoot a guy who crossed the finish line first, he will, said Geoffrey Mason, director of ABC's coverage of the '76 games at Montreal and Innsbruck, Austria. "And that can happen no matter how much security you have on the field.

"But after the Munich shootings, the International Olympic Committee began to rethink its security problems and has sought the advice of the key security organizations around the world — the FBI, Interpol, etc. The committee is now trying to find the most logical way to provide security without injuring the beauty of the games."

MASON, 34, said one of the means devised to increase security is to build moats around the stadiums and underground passages for the athletes. He also said there would be added detachments of plainclothes police. Other precautions will not be disclosed.

"But above all, they don't want the games to look like an armed camp," he said.

Despite the passage of time, the memory of the '72 games is stamped on Mason's mind. He and his ABC cameras were billeted near the Israelis when the band of Arab terrorists struck. Those athletes who weren't killed or who didn't escape the attack were taken hostage by the terrorists. They in turn were trapped by German security forces.

The world then tuned in on the ensuing theater of threats and demands by the commandos. Much of it was televised until the commandos tried to make a bizarre getaway and in the process killed all their hostages.

"I wasn't struck by any lack of security at Munich," Mason said. "I really didn't think Munich was wide open. The whole thing was so unexpected, so well-planned. They observed a weak link and decided to go through with the attack."

MASON NOW JETS back and forth to Austria and Canada preparing for the '76 games. But after Munich, he didn't think the task would be enjoyable again.

"I had a sort of mental collapse after those games," he said, "and for many months I was very down on the Olympic movement. This was just another horrendous example of the bad aspects of the Olympics.

"But the older I get, the more detached I get, and now I think there is no reason to hide our head. We should keep going and try as best we can to present the beauty of the games.

"Walking through the Olympic village is one of the really rewarding experiences of my life. It's a convocation of the youth of the world and a unique opportunity for world understanding. I really love the concept. I just hope Munich will never happen again."

NOTES: CBS will present an original drama, "Miles to Go Before I Sleep," starring Martin Balsam, at 9:30 p.m. Jan. 8 as another in the series of "GE Theater" specials. The 90-minute script by Bill Svance and Judith Parker deals with an aging, lonely man who is persuaded to become foster grandfather to a troubled 14-year-old girl . . .

Playwright-actor Jason Miller portrays author F. Scott Fitzgerald in a two-hour movie special made for ABC use in 1975. "The Screen Test" by James Costigan is about Fitzgerald's two encounters with Hollywood as a screenwriter in 1927 and 1937. Miller wrote Broadway's prize-winning "That Championship Season" of two years ago and played a priest in the screen version of "The Exorcist" . . .

CBS will introduce a new half-hour situation comedy series, "The Jeffersons," in the 8:30 p.m. spot Jan. 18 as a replacement for the canceled "Paul Sand in Friends and Lovers." "The Jeffersons" is a spin-off from "All in the Family" on which Lionel, Louise and George Jefferson were members of a black family, neighbors and sometimes verbal sparring partners for Archie Bunker. The players will be the same as in "All in the Family" — Mike Evans, Isabel Sanford and Herman Hemsley.

Busy evening ahead in area basketball

A Herald Staff Report

In between drumsticks, stuffing, and cranberry sauce, there will be plenty of basketball action played in the area this long weekend, and it will all begin tonight before anyone has a chance to eat himself out of condition.

Area teams will take part in four separate Thanksgiving Holiday tournaments starting Wednesday and a few more which won't get under way until Friday. Also, tonight, there are three other contests slated for the courts.

Fremd and Hersey will travel to the Glenbard West tourney for games today and tonight. The Fremd Vikings will open their season with a 4 p.m. match against Willowbrook, a squad which downed defending state champion Proviso East last week. Hersey, on the heels of an opening overtime loss to Crystal Lake, will take on host Glenbard West at 10 tonight. Both Fremd and Hersey will play again on Friday or Saturday.

Another school beginning the basketball wars tonight will be Forest View. The Falcons will host Maine West at 8 p.m. in the Forest View gym. The visiting Warriors will try to shake off an inaugural loss to Oak Park.

In other tournament play beginning tonight, Rolling Meadows visits the Maine North tourney, Wheeling travels to Woodstock, and Buffalo Grove journeys to Mundelein.

Rolling Meadows (1-0) will meet Fenton tonight at 7, Buffalo Grove (2-0) plays Carmel, and Wheeling (1-0) faces West Leyden.

A tourney continues at Addison Trail with Hoffman Estates playing Lake Park at 7:00 and Elk Grove meeting Addison at 8:30.

In other area action, St. Viator (1-0) will host Immaculate Conception at 8 p.m. and Prospect (0-1) will visit Maine South, also at 8.

FREMD

You can call 'em the lucky 13, a baker's dozen or the dirty dozen plus one, but those who follow the fortunes of Fremd's prep basketball team refer to 'em as the Vikings.

Coach Leon "Kas" Kasuboske went out and did some collecting since last season. He came up with three returning senior lettermen off a 10-16 team, a handful of former junior varsity players from a 3-18 club, a group of juniors off a sophomore team that suffered through a 1-17 record, two big guys coming off operations and one transfer.

His starting lineup for the opening round of the tourney will have letterman Ken Hanks (5-foot-8, 137) and either junior Rich Kolze (5-10½, 136) or senior Kevin Lavin (5-11, 141) at the other guard spot. Lettermen Tim Gross (6-1, 166) and Jim Recher (6-1, 161) will be the forwards with junior Paul Gillette (6-4½, 210) at center.

Gillette and backup center Randy Vaughan (6-5, 196) will be the Vikings' big men or, as "Kas" says, "We've got the tallest kids out for basketball. There aren't any taller kids in the school."

Both are coming off knee operations that sidelined them for the entire 1973-74 season. "Kas" won't be playing both together for the time being, but it will help the rebounding considerably when he does.

He terms his team "very, very quick. Probably quicker than we've ever been before.

"I've felt really deep down inside that they're going to continue to improve from the first day they walked out on the floor until the last day of the season. I couldn't say that last year.

"I think each player's got one thing that he's really going to try and prove to himself, me, the student body and the townspeople — that he's hungry."

The rest of this hungry 13 are St. Viator transfer Neil Bruns, Dave Mize, Tim Hanisch, Dan Youman, Pat Gavigan and Paul Stanczak.

FOREST VIEW

"It seems like we've been practicing for six months," an anxious Forest View head basketball coach Ted Wissen remarked on the eve of the Falcons' opener against visiting Maine West.

"We need to play a game to see what we've got. I know what we can do on the

Conant's Losee resigns after eight seasons as head varsity coach

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Ralph Losee, the head football coach at Conant High School for the past eight seasons, has resigned. He will remain at the school as a teacher in cooperative education.

Ralph Losee

Losee began at Conant in 1967 with a 3-4 conference record. He equaled the mark in 1968 then won the Mid Suburban Leaguechampionship the following year with a 6-1 record.

However, in the last four years Losee and his Cougars have fallen on hard times, winning only one MSL game each year.

"I knew before this season began," Losee said, "that I had to win. I told the people here that if we didn't win they wouldn't have to fire me. I would resign first.

"The fact that I was told to win or else irritated me. In light of the fact that we've been splitting schools it irritated me that they would take that philosophy toward the team.

"We didn't win all our ballgames this year but, except for one game we played awfully good ball. We are just going through the Hoffman Estates split and the kids who are seniors there should be seniors here this year.

"The pressure to win has been on us for two years now."

Losee opened his last season with a team almost no one (but themselves) believed in. They won two games, beating only Wheeling in the conference, but except for the Forest View game did, indeed, play on a par with everybody.

The final statistics bore out the fact that Conant won everywhere but on the scoreboard. The Cougars outrushed their opponents 1120-1052, outpassed them 567-553 and had 14 more first downs.

Pretty fair shooting for a 1-6 team.

"I'm not so much bitter about this situation as disappointed," Losee said. "Disappointed for the kids on the team. They deserved better than they got. We had very high hopes. The lague and especially the South division was very balanced. I thought we could win a lot of our ballgames."

For his successor, who has yet to be named, Losee had this to say. "It will take at least two years for this program to turn around. There are changes that need to be made but I can't say what, exactly.

"I've felt all this year that the lack of tradition here at Conant has been a problem.

"I'm satisfied knowing that myself, my coaching staff and the kids on the team gave everything they had this year."

Five exhibition triumphs for area wrestling teams

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Rolling Meadows and Maine East jump into tournament action, Hoffman Estates remains on the conference trail and a host of other teams continue skirmishing on a non-league level as the area wrestling scene roars into high gear over the long Thanksgiving weekend.

Local mat squads took it on the chin for the most part last week, forging a 5-8-1 mark in exhibition action. Schaumburg won and tied, Fremd, Arlington and Buffalo Grove captured their lidlifters and Hersey split, but elsewhere there was little in the way of good team news to report.

The Huskies and Cardinals felled perennial powerhouse West Leyden on successive days with Hersey falling afterwards to an Addison Trail group that could be exceptionally strong this season.

Hosting Conant wa turned back by both Wheaton Central and Oak Park at the same time the Saxons were winning and drawing against the two clubs. Buffalo Grove belted Wheaton-Warrenville and the Vikings blitzed New Trier West.

Elk Grove, Forest View and Prospect all came out on the losing side of the ledger, and Hoffman Estates was stopped twice. Another hookup between two locals saw Maine West topping a visiting Wheeling outfit.

Just about everybody climbs into the ring this weekend, beginning with a six-meet slate tonight. The Mustangs and Blue Demons will be at the Trojan Invite at Niles East Friday and Saturday while the Hawks undertake loop clashes at Buffalo Grove Wednesday and at home against Fremd Saturday.

Everything else is strictly for tuneup. Here's how they went last Friday and Saturday:

HERSEY 28, WEST LEYDEN 19

Pins by Jim Watters at 105, Dan Lococo at 126 and Kevin Temesy at 167 helped the Huskies launch another season on a successful note. Don Sorensen (112), Mark Furlong (145) and Bill Fletcher at heavyweight contributed winning decisions to hosting Hersey's cause while Eric Strutz (155) and Gary Hodge (185) wound up in stalemates.

BUFFALO GROVE 31, WARRENVILLE 16

The visiting Bison were stopped at 98 pounds but rebounded with five straight match qins to put the verdict on ice. Terry McCann started it off at 105 and Kirt Lewis (112), Jim Brough (119), Rich Wilhelm (126) and Greg Thompson (132) followed suit. Later on for good measure Jerry Bickner added apin to the cause at 155, Bob Fechtner notched a decision at 167 and Brian Gibbons took just over a minute to dispose of his 185-pound foe.

FREMD 38, NEW TRIER WEST 16

The Vikings were down 13-0 at one point after scrambling weights for a lineup. They ame on like dynamite though, including pins for Paul Morales over a touted foe at 105, Doug McCarthy at 119, Ron Barry at 119 and Jeff Ossler at heavyweight.

Barry stuck his man in little over a minute and Diego Ramirez (132) contributed to the romp with an awesome 20-3 win of his own while Jeff Sveinsson (167) emerged with a 13-3 decision.

Also winning for the Vikes were Dan Lynch at 138 and Russ Pollard at 155.

MAINE SOUTH 39, FOREST VIEW 13

A veteran-dominated Hawk team lost only two bouts to the Falcons. One of them was at 105, where John Gross pinned at 0:55 — the first of two sub-one minute efforts over the weekend. Dave Swanson picked up the other at 167 for the visiting View and Guy Semar (132) and Tom Anderson (145) were involved in ties, but elsewhere along the line it was strictly a Maine South story.

BARRINGTON 39, PROSPECT 12

The Knights dropped their second meet of the young season, going in the hole quickly on forfeits through 119 pounds. The Bronchos also forfeited at 98.

Prospect's point getters came nearly as quick. Pete Petremale won by a forfeit at 167 and Carl Schimmelman needed a scant 40 seconds to count his foe at 185.

MAINE WEST 30, WHEELING 15

The Warriors parlayed pins in two of the first three bouts to a 12-3 bulge and then coasted to victory over the youthful visitors. Tom Krauser (98) and Brian Real (105) sandwiched their second round verdicts over a decision by 'Cat Rob Krusinski at 105 to set the tempo.

Other West wins were by Mike Tramel (119), Lou DePasquale (126), Warren Kelleher (132), Brad Bonnivier (138), Dan Cavazos (145), And Roger Herrera (155) Kelleher outlasting Arnie Brevick in a 14-11 donnybrook.

Only one miss gives Skinner contest prize

Don Skinner, of 112 W. Arthur in Arlington Heights and the Director of Student Activities at Fremd High School, picked all but one of the games to win the 12th week of Paddock Publications' "Pick the Winners" contest.

Skinner, and every one of the 826 entrants, was given a break when the Penn State at Pittsburgh game was rescheduled for Thanksgiving day and wiped from the week's slate.

"I've finally come to realize that this whole thing is luck," Skinner said. "This has been the year of the upset and my luck finally changed.

"My mother has been watching the Rose Bowl on television for years so this year, if I win the grand prize, I'll give the trip to my parents as a Christmas present."

In the meantime, Skinner will receive an AM-FM transistor radio for winning the weekly contest. His parents will have to wait until the luncheon Dec. 14 to see if they're going to Pasadena.

Appropriately, the only game Skinner missed was the one pro grame that might be considered an upset. He didn't foresee Denver beating Oakland.

Otherwise, Skinner picked Detroit over the Bears, San Francisco over Atlanta, Green Bay defeating San Diego, Cincinnati topping Kansas City and Los Angeles over Minnesota correctly.

In the major colleges: Brigham Young mesmerized Utah, Stanford handled California, Brown tripped Columbia, Harvard upset Yale, Missouri showed Kansas, Oklahoma beat Nebraska, USC cleaned UCLA, Illinois got by Northwestern, Baylor whacked SMU, Tennessee upset Kentucky, Arkansas trimmed Texas Tech and Purdue bucked Indiana. Pittsburgh and Penn State was switched — by television — to Thanksgiving night.

The tiebreaker game, Ohio State over Michigan, didn't come into effect.

By that time the Wildcats trailed 30-3 but Carl Robbins (167), Ed Wargo (185) and heavyweight Ken Kent all countered — Wargo via a pin — and the guests at least finished up on a winning note.

ARLINGTON 32, WEST LEYDEN 14

The Cardinals did an even better job of working over the visiting Knights on Saturday. Steve Scott (98) and Dan Weber (105) posted falls to set the tempo quickly and heavyweight Kirk Kennedy finished it off in the same method.

In between there were additional Arlington triumphs by Vic Galfano at 119, John Preissing at 126, Herb Darmofal at 155 and Jim Stanczak at 185 with Preissing and Stanczak shutting out their foes. Dan Kennedy drew at 132.

SCHAUMBURG 34, WHEATON CENTRAL 22
SCHAUMBURG 25, OAK PARK 25

Mark Zeller at 98, Terry Ruddy (112), Joe Hannon (119) and Tom Sielski (145) were all double winners as the Saxons remained unbeaten Saturday. Zeller pinned twice, Ruddy racked up a 13-0 decision and stuck his Huskie opponent in 55 seconds and Hannon had a pair of lopsided decisions.

Also winning over Oak Park were Bob Jones at 167. Aiding in the Wheaton win were Mark Rovnyak (by pin) at 105, Mark Mandel at 155, Bill Bowers at 167 and Gary Bolger at 185 in a quick 37 seconds.

OAK PARK 34, CONANT 18
WHEATON CENTRAL 28, CONANT 21

The Cougars were more hospitable to the long distance visitors. Ken Ryan at 105 and Tim Goergen at 145 anchored the Conant effort with double victories but they had insufficient support.

Ryan forged two first round falls and Goergen coasted to easy decisions twice. Against Wheaton there were also wins by Brian Regan via a pin at 119, Ron Burhite at 155 and Rich Johnson at 167.

In the Oak Park duel there was a pin from Ed Armstrong at 112, and a decision by John Glueck at 98.

ADDISON TRAIL 22, HERSEY 19

A four-point decision in the heavyweight fray shifted the lead over to the Blazers after visiting Hersey had finally pulled ahead on victories from Kevin Temesy at 167 and Gary Hodge at 185.

Jim Watters (105) and Don Sorenson (112) had helped the Huskies into a quick 6-3 advantage but wins by the Cortez brothers at 119 and 126 had just as swiftly dissolved it. Other guest verdicts were garnered by Gary Hart (132) and Mark Furlong (145) while Eric Strutz lost a 2-1 toughie to Rick Zeh at 155.

GENEVA 28, HOFFMAN ESTATES 25
GLENBARD WEST 34, HOFFMAN ESTATES 13

Despite impressive showings by Dan Kaufman at 126 and Jim Thomas at 145, the Hawks saw their slate dip to 0-3 following a double duel at West Aurora Saturday.

Kaufman pinned one foe and rang up a 14-2 decision while Thomas pinned and won 8-5. Terry Sopkin (119) and Chad McCreary (138) also pitched in with a decision and a draw apiece, and Brian Cole (167) collected a draw after winning by forfeit over Geneva.

GLENBROOK SOUTH 30, ELK GROVE 25

A forfeit at 105 was just about the measure of difference as the Grenadiers lost their opener on the road. Rick Morris and Leo Montemayor were expectedly impressive, Morris triumphing 18-5 at 138 and Montemayor pinning at 3:23 in the 167-pound match.

Perhaps even more impressive was the 23-second fall that Wayne Stolzman fashioned at 185. Other Grove winners were Mike Warren (by pin) at 119 and John Carpenter at 145.

Arlington girls post fencing win

Posting perfect records in their bouts were Patty Pinski (4-0) and Ellen Bauske (4-0) for Arlington. Maine's only perfect mark was registered by Cathy Hunton.

Arlington's other top performers were Pat Eichten and Lynda Jolly, both with 3-1 bouts.

Arlington will be at Maine on Dec. 10 for another dual meet. The season will conclude on Dec. 17 when Arlington hosts the big finale. Both remaining matchups will begin at 4:30 p.m.

At Thunderbird Lanes

In the Thursday Night Terrors Mixed Larry Snarski just missed a 600 series with games of 189, 197, 209 for a 595 . . . He carries a 150 average.

Sobie pin gives Harper victory in mat opener

Steve Sobie fashioned a second round pin in the heavyweight struggle to break a 36-36 standoff in favor of Harper and launch their 1974-75 season in winning style Monday.

The Hawks toppled visiting Wright 42-36, also marking a successful debut for new coach Norm Lovelace.

Sobie, a Chicago Washington High School product, nailed J. Walenda at 2:40 after giving away about a 15-pound edge to his big foe. A short time earlier Tom Balmes pulled Harper into the deadlock by nipping John Davis 6-2 at 177 pounds.

Balmes is a former Elk Grove standout.

Other Hawk wins were recorded by Bob Fisher, formerly of Conant, via a 2:30 pin at 126 pounds and Bill Nash of Dundee by a 11-9 count at 150.

Nash waw just recently named to the junior college all-state football team.

Eric Nickerson of Maine West was the only Hawk casualty Monday, absorbing a fall at 3:59 in the 167-pound bout. Harper also forfeited at 134 and there were double forfeits at 118, 142, 158 and 190.

Lovelace's outfit heads to Champaign this weekend for the Illinois Invitational tourney.

At Beverly Lanes

In the Paddock Mixed Jim Cook led all bowlers with a 614 series on games of 246, 197, 172 . . . Other high scores were rolled by Steve Forsyth with 202, 226, 163 for a 591; Vern Gotsch with a 193; Marilyn Meyer 190; and Barb Dickinson 170.

practice floor, but it will be a different story under actual game conditions."

What Wissen has been looking at so far is a team with more size than Forest View has enjoyed in the past. The big boys include 6-foot-8 senior Ken Schmidt, 6-7 senior Len Beyer, 6-4 senior Tony Donile and 6-4 senior Mark Russo.

"And we still hope to be able to move as well as we have in the past," Wissen said in reference to the small but quick tag that had characterized last year's exceptional 19-6 club.

Against Maine West, Wissen plans to send Beyer, at center, Russo and Donile at forwards and 6-1 Neil Schmidt and 5-9 Van McLeod to challenge a team that opened on the short end of an 87-71 count to Oak Park.

"We hope to get scoring from all positions," Wissen answered optimistically, "but of course, Russo was our second-leading scorer a year ago, so I'm sure we'll be looking to him a little more."

The relatively late season opener for the Falcons has permitted a large contingent of football players to get into basketball shape.

"They like them short and powerful in football, but we like them long and stringy," Wissen said. "It takes a while for a football player to adjust his muscles to the demands of a basketball court."

Rounding out the Falcon varsity are 6-0 junior Nate Adams, 6-1 senior Dave Ennes, 6-1 junior Ray Michaelsen, 5-9 junior Jim Petran and 6-0 junior Bill Simon.

Iowa 'paradise' produces mixed bag

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was paradise.

Where else but southwest Iowa could a trio of hunters churn up as many quail as pheasants, with nearly every field productive, and for a break, hunt among 50,000 geese and thousands of ducks at the Riverton Wildlife Refuge?

This paradise produced a mixed bag of goose, duck, pheasant and quail in a week of shooting.

Hunting on nearly 800 acres of farmland owned by relatives, with more available for the asking, the opening days of the season quickly produced a dozen pheasant, most of them first-year birds inexperienced in the ways of the hunter. A two-year layoff from hunting, however, saved many of them for a better fate.

Almost every fence-row and creekbed was home for quail, and our German shorthair pointer found most of them. There were more surprises in the picked cornfields, which turned up covey after covey of the small bobwhite quail.

Poor fall weather forced delays in cornpicking, and radio reports tallied the standing crop at 40 per cent, providing excellent cover for pheasant.

The smaller cornfields that could be driven by our small group of hunters proved the birds were in there. It took a driving sleet and snow, with high winds, to push the roosters predictably into the grassy cover of swales and ditches.

Coming out of the thick cover, the brilliantly colored cocks made easy targets as they struggled for speed and altitude.

Four days of pheasant and quail was enough to coax us to try our luck at the refuge, which is surrounded by only 20 permanent blinds. Jump shooting is allowed, but is not usually profitable without a boat because the perimeter of the refuge is adequate to keep the birds out of range.

Fearing a "bluebird" day because the geese would fly so high, there was relief when clouds rolled over our blinds as the sun rose. We were fortunate to have a blind because reservations are accepted as early as August.

We anxiously waited the 6 a.m. drawing, but third on the waiting list was good enough. We paid the $3 blind fee and $1 per man and drove within a few hundred yards of our blind site.

With the wind at our backs we had one of the better locations, despite the long distance from the water. A mudddy cornfield surrounded us but we set out a few dozen decoys (geese and ducks) in the shallow water to make the site a little more attractive.

For two hours the geese honked and squaked as they passed high overhead, bound for the fields of the corn state. They staged in flights of several thousand before forming their ragged Vs and the constant noise began to sound like a football stadium, with occasional uproars.

Before all the geese had gone, the first flights were returning, coasting on the high wind, setting their wings and gliding down to another resting place in the marshy refuge.

Ducks mixed with the geese and also flew in their own small squadrons, but few were low enough over the blinds to tempt the hunters. Shooting improved when the birds began to stall as they headed into the wind, providing almost motionless targets.

Our success was meager with the high altitude targets. One hen mallard, one snow goose and a wounded blue goose that was claimed by another blind were all we had when the shells ran out after noon. The conservation department's tally board proved that geese were easier targets, with 995 taken by mid-November. Only a third as many ducks were in.

The plentiful targets at the refuge and in the cornfields made the 10-hour trip worthwhile. The field population of pheasant and quail apparently did not suffer from the rainy spring that may have taken as much as 50 per cent of the bird crop in Illinois.

There will be many hours of reminiscing this winter, and a few good meals from the freezer full of birds.

Duck and goose shooting require advanced notice

Duck and goose-hunting at the Riverton Wildlife Area near Riverton, Iowa (about 500 miles from the Herald area) is popular and requires some advance preperation to assure a good hunt.

Reservations for the 20 permanent blind locations are accepted as soon as the migratory waterfowl season is announced, and they must be mailed to the State Conservation Commission, Riverton Wildlife Area, Riverton, Iowa, 51650. Each reservation request must be accompanied by $3 for each day, and the list is filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

General information is available by phoning 712-374-2510, but no blind reservations are accepted by phone.

Individuals who have reservations must be at the Riverton headquarters one hour before legal shooting time on the day of the reservation or it will be voided and given to someone on the waiting list. The fee will not be refunded. Hunting licenses have to be turned in for blind permits after the blind drawing, and decoys can be rented for $1 a dozen.

General hunting regulations are similar to most refuge areas. There is a limit of 25 shells per day per person, with shot no larger than BB. Game must be checked in with the reservation headquarters before leaving the area.

Other advance preparations include an Iowa non-resident hunting license, which is $25, and an Iowa duck stamp, which is an additional dollar. Licenses can be purchased in the area or obtained by mail from the Iowa Dept. of Conservation in Des Moines.

Most of the blinds do not require waders, but blinds 1-3 are across water that necessitates this handy duck hunting apparel. Waders are of occasional value at other blinds, particularly in retrieving downed birds.

RUSS STEVENS displays the bag for the day — a hen mallard and a snow goose — from among the thousands of waterfowl that fly overhead at Riverton Wildlife Area, Riverton, Iowa. Twenty permanent blinds are available there. (Photos by Steve Forsyth)

ROLLING FARMLAND and contour plowing give a new wrinkle to hunting in southwest Iowa. A week-long hunting trip for pheasant and bobwhite quail turned up more than enough birds to limit out, but the German shorthair pointer did his job better than the shooters did theirs. The Iowa bird population apparently suffered none of the losses the Illinois pheasants did because of heavy spring rains, but they had to survive a two-month summer drought.

Inclement weather impedes Wisconsin whitetail hunt

Generally unfavorable weather conditions hampered the opening two days of the Wisconsin deer gun season Saturday and Sunday. Rain dampened the central and southern portions of the state while a layer of snow blanketed the northern zones.

Despite the uncooperative climatic conditions, the Wisconsin Department of Conservation reports that hunting pressure during the weekend opener was comparable to 1973 statistics.

In the southern area, muddy fields and roads discouraged many hunters from invading the choice hunting grounds. Those who did show up were rudely greeted by a mid-morning rain.

Although conditions improved slightly on Sunday, the overall hunting pressure was down approximately 20 per cent from last year.

Exceptions were in Columbia County which showed an increase of 10 per cent and in Richmond County where a 25 per cent boost was noted.

Rain was reported both Saturday and Sunday in the southeastern district creating unusually light hunting success.

In the west central area, the overall hunting pressure was equal to last year with the exception of the Mississippi River counties where the intruduction of a buck-only season reduced hunting success by 50 per cent. The overall outlook is for a harvest that could drop as low as two-thirds below last year's bag.

The northeast area was characterized by overcast conditions and poor visibility. The carpet of snow on the ground increased hunting pressure slightly, but the poor road conditions again kept many hunters from the prime hunting territory.

The northcentral locale produced nearly equal results as 1973 although weather improved on Sunday. In the Lake Michigan district, the conditions were generally good with hunting pressure down from last year.

With deer registration up by an increase of 20 per cent, it is likely that some hunters avoided the opening weekend shoot in favor of weekday hunting. The Wisconsin deer season extends through Dec. 11.

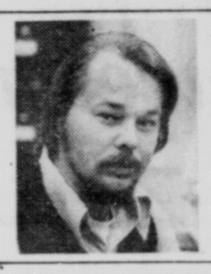
HOUNDED. RACCOON hunting is generally a nocturnal sport accomplished with a good hound and a flashlight. Raccoon are on the prowl at night searching for food.

Raccoons have dogs howling



Vic Watia

The deep-throated howl of the coon dog sliced the night, reaching the hunters in the blackness like a fog horn reaches ships.

"It's the Walker," Jake Peters said, unleashing a stream of tobbaco juice. "He's on a tree."

A few moments later, the eager voice of a young hound joined the steady voice of the older dog.

"The pup's there, too," Darrell Fowler said, taking off on the heels of Peters.

Sharp thorns tore at exposed flesh, fallen logs became stumbling blocks, and saplings sprung back with stinging slaps, but the hunters pushed into the darkness closer to the baying of the hounds.

The dogs had waited a year for the chance to practice what had been bred into them, and the hot scent of the treed raccoon drove them to a point of madness.

The Walker lunged at the tree in great leaps, sinking his front claws into the rough bark five-feet above the ground, dangling there for seconds as his howls echoed through the woods. Again and again he fell, only to continue his assault at the raccoon perched 20 feet higher.

The flashlights of the hunters located the animal in the crotch of the tree. It's eyes gave it away, gleaming for a moment as the light beam hit them.

Peters chambered a shell in his .22 carbine, took aim and squeezed the trigger.

If there was any life in the raccoon when it dropped to the ground, the dogs ended it before the hunters could pull them apart.

As soon as the hounds were satisfied their work was completed, they disappeared again. Before the night was over for the hunters, the incident was repeated more than a dozen times.

Occasionally the raccoons came out ahead, holing up in a den tree or escaping into a drainage pipe. But more often that night, it ws the dogs and hunters.

Coon hunting is unique because success generally is based upon the performance of the dogs. A boar older coon can lead a dog for miles, and never be treed.

If it comes to making a stand, experienced coons may lead a dog to a river or creek and fight it out in the water. In such cases, the coon may force a dog's head underwater and drown him.

However, such incidents are exceptions rather than the rule, and usually the raccoon will seek a tree where he feels he is safe from the hounds.

"A lot of coon hunters make the mistake of not having faith in their dogs," Peters said. "You've got to believe in your dog when he taps a tree if you want to get coons."

For Peters, of Clifton, Ill., hunting raccoons is more than just a sport. The price of raccoon pelts was at a premium last year, and were expected to be the same this year.

"We read that the fur demand is supposed to be as good this year," Peters said. "But that's not what the fur buyers are saying. They say the warehouses in New York still have stockpiles, and that a big sale of furs to Japan fell through."

However, Peters said he will wait out the market with the furs he gets from hunting and trapping this year.

"If the fur prices drop, I can do just as good as I always do," he said. "When prices are high, everybody trys to pick up extra money trapping and hunting. But when the prices are low, they don't feel it's worth it.

"I end up about the same because I get more areas to hunt and trap, and make up the difference with more furs, although it means I have to work a little harder."

Skybusters spoil shooting for veteran goose hunters

The sky is the limit.

For some Illinois waterfowl hunters, the only thing in the bag at the end of the day is a cloud or two. And they can't seem to understand why.

They're getting shots . . . plenty of them, but the ducks and geese just aren't falling, although the heavens must be getting a little more porous.

The practice — commonly called "skybusting" — has flourished again this year in the Land of Lincoln. At fault, perhaps, are the young or inexperienced shooters who are in the blinds for their first season.

Anxiety is the chief cause of skybusting. Essentially, the hunter becomes owl-eyed when he sees a formation of geese or ducks and begins emptying his gun as if it were an intercontinental ballistic missile.

The targets may still be in excess of 100 yards away when the throbbing trigger finger begins squeezing. But the only purpose served by the premature report is to warn the waterfowl to keep a safe distance of 60 or more yards away.

"It's just a case of bad judgment on the hunter's part," Marc Tuttle of the Illinois Department of Conservation observed. "We've had a lot of reports of this (skybusting) occurring and it's something we're going to have to live with."

The most legitimate complaint is filed by hunters in adjacent blinds who can only watch helplessly as the skybusters spook the flock before a good percentage shot is fired.

"The novice will see his first goose," Tuttle said while trying to create the situation. "And it will look like a 747 to him.

"As soon as he sees the wings drop down, it'll look to him like they're flying right down the barrel when they're still way out of range. Pretty soon the ducks and geese recognize a safe perimeter around the shooting area.

"The ideal range for duck and goose shooting is about 40-50 yards. Some guys can still drop them at 60, but the kill percentage at that distance drops considerably."

What's the solution to skybusting? How do you protect the rights of shooters in the next pit?

Some states have adopted a maximum shell system that limits the number of cartridges that may be used in a blind. Iowa, for example, allows each hunter to enter the area with 25 shells. When he has either reached his bag limit or fired his 25 shots, he's through for the day.

"We have two state permit areas that are under such jurisdiction," Tuttle said. "The Horseshoe and Union County conservation areas have a 10-shell limit. It appears to help some, but still hasn't solved the problem completely.

"Some experienced hunters are pushing for a six-shell maximum and others are requesting to reduce it even further. The thing is, it would be hard to enforce. There would be no way you could make it voluntary. It just wouldn't be fair. It would have to be a mandatory rule."

Another factor that has encouraged skybusting is the magnum load which carries a popular theory that it is more effective at greater range.

"The mag is misleading to an extent," Tuttle admitted. "The magnum may have a little greater range than the standard shell, but as a friend of mine once said, 'It doesn't kill them farther, it just kills them deader.' "

The old rule of thumb that cautioned "Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes" applies to goose shooting, too.

"The most experienced goose hunter won't fire until he sees their black eyes shining," Tuttle said. "When you can see those eyes, you know they're in range."

With more and more hunters taking to the fields and blinds each year, the unfortunate practice of skybusting is certain to continue.

But just as there are rules of etiquette for bowling and tea parties, so are there common sense considerations for fellow hunters.

Christmas trees can be costly souvenirs

You may feel that chopping down a tree for Christmas season is perfectly all right, but remember, there are no unowned trees in Wisconsin.

Unless you are able to prove the tree belongs to you or that you have the owner's permission to cut it, state, county or local law enforcement officials can stop you. Violators are arrested each year.

The Wisconsin Statutes require a Christmas tree dealer's license in order to transport more than six trees across county lines for sale purposes. A license can be purchased for $5 at most Department of Natural Resources field stations.

Lu Schoenberger rolls 275 game for Classic feature

by GENE KIRKHAM

While bowling at Fairlanes Rolling Meadows Bowl, the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League had only one seven point winner as Des Plaines Lanes toppled Mason Shoes.

Des Plaines rolled 903, 902, and 872 for a 2675 total as Bobbie Kostelny rolled 202-540, Bonnie Kuhn had 200-539, Dot Widman rolled 534, and Ann Neumann had 221-522. For Mason Shoes, Joan Hunsberger had 510 and Mary Lou Kolb rolled 501.

The match between Striking Lanes and L-Tran Engineering turned out to be even more exciting than expected with L-Tran winning the first game 904 to 931 and Striking Lanes winning the second game 898 to 887.

Lu Schoenberger of Striking started the third game with the first nine strikes coming a little high on the head pin in the 10th she spared and counted six pins for a season high 275 game.

L-Tran's Vi Douglas was stringing her own strikes the same game as she knocked out a 257 to help her team win 945 to 902. L-Tran won five points to move within two of Striking for the first half lead.

Lu Schoenberger of Striking started the night with a 210 game, followed with 171 and her exciting 275 led the league in individual scoring with a 656 total. Alice Schroeder had 201-515.

For L-Tran Engineering Vi Douglas rolled 168, 178 and 257 to total 603. Marlis Pleickhardt had 212-573, and Isobel Kosi had 509.

Sullivan Pontiac won five of seven points over Thunderbird Country Club winning the first and third games with 858 and 846.

Sullivan was led by Betty Parkhurst who rolled a 549 series and Lou Lass who had 510. For Thunderbird Dee Kachelmuss had 508.

Ziebart Rustproofing and Ten Pin Bowl

traded points in a close match with Ziebart winning two games for four points and Ten Pin Bowl winning one game and the series for three points.

Ten Pin won the first game with 882 while Ziebart won the second with 902 and the third by three pins, 856, to 853. Ten Pin won the series point by 19 pins 2551 to 2532.

Sullivan Pontiac records 3115 in men's competition

by GENE KIRKHAM

Many fine scores were recorded as the Paddock Classic League competed at Hoffman Lanes Saturday night.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware regained first place with the league remaining very tight as no team could gain a seven point advantage.

Sullivan Pontiac came to bowl as they knocked out the league's highest team series of the season rolling 1103, 1006 and 1006 for a 3115 series.

Their total was good for five points over Arnie Yusim Chevrolet who pitched their own 1000 game with 1023 to win two points in the second game.

Ken Miller of Sullivan Pontiac led his team and the league in the night's individual scoring.

Jumping off to a 266 first game, Miller followed with 191 and 212 for a 669 total. Bob Glaser rolled 223, 214 and 192 for 629, Dick Kamin rolled 220, 222 and 202 for 644, and Bob Green had 185, 193 and 229 for 607.

For Arnie Yusim Chevrolet Ray Lofthouse rolled 612 with games of 217, 184 and 211.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware rolled 1019, 942 and 993 for a 2954 series to win five points from Rolling Meadows Shell. Shell pounded out 1057 to take the final game and two points.

Bill Cornelius led the scoring for Des

Ken Miller

Plaines Ace with a 658 series as he rolled games of 230, 192 and 236. The five point win put Des Plaines Ace Hardware back in first place by one over Formco Metal Products.

Formco won five of seven points in their match with Teddy's Liquors. Formco won with 1087 and 923 as they totaled 2972 while Teddy's Liquors won the second game with 992.

Fred Hansen of Formco rolled 629 with 235, 182 and 212 with his doubles partner Mike Heffner adding 233, 205 and 189 for 627. Bob Kula rolled 618 with games of 246, 181 and 191.

Kole Realty made it five points over AFCO Products as they rolled 913, 998 and 927 for 2838.

AFCO won the first game with 917 to earn two points.

Rich Wagner of Kole led the scoring in this match with games of 171, 257 and 210 for a 638 series, with Ralph Flemming adding 603 with games of 222, 187 and 194.

For AFCO Products Bob Hurwitz rolled 616 with games of 237, 166 and 213.

Six teams in the Paddock Classic are within eight points with 50 points at the top and 42 points in sixth place so each week's bowling becomes a little more important with the end of the first half in sight.

The league moves to River Rand Bowl Nov. 30 with the following match games scheduled: Des Plaines Ace Hardware vs. AFCO Products, Sullivan Pontiac vs. Formco Metal Products, Kole Realty vs. Rolling Meadows Shell, Teddy's Liquors vs. Arnie Yusim Chevrolet.

by STIRLING MORITA

A new crime laboratory in Maywood may be the answer to speeding up drug cases lingering in suburban branches of Circuit Court.

The Illinois Bureau of Identification crime laboratory in Joliet will set up a lab satellite, perhaps as soon as February, in the basement of the soon-to-be-completed Sheriff's Police building at 1311 First Ave.

Judge Anton A. Smigiel, head of the Circuit Court's 3rd District, said delays in receiving laboratory analyses in drug cases make it virtually impossible to grant a preliminary hearing within 30 days to a defendant charged with a felony.

The 30-day preliminary hearing guideline was announced recently by Chief Judge John S. Boyle.

"Previously, we were able to receive lab reports in two or three weeks. Now, it's two months or better," said Smigiel, who presides over the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

IN THE SCHAUMBURG branch of Circuit Court, possession of marijuana charges against several youths were dismissed because the cases were continued four times and the lab analysis had not returned.

In another Schaumburg case, a Wisconsin man was held in County Jail because he could not raise bond for charges that he possessed large quantities of controlled substances ranging from LSD to morphine. He spent 30 days in jail before the bond was lowered to an amount he could post. About 1½ months after his arrest, lab reports showed no signs of drugs could be found in substances seized in his arrest.

But the fault is not with the crime laboratories. They are heavily overloaded. Suburban police departments have been unable to use the Chicago Crime Lab since last year, said Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy, who said he believed the reason was Chicago had a large enough backlog by itself.

THE OTHER major laboratory is in Highland Park, but communities must pay for analyses.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said, "It's nothing really new. It's been a long-standing complaint of suburban police officers — that is takes so long to get a lab analysis back."

Smigiel said there is apparently a heavy load of drug cases because of the number of specialized drug enforcement groups that have been established, groups such as the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Ted Elzerman, assistant superintendent of the Joliet laboratory, said the Maywood satellite will probably be started a month after the Sheriff's Police building is completed. The structure is slated to be completed in January.

The satellite facility will not start out as a full-service laboratory, but will specialize on drug analysis and firearm and tool mark identification.

THE SHERIFF'S spokesman said the department has planned to have its evidence technician section work closely with the new laboratory and technicians for suburban law enforcement agencies.

Elzerman added that the location in Maywood would help ease the load on the Joliet laboratory and be a shorter distance for the Chicagoland area police departments to drive.

He said the Joliet laboratory's caseload has increased a lot this year and that in October the labs handled about 500 cases.

Drug cases appeared to be on the increase, Elzerman said, because during the first six months of 1973 46 per cent of the cases were drug-related while during the first six months of 1974 54 per cent of the cases involved drugs.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

One best shot to save contract

When you have no real play to make your contract, you should fall back on giving your opponents a chance to misdefend.

This type of attack succeeds all too often, but it is far better to work out a play that will win against any defense.

South is going to make six spades if diamonds break 3-3. If they don't, he has two ways to try to get the man with long diamonds to discard down to just three. One is to run out seven trumps and hope. The other is to play a few rounds of trumps, duck a diamond, ruff the expected club return and once more — hope.

There is a better line of play that works this time. You start by assuming that whichever opponent holds four diamonds, he will hang on to them like a grim death. In that case a swindle won't work, but if the man with long diamonds holds the long trump everything will come up roses.

At trick two you lead the deuce of diamonds from dummy and play your eight spot. Then you ruff the expected club lead; play one trump; lead diamonds and get to ruff your last diamond because East started with four diamonds and two trumps.

Note that if diamonds break 3-3 you don't have to lead the fourth diamond while if the man with two trumps ruffs the third diamond you go one down no matter how you play the hand.

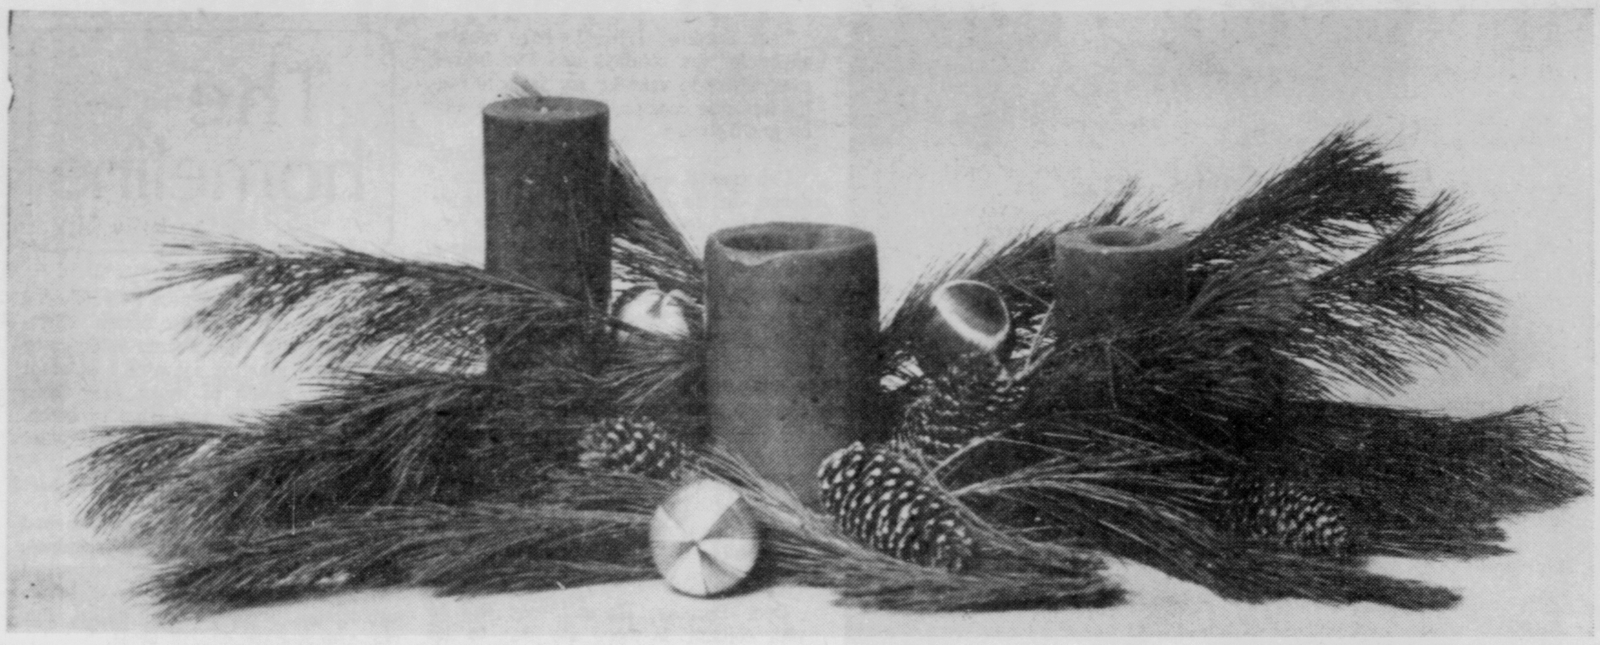
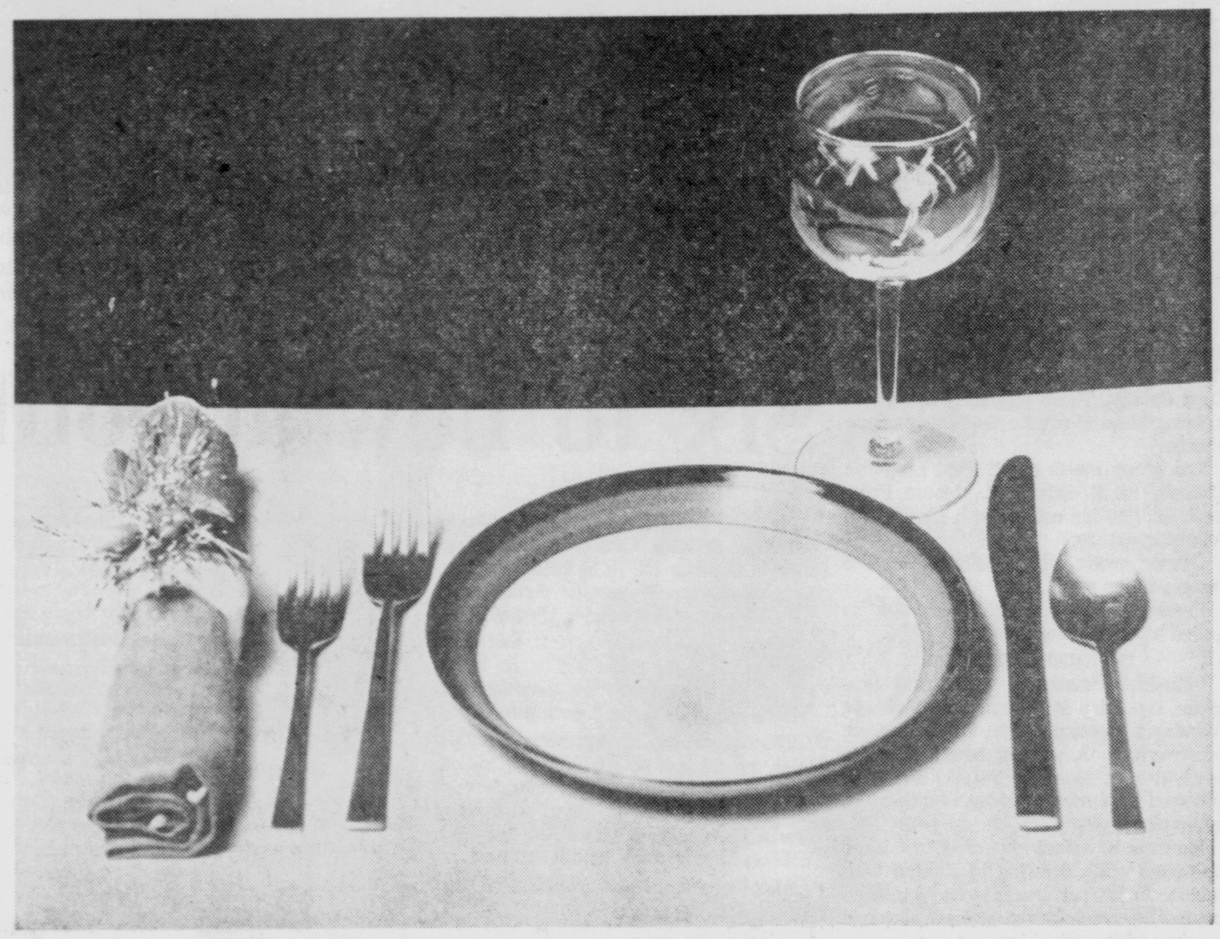
suburban living



CANDLES AND greenery make an attractive holiday centerpiece which can run the length of the table. Add pinecones and colored balls for accents. Branches from an old artificial tree may be used as greenery.

EVERYONE HAS bags from the dry cleaner. Why not use them to create a holiday wreath? Form a circle from a coat hanger, then cut ½ x 4-inch strips of plastic. Tie each on to the coat hanger, pushing the knots close together. Teddy bear is a last year's ornament.



FESTIVE NAPKIN RINGS are decorative for the holiday table. Cut 1½-inch sections from a paper towel roll and decorate with cotton, tinsel, holly, Christmas decals or whatever you have on hand.

Christmas trims

These are easy to make and inexpensive

by FRAN HECKART

The key to having a festive Christmas house and still being able to afford the turkey is to decorate with more imagination than money this year.

It's not essential to have that certain knack for craft projects or buy expensive kits and supplies. Many who freeze at the thought of attempting any decoration if it isn't pre-made are surprised at how easy it is to trim the house and the budget at the same time. If you balk completely at the idea, let the kids make the ornaments this year or remodel the old ones. Glitter and glue hold a certain fascination for kids and they're not afraid to experiment with new creations.

Before you buy anything new for the tree or house this year, take a careful inventory of closets and decorations you've packed away from former holidays. Paper cups, cloth remnants and scraps of colored paper are often the beginnings of fashionable ornaments. And think of the boxes of old Christmas trims as nostalgia, not junk.

A GROUP OF candles decked with holly or other greenery is one of the easiest ways to decorate coffee or hall tables. Scented candles cost no more than ordinary ones and the aroma of pine or cinnamon adds a subtle fragrance to the house if the tree is artificial. If you have candles but want more festive colors, dip them in crayon-colored wax. Inexpensive ones can be made in whatever scent or color you chooose.

Even a child can cover paper cups with old Christmas wrappings or cut-outs from cards. Cut a slit in the bottom and pull a red ribbon through with a jingle bell attached to the other end and you have a bell. Hang them individually on the tree or make a grouping adorned with more ribbon or pine cones and hang them on the door. They cost pennies to make but are no less festive.

EILEEN JANSEN, district supervisor for Welcome Wagon, has little use for commercial decorations. As featured speaker, she recently shared her many ideas for homemade decorations at a Prospect Heights Newcomers meeting.

She believes that Christmas is the time for tradition. The whole house should reflect the spirit of Christmas and for Mrs. Jansen this includes the bathroom and kitchen. Her ideas are simple, yet charming. All of them, she says, can be made in 30 minutes, or an evening.

Interior doors are an ideal spot for decorations, said Mrs. Jansen. For example, use a wide velvet ribbon and decorate it with pine cones, greenery and ornaments. Glue short dowel rods on the back for stability and attach colored balls on each end of the rod for accents.

THIS SAME IDEA can be used for a "different and smashing" banister decoration, said Mrs. Jansen. Make a shorter version of the ribbon door hanging and attach it to the newell post. Add beautiful net swags tucked with holly and more velvet ribbon the length of the railing. Add a string of tiny lights and hang the decorated ribbon on the newell post.

Wall hangings can be made in an evening from scraps of material and old jewelry. The one Mrs. Jansen made was a stylized cut-out of three wise men in glued-on felt robes bedecked with rhinestones.

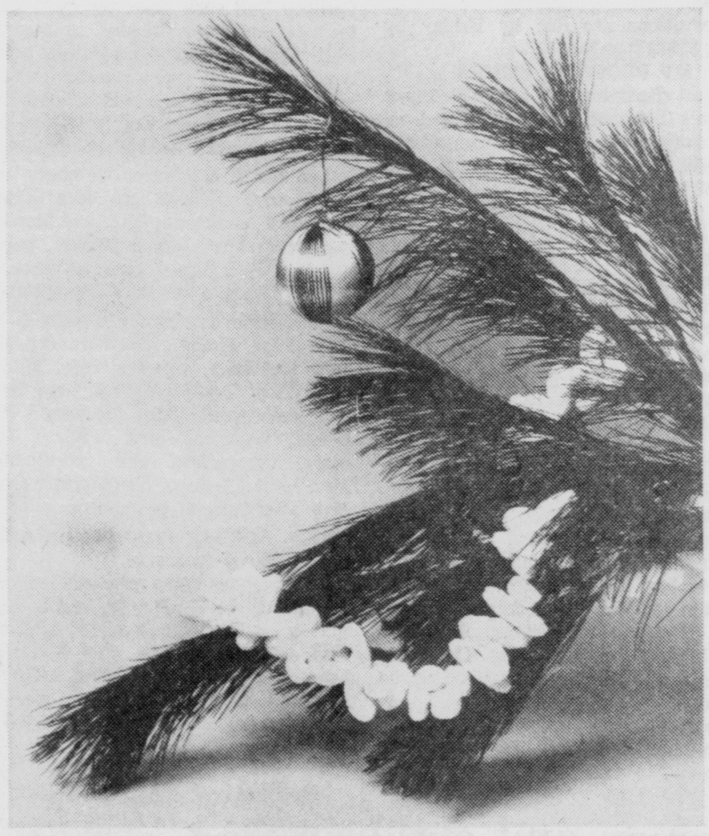
"Don't ever throw away old jewelry," cautioned Mrs. Jansen. It makes a sparkling addition to any number of ornaments. Prepackaged kits are expensive and dismantled necklaces can be used in the same way on plastic foam balls or to add new sparkle to ornaments that look drab or tattered.

PLASTIC FOAM cones are the base for trees which can be color coordinated to decorate any room of the house. Tinsel, tiny ornaments, beads and holly can be attached with glue or straight pins.

Simple plastic prisms can be used singly as tree ornaments or attached to the cone trees as decorations.

Inexpensive hardware cloth can also be used for trees. Cut a cone shape and wire it into the tree form. Add lights and the decorations of your choice. For the tree in her kitchen, Mrs. Jansen uses artificial boxwood and gumdrops. She carries out the gumdrop motif with a centerpiece and candy filled glass jars.

"Holiday decorations don't have to be perfect and professional," advised Mrs. Jansen. The charm of many holiday traditions stems from natural designs. When you think of decorating this year, think simplicity and bring the true spirit of Christmas into your home.



HEED THE RUMORED popcorn shortage this year and string plastic foam packing instead. These fluffy, white pieces cushioned books but come in a variety of packages. Birds won't enjoy the plastic, but it's free.

Desertion has several meanings

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

In many instances where a couple is contemplating divorce and has several grounds to choose from, they often prefer to use the one that is least likely to cause their family scandal or grief.

For instance, in states where it is grounds for divorce, desertion is sometimes a substitute for the charge of adultery.

Desertion is defined as an act of forsaking, deserting or abandoning a person for whom one is legally bound to provide, such as a husband or wife. On the face of it, the definition appears to be simple enough, but actually it's loaded with "if, and, but" implications. While it's true that usually the deserter is the one who leaves home, that's not necessarily so.

The true meaning of desertion is a situation in which a person withdraws from the marriage relationship. The courts say that a person is a deserter even if he or she has never left home.

Recently a woman stopped me on the street to tell me about her marital situation which I pass on to you by way of explanation.

"My husband and I haven't been getting along for some time," she said. "We've just about decided to end it all. So the last time he came home late, I wouldn't let him in. In fact, I just locked him out and now I'm going to sue him for divorce."

• I explained to her that if she continued to "lock him out" without justification (fear of her life, or not being able to find a place for her children and herself should she decide to move out first, etc.), he, not she, could file suit for divorce charging desertion. Of course, she had other grounds, but nevertheless she was shocked to find out that she was also giving her husband grounds for divorce!

This situation and the following are what the courts call "constructive desertions."

• After they are married, Ben takes his bride Sue to live in his parents' home. Although he has the means to provide for his wife, he insists that they can all live together as one, big happy family even though he and his wife must live in a 10 by 12 attic bedroom. Two years of this is enough for Sue. She charges desertion, and they're divorced.

• Then there are Mr. and Mrs. Jones who squabbled because she did not want to move to another state even though it meant Mr. Jones would receive a promotion and double salary. After his pleas fell repeatedly on deaf ears, Mr. Jones moved out charging Mrs. Jones with desertion.

• But another member of the same company, Mr. Kaye moved at the same time and under similar circumstances. Mrs. Kaye refused to join her husband because she was asthmatic and the climate of the state where they were to live would worsen her condition. Under these circumstances Mrs. Kaye has cause to plead desertion.

• Suppose in another instance, Mr. and Mrs. Brown are living under the same roof, but Mrs. Brown refuses to live as man and wife. Does Mr. Brown have to agree to his brother-sister relationship? No. Mrs. Brown is guilty of constructive desertion. Remember the definition? "Desertion is when a person withdraws from the marital relationship."

• Now consider the case in which Joe T. decides to go off by himself, leaving his wife with the children and all the responsibilities. However, a few months later, Joe becomes lonely, reconsiders, returns home and begs forgiveness. His wife sues for divorce on the grounds of desertion. She gets it, right? Wrong. Should Joe be punished for his misbehavior? The court says "no" because it is proper to temper mercy with justice. The law also tries to hold and not put asunder family ties.

• Here's another example of constructive desertion which I am certain you

Christmas card etiquette

An early start on addressing Christmas cards reduces tension and insures that friends and relatives will receive your card before Christmas. Now is the time to begin.

For proper Christmas card etiquette, these suggested points of courtesy come from Clareta Walker, University of Illinois Extension family life specialist.

Even if you had cards printed or engraved, you should personally sign any cards you're sending to relatives or close friends, Miss Walker notes.

When signing a printed or engraved card, the wife's name comes first — "Jane and Jim Brown."

However, the signer writes the spouse's name first on cards without a printed or an engraved signature. For example, a wife would sign "Jim and Jane Brown."

List children's names separately after parents' name to properly include them in the signature.

Unless a person with a title is your close friend, always address the card with the title — "Dr. and Mrs. John E. Jones."

During periods of mourning, it's proper to send Christmas cards. After a recent death, select your card with care. Avoid "Merry Christmas" and send one with "Season's Greetings."

The display of Christmas cards on wall and mirrors adds a festive note to your decor. It flatters the sender, conveys how much you enjoy receiving cards, and it's proper.

You need not send a Christmas card for every one that you receive. Still, always return a Christmas card to a person you love, respect and admire. In addition, return a card to anyone whose friendship you wish to cultivate.

Same mail brings cookie recipe reader requested

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I like to bake cookies ahead for the holidays and I've looked everywhere in vain for my favorite recipe for anise cookies. Do you have a recipe you'd share?

—Lisa Anthony

I've ceased to be surprised by coincidence. In the same mail was a letter from Mrs. Jean Baker, offering her recipe for anise cookies. Here it is: Make a creamed mixture by beating three eggs and adding one cup of sugar and one teaspoon of lemon juice.

Then sift two cups of flour with one teaspoon of baking powder and add one and one-half tablespoons of crushed anise seeds. Add this to the creamed mixture. Beat well and drop from a spoon — keeping cookies well apart — on greased tins. Allow batter to dry 10 hours. Then bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Mrs. Baker describes them as "beautiful, crisp and tasty."

Dear Dorothy: Haven't seen this in your column. Is there any way to get indelible ink out of white T-shirts?

Mrs. Martha Winders

The solution for this is a maybe, and depends in part on how long the stain has been there. If you have already soaked them in cool water and tried working soap or detergent into the stains, try a chlorine or peroxygen bleach. If, after the bleaching, a yellow stain remains, it can be treated as a rust stain with the popular rust soap.

Dear Dorothy: Thought others might be interested in a practice I've followed for years with my house plants. Whenever I bring in a plant from outdoors or am given a plant by someone I isolate it for a full month to make sure there aren't intruders or tiny eggs to hatch. Long ago, I discovered that one plant with mites can infect all the others.

The winter educational-vacation will use mountain resorts in Ellenville, N.Y. for a campus.

Six to bow at cotillion

Six girls from the Northwest suburbs will bow at Holy Family Hospital Auxiliary's Cotillion IX, to be held Saturday, Dec. 28, in the Wellington Ballroom of the Continental Plaza Hotel, Chicago.

Preparations for the benefit ball were revealed at a tea Saturday at the hospital when the girls, their families and friends met with the ball committee.

The debutantes are Kimberly Sue Costello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Costello; Linda Denise Sliva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sliva; and Heidi Marie Thome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thome, all of Mount Prospect.

Also three from Des Plaines, Virginia Ann Krus, daughter of Mrs. Agnes T. Krus; Christy Lynn Sturwold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sturwold; and Anna-marie Szarzynski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Szarzynski.

MORE THAN 500 persons attend the Cotillion Ball each year, proceeds going to purchase items needed to improve Holy Family Hospital's services to the community. This year's purchase will be an image intensifier, used in operating rooms to assist surgeons in setting pins in fractures and in setting pacemakers.

Cotillion IX committee members from the Northwest area are Mrs. Daniel Bonaguidi, chairman; Mrs. Lee Marconi, post debs; Mrs. Joseph Stucker, publicity; Mrs. Karl Ohlson, choreographer, all of Des Plaines.

Members from Mount Prospect are Mrs. Paul McCall, co-chairman; Mrs. John McMahon, vignette; Mrs. William Sims, escort and floor; Mrs. Gary Belletini, debutantes; Mrs. Edward Villa-Donga, program; Mrs. William Sommers, decorations and coordination; Mrs. Robert Golden, choreographer, and Mrs. John Costello, promotion.

MRS. ROBERT Perschbacher, Arlington Heights, is treasurer.

Presiding over the presentation ceremonies will be the Rev. Alfred L. Abramowitz, with music provided by David Mall and his orchestra. Jack Callaghan, former announcer on Don McNeil's Breakfast Club and currently executive director of Maine Township Council on Alcoholism, will emcee the evening's festivities.

won't quickly forget. In at least one case, where a husband brought home his mistress to share his home with his wife, the court not only frowned on this kind of togetherness, but said that the husband among other things was guilty of constructive desertion!

There are many factors involved in any lawsuit, particularly divorce. These illustrations are mere outlines of the actual cases in states where grounds for divorce are still required.

However, it is well to note that in "No Fault" divorce states, the whole theory of what constitutes fault (which includes desertion and other traditional grounds for divorce) is a thing of the past.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in November to:

1. Decide what things in life you cherish most.
2. Check and restock your medicine cabinet. Don't forget items for first aid.
3. Use furniture polish on your wood furniture. Enjoy the gleam.
4. Step outdoors some night this weekend and appreciate the full moon.
5. Make sure that overseas Christmas packages . . . cards too . . . are on their way.
6. Serve a food you have never used before — perhaps garbanzo beans, corn meal mush or sardines in mustard sauce.
7. Try harder to understand your children's likes and dislikes.
8. Note these words by an unknown author: "The secret of being tiresome is to tell everything."

DP Juniors still have Bicentennial plates available

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines is in the final stage of selling plate No. 2 in the series of four collectors' plates commissioned for the Bicentennial to depict a "portrait of liberty sculptured in glass."

In conjunction with the nation's 100th birthday in 1976, the General Federation of Women's Clubs is selling one original plate each year, this being the second year, to depict four major movements of our American Revolution.

The plates come in either antique powder blue or early American milk glass white and are issued in January each year.

THERE IS STILL time to purchase plate No. 2 at $10 each. It pictures the drafting of the original Declaration of Independence titled "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

The 1974 plate may be orderd by calling Dotti Ellis at 823-2150. The 1973 plate titled "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death," depicting the famous speech by Patrick Henry, is also available, but at $12. All plates are $10 if purchased in the year of their production; $12 in any of the other years.

The molds will be publicly destroyed in a ceremony at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, in 1976.

Shaking pops bottles

Family Health, a medical magazine for laymen, reports 125,000 persons a year require hospital treatment because of injury from exploding bottles.

What turns a seemingly harmless bottle of soda pop into a dangerous gas bomb? Shaking. Shaking a soda bottle increases the internal pressure. Also the lip or cap of the bottle may be defective. Some bottles are just weakened by use. Returnables are used an average of 16 times.

A Paddock review

Actress good but 'Black Book' so-so

by PAT ADAM

Another of the typical sex comedies offered in the popular dinner-theater format is playing currently at Country Club Theatre in Old Orchard Country Club, Mount Prospect.

The best thing "The Little Black Book" has going for it besides a reasonable price tag is Lynda Fields, a drama graduate of Northern Illinois University who plays the young woman in the two-person cast.

W. Douglas Smith plays the bachelor with whom Miss Fields has an offbeat romantic encounter.

The comedy concerns an up-and-coming young lawyer who keeps in his little black book a quite specific record of his romantic conquests, 134 to date, with No. 135 in the offing when Miss Fields barges into his apartment and upsets his timing.

Since his days as a timid teen-ager who couldn't even look a girl in the eye, Gene, the bachelor, has mastered the technique of seduction. It works every time . . . and so simply and easily, he smugly tells his uninvited guest, who has taken a considerable interest in the little black book.

SUDDENLY THE bachelor finds the tables turned with the wily young woman, though she's not openly seductive, besting him at his own game. All of which leads to a totally unexpected ending.

As sex comedies go, "The Little Black Book" is so-so. But Miss Fields brings a refreshing Streisand-like quality to her interpretation of Susan, the girl. She's particularly entrancing in the scene where the two sit in Gene's apartment, happily inebriated, as he cannily tries to seduce her by asking his usual questions and she just as cannily answers with one fantasy after another. Or is she telling the truth?

Completely baffled by the young woman who has assumed squatter's rights in his apartment, the bachelor is ready to move out. But no fair telling who wins this one.

Smith convincingly conveys the bafflement the young man feels when he's met his match, but he doesn't seem quite as debonair as one would expect of a Lothario working on No. 135.

THE SET IS AN excellent one, not overdone but giving the impression that its occupant is doing okay. Maximum use is made of the stage area, and the atmosphere is not cramped as it sometimes can be in a small theater such as Country Club.

One minor criticism: If Director Arnold Giedraitis wants to localize these plays, he should do more than just change the setting in the playbill. In this case it says Chicago, yet Miss Fields speaks with a definite Brooklyn accent and refers several times to New York. Sex being pretty much the same no matter where you go, it really wasn't necessary to localize this particular setting.

Mike Sims, the theater's new assistant director, in introducing the play, called attention to the new carpeting, and it does indeed add a luxurious touch to the downstairs theater.

"The Little Black Book" will be at Country Club until Dec. 8. The play alone is $3.50 Tuesday through Thursday, $4 on Friday and Sunday and $4.50 Saturday. Dinner-theater comes with a $7 tab Tuesday through Thursday, $8 Friday and Sunday and $9 on Saturday. It's a reasonable package if you're looking for light entertainment.

PEO hosts yule housewalk Dec. 5

Six Arlington Heights PEO chapters are sponsoring a "Doorsteps to Christmas" housewalk on Thursday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

The homes will be decorated with Christmas themes and will feature boutique items and home-baked goods at the various locations.

Each of the chapters has one of its members opening her home for the tour. The six holiday themes are a child's Christmas, a Christmas Eve supper, a traditional Christmas, a holy night, Christmas greens and New Year's Eve.

Proceeds will benefit the PEO's philanthropies, chief among them Cottey College in Missouri, a scholarship fund and an educational loan fund.

Tickets at $1.50 may purchased from PEO members or by calling 392-3528 daily after 4 p.m.
